BIBLIOTHECA INDICA:

A

COLLECTION OF ORIENTAL WORKS,

PUBLISHED BY

THE ASIATIC SOCIETY OF BENGAL.

New Serise, Nos. 700, 706, 810, 872, 890, 947, 1058, 1076, & 1104.

THE

MĀRKANDEYA PURĀŅA

TRANSLATED WITH NOTES.

BY

F. EDEN PARGITER, B.A.

Indian Civil Service;
Judge of the High Court of Judicature, Calcutta; Late Boden Sanskrit Scholar, Oxford.

Vol. 2.

CALCUTTA:

PRINTED AT THE BAPTIST MISSION PRESS, AND PUBLISHED BY THE ASIATIO SOCIETY, 57, PARE STRBET.
1904.

BJ 125

PREFACE.

This translation of the Mārkandeya Purāna was undertaken by me for the Asiatic Society of Bengal many years ago, when I hoped to be able to carry it through in no long period; but onerous official duties left little leisure, and for years removed me to a distance from the Society's Library and other means of reference. The Society was reluctant that the translation should be dropped, and it has therefore been continued as well as leisure permitted. It is hoped that in spite of these difficulties the translation may be of service to scholars, and the notes with all their shortcomings not unwelcome.

CALCUTTA:

3rd December, 1904.

F. E. P.

INTRODUCTION.

This translation of the Märkandeya Purana being made for the Asiatic Society of Bengal naturally follows the edition of this work prepared by the Rev. Dr. K. M. Banerjea, and published in the Biblictheca Indica in 1862; yet other editions and some MSS, have been consulted and are referred to. The translation has been kept as close to the original as possible, consistently with English sense and idiom; for a translation bases some of its interest and much of its trust-worthiness, when the reader can mover know whether it reproduces the original accurately or only the purport of the original. The time during which the work has been in hand has rendered it difficult to maintain one system of transliteration throughout; but, morder to place the whole in a consistent state, the system established by the Royal Asiatic Society and approved by the Asiatic Society of Bengal has been adopted in the Index and in this Introduction.

The general character of this Pursua has been well surumed up by Prof. Wilson in his preface to his Translation of the Vignu Puraga, except that his description hardly applies to the Devi-mahatmya. "This Purana has a character different from that of all the others, It has nothing of a sectarial spirit, little of a religious tone; rarely inserting prayers and invocations to my drift, and such as are inserted are brief and moderate. If deals lattle in precepts, ceremonist Its leading feature a narrative, and it presents an . uninterrupted succession of legend most of which when ancient are embellished with new circumstances, and when new partake so the of the spirit of the old, that they are disinterested ereations of the imagination, having no particular motive, being designed to recommend no special doctrine or observance. Whether they are derived from any other source, or whether they are original investigation tions, it is not possible to ascertain. They are most probably, the the greater part at least, criginal; and the whole has been margital in the compiler s own manner; a manner super Purious in general, with exception of the Bharana.

The Purana is stearly divisible (as Dr. Banarjea noticed) into five

- Cautos 1-9, in which Jaimini is referred by Markandeya to wise Birds, and they directly explain to him the four questions that perplexed him and some connected matters.
- 2. Oantos 10-14, where, though Jaimini propounds further questions to the Birds and they nominally expound them, yet the real speakers are Sumati, nicknamed Jada, and his father.
- Cantos 45-81: here, though Jainini and the Birds are the nominal speakers, yet the real speakers are Mārkaudoya and his disciple Kraustuki.
- 4. Cantos 82-92, the Devi-muliatorya, a pure interpolation, in which the real speaker is a rei named Modhas, and which is only repeated by Markandeva.
- 5. Cantos 93-136, where Mārkandeya and Kraustuki carry on their discourse from canto 81.
- The 197th canto concludes the work; it is a necessary corollary to the first part.

There can be no doubt that only the third and fifth of these parts constituted the Purana in its original shape as Mārkar leya's Purana. The name would imply that originally Mārkandeya was the chief figure, and it is only in the third part that he appears as the real teacher. There is, however, clearer evidence that the Purāna began with the third part originally, for this is asserted almost positively in canto 45, verses 16 to 25. There Mārkandeya, after deslaring that this Purana, equally with the Vedas, issued from Trahmā's mouth, says—"1 will now tell it to thee..... Hear all this from me..... as I formerly heard it when Daksa related it." These words plainly mean that the true Purāna began here; on, if the necessary words of introduction be prefixed, that it began at verse 16 or 17, which verses have been slightly modified since in order to devetall here into the preceding portion.

tir the Perans propert. That they sees later compositions

My the fact that the Birds regite the authority, and is indeed indicated by the origin attributed in While the original Purana was proplaimed to be a reveletion Brahma hunself, no higher authority is claimed for the first second parts than Markandern and the unknown brahman buth -Jada. Further, mention is made in canto 20, verse 83, of Partina which narrate Visua's manifestations. This expression is variety if it means lengthy descriptions of some of the incornations much Puranas might be the Visno, Brahma-vaivarta, Brahma and Bhagavita; but the last two were pronounced by Penf. Wilson to · he late compositions, and the reference here may be to the former two only, to which he assigned about an equal date with this Purane. There is nothing donnite to show whether the first and second parts had been united before they were prefixed to the Purking proper, or whether the second part, was amorted after the first had been prefixed; vet it would some more probable that they had been united before they were profixed. There is a marked similarity between thru

The preferral of the heaveness delivered by the Birds to the Purana proper raised the Birds to the primary and chief position and tended to derogate from Markedeya's presentance; but clashing was avoided and Mirkandeya's corpromacy was preserved by two expedience; first, he was introduced at the very beginning in order that he night expressly declare the wisdom and anticolty of the Birds; and secondly, the original Purana was interfered with as little as possible by making the Birds repeat it is covered to Markandeva's teaching, conclusive upon the subjects dealt with in it. The Birds on beginning it retire from further retired in the appear with Jaimin in the final canto to conclude their discourse and give considered necessary by the prefixing of the first two parts to the original Purana.

The second part appears to have been amplified beyond its primary scope. It discourses about hirth and death, about the hells, about sine and their punishments and about yoga or religious devotion. All these subjects the beieffy dealt with, though the description different hells attampter than in other Purana, but and subject leads to a discursive exposition. If death with like the other subjects, the exposition would pass from canto 16.

Institutely to canto 87, where king Alarka is driven by adversity to state Dattatreya's advice and that rei expounds the doctrines of yogs to him in cantos 88 to 48, and the story naturally closes with canto 44. But the reference to that king and that rei was considered to require some elucidation at canto 16, verse 13, hence the story of Dattatreya and the story of Alarka's parents Rtadhvaja and Madalasā are made the introduction to the direct exposition of yoga, with the result that the digression is so long that, when the subject of yoga is reached, its connexion with Jaimini's questions has been lost to sight; and even the passage from the story of Dattatreya to that of Alarka at the end of canto 19 is inapt and abrupt.

Both these stories moreover appear in their turn to have been expanded beyond their natural course. The story of the brahman and his devoted wife in canto 16, which furnishes an unnecessary explanation of the birth of Dattätreya, is a story of common town life, an absurd anachronism compared with what it explains; and it seems with its reference to a temple dedicated to Anasāyā during her life-time to be an interpolation intended for her glorification. The story of Rtadhvaja and Madālasā is a charming one of simple marvel and runs its natural course in cantos 20 to 27 as far as Madālasā's instruction of her son Alarka in kingly duties; but the following cantos 28 to 35, in which she expounds the laws regarding brahmans. srāddhas, custom, &c., hardly accord with the story or with her position and knowledge, and seem to be an interpolation. Some teaching on such matters being deemed desirable, here was the only place where the addition was possible.

The Devi-māhātmya stands entirely by itself as a later interpolation. It is a poem complete in itself. Its subject and the character thirbuted to the goddess shew that it is the product of a later age which developed and took pleasure in the sanguinary features of topular religion. The praise of the goddess Mahā-māyā in canto 81 aim the endinary strict. Her special glorification begins in canto 82, and is glaborated with the most extravagant laudation and the most intermedial interpretation. Some of the hymna breathe deep religious entry in the abound the control of the strict and private and provides of the battles abound the most interpretation in the cher hand, the descriptions of the battles abound the control of the later and making the cher hand, the descriptions of the battles abound the control of the later and making the cher hand, the descriptions of the battles abound the control of the later and making the cher incidents.

fancies. The Devi-mahatmva is a compound of the most opposite characters. The religious out-pourings are at times pure and slevas ted: the material descriptions are absurd and debased.

The ending of the Purnya deserves notice. It closes with the exploits of king Dama. According to the Gaudiya or Bengal MSS., which Dr. Bancrion followed, the Puraua ends abruptly in canto 136, leaving Dama acquescing tamely in the Hight of his father's murderer The up-country version (the endrag of which he placed in an appendix) is found in the Bombay and Poons editions and earries the story on till Dama takes vengeance on Vapusmat. Dr. Bancrica considered the absupences and incompleteness were strongs evidence of the genuineness of the Bengal ending and no doubt that is a fair argument, but it overloods the character of the two endings. The presummer who is that ending ascribes to Dama face with the tone of his threat in same 135 which both versions account genuine. On the other band the up country ending narrates the fulfillwest of that threat, and the savage and even inhuman incidents which it mentions are hardly or the able if it is specious, for Dank after Elling Vaposand and Vaje mat's the of and their for the oblations due to his mardered firth c. and also (it is implied) gave certain degraded biglionary a course a feast. A forger would not wish nor dare to invent in his endies of one of the kines made regularize incidents, describing the most stried rise and tenets of his religion. nor if we can margine such a forger did ocear, could it have ever obtained even tolerance. If it impossible, therefore, to think that the un-country ending is a furgicy; and if it be the true original, one can easily understand why such an ording should have been struck out, and how the r. viser, a rable to invent or palm off a new ending. had to bring the story to the abrust and pinne conclusion of the Bongal version. The up-country ending has, therefore, been adopted as the true version in this translation, and the Bengal ending bas been noticed separately. The former discloses, like stray passages elsowhere, that savegery was not absent from the earliest memories of the Aryans in India.

For the purpose of discussing the Purana further, it will be convenient to consider the first and second parts as composing one Section, and the third and fifth parts as composing mother Section;

ing this division will be observed in what follows. The Boyl maketings constitutes a Section by itself.

Place of Origin.

With regard to the question of the place of its origin, the Paraga in both its Sections professes to have emanated from Western India.

The second Section as the oldest may be considered first. In conto 45, vs. 24 and 25, Märkandeya saya positively that Cyavana was the rai who first declared it. Cyavana obtained it from Bhigh and Seclared it to be to be a markandeya learnt it from Daksa. Now Cyavana is intimately associated with the west of India, especially with the region about the mouths of the rivers Narmada and Tapti. Her father Bhigu and their descendants Rolka, Jamadagmi and Paratu. Raima are connected in many a legend with all the country north, east and south of that region That was the territory of the Bhärgava race (see pp. 310 and 368). As Cyavana settled near the mouths of those rivers, the Purāna itself claims to have been first declared by him in that region

Markandeya hunself was a Bhargava. This is stated in canto 45, v. 18 and canto 52 vs. 14-17, and also in the Maha-bharats, Vang-p. cenvi 14104-5. The Bhargavas spread from Cyavana's region, especially eastward along the valleys of the Narmada and Tapti, as those valleys were gradually wrested from the bul races by the Yadavas and Hathayas, the most famous conquerors of which race were Ariuna Kartavirya and Jyamagha. The former reigned in Mahismati on the Narmada: and the latter apparently conquered further castward (see M Bh., Vana-p. czvi , Santi-p. zlix; Hari-V., zzziii. 1850-90, and xxxvii. 1080-87; Vanu P., cli-clxxiv; and Matsya P. zhii. 18-51 and zliv 28-56). Märkandeya is said to have paid visits , to the Pandaras and to have had a tirtha at the junction of the Ganger and Gomati (M Bh.; Vans-p. instiv. 8058-9), but his special · abode appears to have been on the river Payneni (the modern Pural and its continuation in the Papti, es. p. 200) (id. laxaviii. 8320), Buth by lineage and by residence therefore he belonged to that wesdistanting, and the original Purities must been been composed Bullegares are continued be improved the Punion the regards the first Section, this said the Bless, to when the referred, were living in the Vindhya mountains, and it was that they delivered the Purasa to him. They are explained of countries to be four brahman brothers in a state of transmugration, and it was pears to be implied in canto 3, vs. 22-24, that their father, the munit Sukra, dwelt on or near the Vindhyas. He had a brother named Tumburu. There were other persons of this name, such as Tumburawho was a gain among the Gan tharvas (see pp. 571, 647, 648, and 118 as corrected; and M. Bh. Sabha-p. It 1881.), but it seems permissible to connect this brother Tumburu with the tribes of the names Tumbura and Tumbula who dwelt on the slopes of the Vindhyas (p. 848).

The Birds are said to have duck to the Vindhyas in a cave, where the water we very secret op 17), and which was sprinkled with drops of water from the over Normads (p 19), and it is no doubt allowable to mier the actuation from the se indications, namely, some cliffs of the Vindhya hills where these hills abut on the river Narmada at a very sered turba. Such a spot cannot be sought above the modern Hoshanguhau, for the river above that was encome pussed in early times he halls, dense for se and wild tribes. Among the very sacred places who a the Vindhya falls on the north approach close to the river, none satisfies the conditions befor that the rocky island and town of Mandhata, which is to be identified with Mahigmati, the ancient and famous Hadinya capital. The modern town of Mahesar, some lifty unles lower down the river chains to be the ancient Mahiquati, but does not enterly the allumous. Mahiquati was situated on an edand in the rever and the palace looked out on the rushing stream (Ragha V, vi. 13) This description agrees only with Mandhata Malify nati was sacred to Agai in the earliest times (M. Bh., Sabha-p. 1125-93). Mandhata has special claims to stante tity, it has very ancient remains, it has become sacred to Sivaand the faccous shaue of Omkars and other temples dedicated to him are here (Hunter, Impl. Gaz., "Mandhata "). The kills aloss in ea the river here, and on the north bank are Jain temples. In these hill on the north bank overlooking the river at Mandhija we may the alleged cave where the first part of the Puritonian was delivered; and this identification will be found further fratures of the Purkus

The grant to the second part it may be noticed that Sunsti Jack (p. 68). Hence this part belonged to the same region where the Managevas predominated. With this view agrees the statement that the ratny season lasts four months and the dry season eight months (p. 147), as I understand is the rule in this region. It is further worthy of note that eyes of blue colour, like the blue water-lily (nilotpala) are given to Laksmi (p. 104) and to Madālasā (p. 114); and such a comparison is rare, I believe, in Sanskrit. It was (may it be inferred?) in Western India that people with blue eyes could have been seen as visitors in circumstances of such appreciation that their features became a model of beauty.

There are some other matters that might have been expected to yield information of a local character, such as the lists of various trees, plants, birds and animals (pp. 24-31, 164-6 and 244-5), and the peculiar exposition of the construction and nomenclature of fortresses (pp. 240-2). I have, however, been unable to deduce any definite conclusion from the latter, and the lists betray no special local character, but rather aim at being as comprehensive in their way as the geographical cantos (57 and 58).

Both the first and second Sections, therefore, plainly emanated from Western India, and indicate the middle portion of the Narbadā and Tapti valleys as their place of origin. It remains to consider the Devi-mābātmya, and the following considerations point to the same place of origin, especially to Mandhāta.

The Devi-manatury must have originated in some place dedicated to the goddess in her terrible form. The poem has now become a text-book of the worshippers of Kali throughout Northern India and in Bengal, especially at the great Durgā-pūjā festival, but it did not originate in Bengal. The goddess whom the poem glorifies is a foldess formed by the usion of the vigours or energies (tojas, not late) of all the gods (p. 473), and she is called Maha-māyā, Candika, Asinika, Bhadri-kali and Mahā-kali (pp. 469, 476, &c. and 691). Though identified with Sri once (p. 484), yet she is possibly identified to the hymns with Sival consort as Durgalate, Sivaldes and Mahā-kali (pp. 484 5, 484 5, and 531). The a separate geodese who issued from Captika's forehead (p and Captika's gave her the name Camunda, because (as it is expected in a bon mot) she had killed two great demons Capta and Magazin (p. 500). Whether this derivation has any imaginary truth or not must be very doubtful, because fanciful derivations are common in this Purāpa and elsewhere. The Saktis of the gods are made separate emanations from the gods, and are called the Mothers, matrogram (pp. 502, 504). The poem is therefore a glorification of Durga huber terrible aspect, with Kali as an emanation from her.

One would therefore look among the strongholds of Siva worship for the birth-place of this poem. Now it is remarkable that of this great lings shrines (which are reckoned to be twelve), no loss this six are situated in or near the very region of Western India where the Pursipa originated; riz, Omkāra at Mandhāta, Mahākala at Ujjain, Tryambak at Nasik, Ghṛṇeśvara at Ellora, Nāganāth east of Ahmadnagar, and Bhīma-śańkar at the sources of the river Bhīma. Mandhāta was doubly distinguished, for another famous lings was Amresvara on the south bank of the river there: At none of them-however, except at Omkūra, was Siva or Durgā-worshipped with sanguinary rites, as far as I can find.

In the Mahā-bhārata Durgā has the names Mahākāli, Bhadrakāli, Caṇḍā and Caṇḍī; and she is also called Kāli, no distinction being made (Virāṭa-p. vi. 195; Bhisma-p. xxiii. 796-7). The name Camuṇḍā dees not apparently occur there. Cāmuṇḍā was worshipped with human sacrifices, for she is mentioned in the fifth Act of the Mālatī-mādhava, where her temple is introduced and her votaries tried to offer a human sacrifice at the city Padmāvati. Padmāvati was a name of Ujjain; but some scholars would identify it was a name of Ujjain; but some scholars would identify it was distant to suit the description at the beginning of the minta feet. Whether Padmāvati was Ujjain or not, there can be no doubt from that description that it was situated in the region north of the Vindhyas between the upper portions of the rivers Chambal and Parbati, that is, in the region immēdiately north of Mandhāta.

The only local allusion in the poem is that the godden is that the high that Mahakala (p. 521), which is a shrine of Sies at Units is is possible the poem may have been composed to receive

Rut this is hardly probable bemore the allusion is very brief, and the worship there was not appersully of the kind to originate this poem. Moreover, if Padmävati was Ujjain, the Mälati-mädhava distinguishes between the temple of Camunda and the shrine of Mahākāla, for the temple is described as being adjacent to a field which was used as a burning-ground for corpses and which must have lain outside the city; and if Padmävati was some other town, the allusion here to Mahākāla has no connexion with Camunda or Candikā at Padmävatī. It is hardly probable that, if this poem originated at Ujjain, the goddess at the shrine of Mahākāla would have been referred to in this manner.
Hence this passage more probably conveys only a commendatory allusion; and it seems more natural and appropriate to connect the poem with Mandhāta, where this phase of sanguinary worship was particularly strong.

The worship of Camunda points to the same conclusion. Human sacrifices had long been abolished in the civilized countries of India, and the offering of such sacrifices at Padmavati could hardly have been a survival but must have been introduced from elsewhere. Such a practice would naturally be clandestine. Human sacrifices were offered in those times only among the rude tribes of Central India among whom such sacrifices survived till the last century; hence it may be inferred that such offerings to Camunda at Padmawati must have been introduced from places which bordered on those tribes and were affected by their rites. The middle portion of the Narbada valley was eminently such a place. Pointing in the same direction is the statement in the Maha-bharata that Durga had her sternal abode on the Vindhyas and was fond of intoxicating liquor. Seah and cattle (Virata-p. vi. 195). It seems reasonable then to conclude that the Devi-mahatunya is earlier than the Malatimadheva; and if so, the name Camunda and the form Candika occur apparently the first time in this poem.

Mandhats was a famous ancient tirthe and appears to have falled interested in the 11th and 19th centuries falls, but its giffy was revived. About the year 1166 "s Gossing and Daryson 18th, was the only worshipper of Dunkstron the islands which gifts much and solve the far of a femble god called Ed.

Bhairava and his consort Kali Davi, who fed on human last Daryao Nath by his austerities shut up Kali Davi in a mouth of which may yet be seen, appearing her by erecting an image outside to receive worship; while he arranged that Kal Bhairava should, in future, receive human sacrifices at regular intervals. From that time devotees have dashed themselves over the Birkhala elifes at the eastern end of the island on to the rocks by the river brink, where the terribic god resided; till in 1924 the British officer in charge of Nimar witnessed the last such offering to Kal Bhairava." (Hunter, Impl. Gaz, "Mandhata"). There does not appear to be any information, what kind of worship was offered there before the 11th century, yet the facts suggest strongly that such sanguinary rites were not a new ordinance but had prevailed there before.

Both Siva and his consort in their most terrible forms were thus worshipped at Mandhata, which was almost exclusively devoted to their service; and it is easy to understand how such a sanguinary form of religion could take shape here. This region of the Narbada valley was specially connected with demon legends, such as the demon stronghold of Tripura and the demon Mahisa, after which the towns Tewar and Mahesar are said to be naned. It also bordered on the Naga country. Mandhata, with such associations, would be the most probable birth-place of this poem, and the brief allosion to Mahakala would their be only a collateral one; yet, even if the poem was composed at Ujjains, the conclusion would still remain good that the poem originated is this region of Western India.

Date of the Purana.

The question of the date of the Purana is more difficult, since all questions of chronology in Sanskrit writings are most uncertain. One definite and important date may be first noticed. Mahamshopsdbysys Haraprasad Sästri found a copy of the Devi-māhātnya in old Newari characters in the Royal Library in Nepal, and it is dated 1998. A.D. (See his Catalogue). It may be safely inferred therefrom that this poem must have been composed before the beginning of the Parana, the other parts miss that the library and may be considerably surface. These that the library parts of the Parana, the other parts miss that

From Wilson in his preface to his Translation of the Vienu Porsus bounted out that this Purana is later than the Maha-bharata but specier to the Brahma, Padma, Nāradīya and Bhāgavata Purānas; and conjectured that it may be placed in the ninth or tenth century A.D. This, as already noticed, is too recent, moreover it has been discovered since that his estimates of the composition of the several Puragas under-reckon their age, and that the periods assigned by him should be moved some centuries earlier. For instance, he conjectured the collective writings known as the Skanda Purana to be modern and the greater part of the contents of the Käst Khanda anterior to the first attack upon Benares by Mahmud of Ghizni " (Preface, p. lxxii)which must mean that the Kasi Khanda is earlier than the 11th century A.D. But Mahamahopadhyaya Haraprasad Sastri found in the Boysl Library in Nepal a copy of the "Skanda Purāņa" written in later Gupta characters of the 6th or 7th century A.D. From that is obvious that the composition of the Skanda Purana must have taken place four or five centuries earlier than Prof. Wilson's estimate. Hence it is possible that a corresponding modification of his estimate regarding the Markandeya Purapa should be made, and that would place it about the 4th century A.D.

Further evidence is obtained from Jain writings that the Purame are much earlier than Prof. Wilson estimated. Thus the Padma Purama of the Jains, which was written by Ravisena in imitation of the Hindu Padma Purama, contains, I understand, a couplet showing that it was composed in the year 678 A.D.; and that Purama mentioned all the Puramas. All are mentioned again in the Jain Adl Purama of Jinasena who lived about a century later. This evidence would demonstrate that all the Hindu Puramas had been composed before the and of the sixth and probably by the end o experience materials of entimating the age of a Sanskrit competition.

Legislation and philipschical ideas embedied in the last of such ideas remains the last of such ideas.

stong a course of development in India, but it is doubtful how far general inferences therefrom can be safely applied to fix the date of a particular work. Where such ideas are founded on sacred composittions, which are the subject of reverent study, there must be flows, eddies and intervals of stagnation, and even rapids and back ourrents. in the stream of such ideas. Their course may be compared withsimilar speculations, not in a single European country, but in the whole of Europe, for India has always comprised many countries; and the history of Europe during the last four hundred years shews, whether it would be easy to determine the date of a writing on such subjects in Latin solely from its contents, for the progress of thought in the different countries has been neither simultaneous nor uniform. Similarly in India, there can be no doubt that, while religion and philosophy have had their general course of development, the course has been very unequal in the different countries, so that it would not be unreasonable to suspect that at the same time one country was advancing, another was stationary, and a third was even degenerating under political adversity. The development of religiou and philosophy in India then is not so clear that one can do more than venture to conjecture upon such grounds, at what period or periods this Purana, which was written in Western India, was composed. And, as already mentioned, it has so little of a sectarian spirit or of special doctrines: that the basis for conjecture is meagre. Subject to this caution the following features may be noticed.

Among the deities, Indra and Brahma are mentioned oftenest; next stand Vispu and Siva; then the Sun and Agni; and lastly Dharma and others. Indra is mentioned most often in the first and fifth parts, and Brahma in the third and fifth parts; while Vispu and Siva do not show any particular preponderance. If the Devi-mahatmya is put aside, the Sun is the deity that receives the most special adoration, and his story is related twice, first, briefly in cantos 77 and 78, and afterwards with fullness in cantos 102-110. To this may be added the cognate worship of Agni in cantos 99 and 100. Such marked reverence for Agni and the Sun would be natural in such a place as Mahismati, which (as already mentioned) was specially sacrated to Agni before the worship of Siva obtained supremacy there.

appropriate for the worship of the Sun (p. 581), and why it should have been so characterized seems unintelligible unless it was considered to be an udaya-qiri.

The prominent notice of the great Vedic god Indra, and of Brahmā the earliest of the post-Vedic gods, would indicate a fairly high autiquity for the Purāṇa, especially for the second Section, which boldly claims to have issued from Brahmā's mouth equally with the Vedas (p. 219) and thus to stand almost on an equality with them—an honour which none of the other Purāṇas ventures to arrogate for itself. Such an antiquity would also explain the high position assigned to the Sun and Agni, who are also among the chief Vedic gods; yet the special praise offered to the Sun may, as Dr. Banerjea hinted, be perhaps attributable in part to Persian influences.

The first Section of the Purāṇa is certainly later than the Maḥābhārata, for the four questions that Jainini propounds to the Birds arose expressly out of that work. These questions are, first, a religious enigma, Why did Vāsudeva (Viṣṇu) though devoid of qualities assume human shape with its qualities of goodness, passion and ignorance? secondly, a social perplexity, Why was Draupadi the common wife of the five Pāṇḍava brothers? thirdly, a moral incongruity, Why did Baladeva explate the sin of brahmanicide by pilgrimage? and fourthly, a violation of natural justice, Why did Draupadi's five sons all perish in their youth? The obtrusion of these questions implies that the Mahā-bhārata was firmly established as an unimpeachable authority, so that difficulties involved in it could not be disputed and must admit of reconciliation with the laws of Righteousness.

The explanations offered by the Birds appear to be these. Vāsudeva (Vishu) existed in quadruple form; the first form was devoid of qualities, but each of the others was characterized by one of the three qualities, so that in his assuming human and other shapes with all the qualities no violation occurred to his nature. The second question is solved by the assertion, that because of Indra's transgressions five portions of his essence became incarnate in the Pandavas, and his wife became incarnate as Draupadi, so that she was all the wife of the parameters of the death of the parameters and appliable by death.

and that pilgrimage was a plous undertaking; how therefore could such a sin be expiated by such action P. The answer some to be that the sin was unintentional, being due to overpowering somenat influences, and did not call for the full rigour of punishment, while the real penance consisted in confrasion. The fourth question is solved by a story of transmigration; Drampadi's sons were five Visva Devās who were cursed by Visvāmitra to assume human form for a brief period.

The first two questions and answers call for some notice and throw some light on the age of the first Section of the Purana.

With regard to the first question, Dr. Bauerjea has remarked in his Introduction that the description of Väsudeva belongs to the school Närada-pañcarāira, to which Saukarācārya has given an elaborate reply in his commentary on the Brahma Sūtras; while no trace of this doctrine is to be found in the second Section of the Purāņa. As Saukara lived in the 8th century A.D., that school existed before him. The first part of this Puraņa was, therefore, probably prior to his time; yet it may possibly have been later. This comparison then yields acthing definite.

The second answer presents some remarkable peculiarities when compared with the Maha-bharata. That work gives two explanations about Draupadi's wifehood, first, why she was destined to have five husbands, and secondly, why the five Pandavas became her husbands.

The first explanation is given twice in the Adi-parvan, viz., in clxix. 6426-34 and in exerti. 7319-29. She had been a rai's daughter and unmarried; in order to obtain a husband she propitiated Siva with austerities, and he offered her a boon. She begged for a husband, and in her eagerness made the request five times, hence he promised her five husbands, and in spite of her objection adhered to his word and promised them to her in another life. Hence she was born as Drupada's daughter. In the latter of these two passages, and in line 7310 she is made an incarnation of Lakemi.

The second explanation is given in Adi-parvan exerti. 7275-7310. Indra went to Siva on Mount Himavat and accosted him radsity, but Siva awed him and pointed to a cave in the mountain wherein the four prior Indras. Siva said that Indra and those four prior Indras.

the of the world, and that lakent should be born and be their common with a coordingly Indra was born as Arjuna and the prior Indra as the other Pandavas, and Ialami was born as Draupadi.

Now these stories in the Maha-bharata itself furnished some explanation, and why Jaimini should have felt any perplexity, if he had these explanations before him, is at first right strange. This suggests adoubt whether they were then in the Maha-bharata, or whether they were inserted there afterwards to meet this very question. On the other hand, it may be noted that these explanations did not really solve the difficulty, for the five Indras who became the Pandavas were not the same deity, and thus Draupadi's husbands were still separate persons. On this point, therefore, the difficulty remained, and the answer given by the Birds removes it (though at variance with the Maha-bharata) by declaring that the Pandavas were all incarnations of portions of the same deity, Indra, and were thus really only one person. The Maha-bharata, however, presented a further difficulty, for why should Lakemi have become incarnate to be the wife of incarnations of Indra? The Birds alter this by declaring (again at variance with the Mahā-bhārata) that it was Indra's own wife who became incarnate as Draupadi. Both these contradictions are left unnoticed; yet it is said very truly that there was very great perplexity about this matter (p. 19),

This incongruity of Laksmi's becoming incarnate to be wife to incarnations of other deities suggests a further speculation. In the Mahl-Milrata as it now stands, Kṛṣṇa is an incarnation of Viṣṇu, and it was proper that Laksmi should become incarnate to be his queen. Nevertheless that work states that she became the wife of five persons all distinct from Viṣṇu. May it be surmised that these suplantations in the Mahl-bhlarata were fashioned before Kṛṣṇa had bean daified, and before it was perceived that they could have any bearing on his story? If so, it is quite intelligible that it was deemed hearing on his story? If so, it is quite intelligible that it was deemed that Dṛṣṇa was deified, to persone the incongruity by astrong that Dṛṣṇa was an incarnation, not of Laksmi, but of the perceived that the property and the property acceptance is the perceived that the property acceptance is the perceived that the perceived are acceptanced by the deification.

would indicate that the first part was composed, when the legend had become so well established that it was needful to being other stories into harmony with it.

The Purana contains little reference to the political condition of India; yet it may be pointed out that all the stories narrated in the first Section relate to Madhya-defa, the Himalayas and Woodera India, while no mention occurs of Southern, Eastern or North-Western India. In the second Section, few illustrative stories poour apart from the main discourse on the Manus and the royal genealegies. Only one dynasty is treated of, that in which the chiefprinces were Vatsapri, Khanitra, Karandhama, Avikait and Marutta. These were famous kings, especially Marutta who was a universal monarch. I have not been able to find anything which indicates where their kingdom was, yet it must have been somewhere in the Middle-land or North-West, because of Marutta's relations with Vrhaspati and Samvartta (M. Bh., Asvam -p iii-vi); the Middle-land here comprising the country as far east as Mithla and Magadha. In the second Section the only allusions to other parts of India are one to the river Vitasta in the Panjah (p. 438); same to an unknown town in South India (p. 412), and several to Kamarapa, the modern (Jauhāți în Assam; but the author's knowledge of Eastern India was so hazy that he treats Kamarupa as being easy of: access from the Middle-land (p. 581). Is it reasonable to draw any inference from the mental horizon here disclosed? It spross with the state of India in the third century A.D.

The geographical cantos 57 and 58 are no doubt special completations and may to a certain degree stand apart. They appear to aim at being comprehensive, and to enumerate all the countries, races and tribes till then known, whether ancient or medieval. This comprehensive character rather prevents the drawing of any large deficition of the conditions from them, yet two points may be noticed.

The Hunas are placed among the peoples in the north in canto as though the context is not very precise. The Huna in their using tions from the contines of China appear to have arrived to the not ladie about the beginning of the third contains. A.D. and the beginning of the third contains A.D. and the beginning of the third contains a but the White Huns, established a kingdom afternation.

Ores which was made through the north western passes in the middle of the fifth century (Mr. V. Smith's Karly History of India, pp. 272, 273). The allusion to the Huns therefore, with the position assigned to them in the north, in canto 58, is plainly earlier than their invasion, and is what a writer in the third century or the early part of the fourth century would have made.

In these two cantos Prāgjyotisa is placed in the east, and no mention is made of Kāmarūpa. Prāgjyotisa was the ancient kingdom that comprised nearly all the north and east of Bengal (p. 328); later on it dwindled and seems to have lingered and perished in the east of Bengal; and after that Kāmarūpa came into prominence in its stead. In the Mahā-bhārata and Rāmāyaṇa Prāgjyotisa alone is named; Kāmarūpa is never, I believe, mentioned there, and it occurs in later writings only. In the Second Section however Kāmarūpa is mentioned, and no allusion is made to Prāgjyotisa. This difference tells in favour of the antiquity of these cantos.

With regard to the Devi-māhātmya, if the comparison made above between it and the Mālati-mādhava is reasonable, it would follow that, since Bhavabhūti who wrote that play lived about the end of the seventh century A.D., this poem must be anterior. It would represent the incorporation of barbarous practices borrowed from the rude tribes of Central India into brahmanic doctrines, and might be assigned to the sixth or perhaps the fifth century.

From all these considerations it seems fair to draw the following conclusions. The Devi-māhātmya, the latest part, was certainly complete in the 9th contury and very probably in the 5th or 6th century A.D. The third and fifth parts, which constituted the original Purāns, were very probably in existence in the third century, and perhaps were earlier; and the first and second parts were composed between those two periods.

... Other matters of interest.

Certain other matters may be mentioned, which are of great

In the first part Jaimini, though a disciple of Vyāsa and a famous printed his Manti-process 18647), is yet made, when perpleted by the distribute the time of the Manti-blands in Vitan's own work the Maha-blands in thetraction, not from Vyden but from Markender ration a presumption that there was an intention to make Markand equal with, if not superior to, Vyana. Further, Markanders and not himself explain the questions but, declining with a transparent excuse, refers Jaimini to the Birds. The Birds, though said no double to be brahmans undergoing a transmigration, were inferior in editortion and fame to Jaimini, yet they were deemed fully capable of authoritatively answering the questions that puzzled him. It seems hard to avoid suspecting again in this construction of the story, that there was an intention to exalt the instruction given by the munic of the Vindhyas to equality with, if not superiority over, that given in Madhya-desa. It may be mentioned that according to certain legends Vaisampāyana's pupils were transformed into partridges (tittiri). in order to pick up the Black Yajns verses disgorged by one of their companions; but it does not seem reasonable to ascribe the introduce a tion of these Birds as dramatic persons in this Purana to any imitation of those legends, because the nature of the stories is wholly different, The use of the Birds seems rather to be the application of a class of ideas common in the animal-tales of folk-lore to religious teaching, and to be similar to the machinery employed by Bara in his story of Kādambari.

In the second part it is worthy of note that indulgence in spirituous liquor and in sensual enjoyments is viewed with little or no disapprobation in the story of Dattatreya; and meat and strong drink are mentioned as most acceptable offerings in the worship of Dattatreya (p. 106), as an incarnation of Vienu (p. 99). Meat are various kinds, including even hog's flesh, is declared to be most gratifying to the pitrs. Such food was not unknown in ancient times, for it is said that during a severe famine king Trianting supported Visvamitra's wife with the flesh of deer, wild pigs and buffaloes (Hari-V., 725-731).

A most extraordinary passage may be noticed in conclusion. It related of king Dama that, after taking vengeance on price Variant, "with Vapusmat's fiesh he offered the cakes to his land father, he feasted the britimens who were sprung from the Bilinears" (p. 683 with 679). Brahmans at the land became degraded, but here the position is several.

descendants of Rākṣasas were reckoned as brahmans. Such cannibalism is, I believe, unparalleled in Sanskrit, and it is almost incredible that there should have been brahmans of any kind whatever who would have participated in it. Eating human flesh was not unknown in ancient times (p. 427), yet a story is told in the Mahā-bhārata where Rākṣasas and even flesh eating Dasyus disdained the flesh of a true though degraded brahman (Sānti-p. clxxii. 6420-29). This story of king Dama would seem to imply that it is of real antiquity, and that the account of the dynasty in which he occurred, and which is the only dynasty described, must be a purāṇa in the full meaning of the term.

CONTENTS.

^
U	$\Lambda M$	rv.

Introduction.

Jaimini applied to Mārkandeya for instruction on fear questions. Mārkandeya referred him to four learned Birds, sons of Dropa and the Apsaras Vapu who was cursed by the rei Durvāsas to be a bird; and narrated the story of their birth, and of their education by Samika; and explained that they were four brähmans, who were so born, because cursed by their father Sukran for not offering their bodies as food to a famished bird.

The Birds' discourse on Jaimini's four questions.

Jaimini visited the Birds at the Vindhya Mts. and they answered his four questions thus:—Visque assumed bodily forms in order to accomplish good: Draupadi became the joint wife of the five Pandavas because they were all 6 emanations of Indra; Baladeva committed brahmanicide

7 during intoxication and expiated it by pilgrimage; and five Viáve Deväs, who, on seeing Viávamitra's brutality to king. Hariscandra, censured Viávamitra, incurred his curse thereby and were born as the five sons of Draupadi to die young and unmarried.

This story led the Birds at Jamini's request to marries the whole story of king Harisandra's sufferings and the whole story of king Harisandra's sufferings and ultimate beatitude; and the terrible light which resulted therefrom between Vasintha and Vidvamitra as gigantishinds.

The Birds' discourse on Jaimini's further questioner

Discourse on life, death and action.

Jaimini propounded further questions regarding comments of the formal life, but growth, death and the comment of action and the Birds unawered them by specific the instruction that a brahman Sumati, nick-named Jada; once gave to his father (cantos x—xliv).

69

71

Thus the Birds gave in Jada's words a description of it death, after-existences and certain hells; of human conception and birth, and the evils of all existence; of certain other 18 hells and the various terrible torments inflicted there; and 74 they narrated the story of king Vipascit's descent into hell,

14 with a discourse regarding actions and the specific punish- 76

15 ments for a long list of various sins, and of his deliverance 83 from hell together with other persons confined there.

Stories illustrating religious devotion (yoga).

The Birds, continuing Jada's discourse, broached the subject of yoga or religious devotion, but prefaced it with a long narrative (cautos xvi to xliv). A brāhman Māṇḍavya was saved from a curse by his devoted wife, who stopped the rising

17 of the sun and gained a boon from Atri's wife Anasūyā; the gods in consequence blessed Anasūyā, and Brahmā, Viṣṇu and Sivawere born as her three sons Soma, Dattātreya and Durvā-

18 sas; Dattātreya indulged in sensual pleasures; Arjuna Kār-101 tavīrya, however, being advised by his minister Garga to propitiate Dattātreya, bacause Dattātreya (being an incanation of Viṣṇu) had once saved the gods from the demons,

19 did so and by Dattatreya's blessing reigned gloriously. 106
This led on to the story of Alarka, which is used to convey political, religious and social instruction (cantos xx to xliv).

Alarka's birth and education.

King Satrujit's son Rtadhvaja lived in intimate friendahip with two Naga princes; they told their father Asvatars—how Rtadhvaja had succoured the brahman Galava with the help of a wondrous horse named Kuvalaya, and 113 descending to Patala, had killed the demon Patala-ketu there, and had rescoued and married the Gandhawa princess Madaless, and was famed as Khvalayayaya and also how a 121

Charo.

28 Kevalayadva's death. King Advators, by projetiating to research then, gained perfect skill in poetry and master (which are described), and by propitiating Siva received

24 Madālasā restored to life; he invited Ruvalayāsva to 25 Patala and gave Madalasa back to him. Kuvalayasva had 26 a son by her, and she prattled to the infant; they had the three other sons and she named the youngest Alarka.

Political, religious and social instruction.

Then followed an exposition of political, religious and social 146 doctrine in the guise of instruction given by Maddlasa to Alarka. She instructed him in the duties and conduct of

28 of a king: in the duties of the four eastes and of a brah- 148

29 man's life; in the general duties of a grhastha and various 151

30 religious matters; in the duties of a grhastha in detail; 155

31 in the sräddha ceremonies; in the performance of the Par- 167

32 vans Sraddha and the persons to be excluded; in the pare 161 ticular foods, periods, sites and ordinances to be observed in

33 the araddha: in the Voluntary araddhas and their benefits 100,

34 and proper occasions; in the rules of Virtuous Custom, 170

35 generally and with much detail; about diet, purification, 180 conduct, hely days and various religious ceremonies.

Exposition of religious devotion (yoga).

36 Rtadhvaja then resigned his kingdom to Alarka and de- 186. 87 parted to the forest. Alarka lived in pleasure, but, being reduced to great straits by his brother and the king of 38 Kāši, sought relief from Dattātreya. Dattātreya spoka 181 about the soul and, on Alarka's asking about religious devotion.

89 (yogs), expounded the method, conditions and signs of its 11

40 proper performance; the attendant ailments and the stegres 19

41 which lead to final emancipation from existence; the way in which a yogi should live, beg, eat and reach has send as

43 the composition, meaning and efficacy of the word

48 ill omens and the signification; and the season the the majortance of yogs. Alarka then ralinguished hingdon, but his brother, gled at Marka's conversion, de-213 cliped it and departed. Alarka gave it to his son and departed to the forest. This ends Jada's exposition.

Page.

The Birds' discourse on Jaimini's further questions. Discourse on Oreation.

Jaimini put further questions, and the Birds answered 217 them by repeating what Markandeya had taught Kraustuki.

This discourse runs on to the end of the Purana.

Märkandeya, after extelling this Purana, described the course of creation from Brahmä through Pradhana, &c., and

46 the mundane egg; he discoursed about Brahma, and ex- 224

plained divine and human time and the four ages. He de- 228 scribed the creation of the earth and all it contains; the 232 gods, demons pitrs, mankind, &c., and the positions assign-

40 ed them; the origin of the primeval human race and its 237 social and moral evolution; the birth of the nine Sages, 246 Rudra, Manu Sväyambhuva and his descendants, Daksa and his offspring; A-dharma and his progeny, especially the

51 goldin Duhaha and his powers, whose brood of goldins and 257

hags are named with their particular functions; the crea-268 tion of the Rudras; and the wives and offspring of the rais and pitrs.

Account of the Manue.

Mārkandeya next discoursed of the Manus and man-271 Yantaras. He teld of the Arst Manu, Svāyambhuva, and his descendants who peopled the seven Continents. Jambulevins was occupied by Agnidhra, and his descendant Bharata gave his name to India. This introduced the subject of his party sphy.

Geography.

Markandeya described the earth and its continents, espo- 275 shells Jacaba dvins and also Mount Meru, first briefly, and a shan with full same of neighbouring forms, lakes and 218 thousands and the course of the Campas Make by and on 286

the earth. He mentioned the nine divisions of Sharate, and then dealt with India in detail; marning its serving 18 mountain ranges and its scattered hills; and its rivers, distinguishing them according to their sources, in the Himalays, the Paripatra, the Vindhya, the Rkes, the Sahya, 200 the Malaya, the Mahemira and the Suktimat ranges, 308 He named the various peoples inhabiting India and its 307 confines, according as they dwelt in the Middle Land (Madhya-desa), in the north-west, outside northwards, 811 in the north, in the east, in the south, in the west, 326 around the Vindhya mountains and beneath the Himälayas. 340 58 Next representing India as resting upon Visua in the form 348 of a tortoise, Markandeya named the various peoples (with the corresponding lunar constellations) as they were dis- 340 tributed over the middle of the tortoise's hody, over its 358 face, its right fore-foot, its right flank, its right hind-fact, 870 its tail, its left hind-foot, its left flank and its left fore-foot; 384 and he added some astrological, religious and political 59 comments. He then described the countries Bhadridya, 387 60 Ketumala, the Northern Kurus, Kimpurusa, Hari-vares, 800 Havrta, Kamyaka, and Hiranmaya.

Account of the Manua (resumed).

61 Markandeva related the birth of the second Manu. A 391 brahman visited Hinavest and mee an Apsaras Varathint;

62 a Gaudharva Kali by personating him gained her affection; 309

68 and she bore a son Svarocis. Svarocis delivered a maiden 401

64 Manorama from a curse and married her, and also rescued 468

65 her two girl-companions and married them; after living 408 of long in heedless pleasure with them, he had three some 415 whom he established in separate kingdoms by the know ledge called Padmini; and he had by a forest godden.

67 another son Dyntimat who became the assent Main, 415

68 Svarocies; and his period is noticed. The alliston to the 41 knowledge Paramet introduced a discourse on its supplication the Nichis.

jo.	P.	168
*	Continuing, Markandoya related how king Uttama	419 banished his queen for had temper, and helped a brahman to find his ill-tempered wife who had been carried off; he was rebuked by a rai for his own conduct; he recovered the	425 brāhman's wife, whose bad temper a Rākṣasa consumed.
	A Naga king had taken the queen to Pātāla, and she was	129 hidden; the brahman changed her nature and the Rakeasa restored her to king Uttama; she bore a son, who became 78	the third Manu, Auttama, and his period is noticed.	430
74	Mārknņģeya related how king Svarāşţra when driven	438 from his kingdom, met his deceased queen, and had a son who became the fourth Manu, Tämasa; his period is noticed.
75	The rei Rtavão made the constellation Revati fall; a maiden	443 was born therefrom; she married king Durgama and bore a son, who became the fifth Manu. Raivata; his period is 76	noticed. Cākṣuṣa, being changed when an infant by a hag,	149 became king Vikränta's son, but turned an ascetic and became the sixth Manu, Cākṣuṣa; his period is noticed.
77		455
	married Tvastr's daughter Sañjñā and had two sons Vaivasvata and Yama; Sañjñā quitted him, leaving her Shadow
78	behind, because his splendour was excessive; Tvaştr pared	458 his splendour down while the gods hymned the Sun; the Sun regained Sanjua; he had by the Shadow a son who will be the eighth Manu, Savarni. Vaivasvata is the seventh and present 80	Manu; his period is noticed. The future period of Savarni	463 with its rais, gods, &c., is prophesied.
	The Devi-māhātmya.
81	The mention of Savarni introduced the Devi-mahatmya.	460

The mention of Sāvarni introduced the Devi-māhātmya. 461 Mārkandeya related that king Suratha, being ousted from his kingdom, met a vaisya driven from his family, and both consulted a rai about their longings for home; the rai ascribed their relatings to the goddess Mahā-māyā (Great Illusion) and Maha when she was lauded by Brahmā, Viena de demons Mahu and Kaitabha.

Charge.

- The rei then recited her exploits. Here begins the Dock mahatinya properly. The demons under Mahita vanquished the gods, and the godden was formed as Candika (Am-
- 88 bika) out of their special energies combined; she began a 478 great battle and destroyed the demons, all the demon chiefs
- 84 and finally Mahisa himself. The gods praised her in a 482 hymn, and she promised to befriend them always. Again the gods were vanquished by the demons Sumbha and Nisumbha, and invoked her; she appeared, and Sumbha
- 86 wanted to marry her but she declined; he sent an army 497 and she destroyed it; he sent another with Canda and Munda;
- 87 the goldess Käli destroyed them and Candika gave her the 409
- 88 combined namo Camunda; Sumbha sent all his armies; 501
- 89 Candika killed the chief Raktavija, then Nisumbha in spite 508
- 90 of Sumbha's aid, and many demons, and finally Sumbha 509
- 91 himself; whereat the universe was filled with joy. The 511 gods praised her in a hyunn and she promised to deliver them
- 92 always. She descanted on the merits of this poem. The 519 gods regained their supremacy; and she is extelled. Here ends the Devi-mahatmys properly.
- 93 After hearing this poem king Suratha worshipped Candi- 522 ka, and she promised he should be the eighth Manu, Saverpi.

Account of the Manus (resumed).

- Märkandeya, continuing, mentioned the other future 524 Manus, the ninth, tenth, eleventh and twelth named Sävarpa,
- 95 and the thirteenth named Raucya; and their periods. He 526 narrated the story of Raucya. A prajapati Ruei was urged?
- 98 by the Pitrs to marry; he propitiated Brahma and praised 139
- 97 the Pitrs in a hymn; they appeared and promised him a 584
- 98 wife and extelled his hymn; he married an Apsaras and had
- 99 a son who will be the thirteenth Manu Raucya. Santi, the disciple of an irasoible rei Bhūti, finding the sacred fits
- 100 tinguished, offered a hymn to Agui. Agui restored the fire 54 and promised to Bhāti a son who should be the forestate.

Massis, Blantyn. Bhautys's period is noticed. This secount

Commencement of the Genealogies.

201 At Kraustuki's request Märkandeya began the genealo- 550 gies. Brahmā created Daksa, from whom came Mārtanda, the Sun. Then mentioning that Brahmā was born from the mundane egg, and produced the lokas (worlds), and next the four Vedas with their merits—Mārkandeya diverged into a laudation of the Sun.

The majesty of the Sun.

102 . The gods and the Vedas are declared to be manifesta- 553 103 tions of the Sun. The Sun's glory was at first too great, 556 and Brahma with a hymn induced him to contract it 104 and then finished the creation. Marici's son Kasyapa 558 begot the gods, demons, mankind, &c. The demons overcame the gods and Aditi sought help of the Sun in a 105 hymn. He became her son as Martanda and destroy- 563 108 ed the demons. The story of the Sun and his wife San- 566 jna (as told in cantos lxxvii and lxxviii) is re-told here with more detail regarding the Shadow-Sañjña, the curse on 107 Yama, the paring down of the Sun's splendour, the hymns 572 108 offered to the Sun, and the Sun's offspring and the sta- 574 tions alloted them. Forther Märkandeya related that king Rajya-vardhana 577 ... when old resolved to resign the kingdom, but his people in 146 grief propitiated the Sun, and the Sun granted him great 583 length of life; the king similarly obtained the same boon for them. This story is extolled.

The Genealogics resumed.

Markandeya mentioned Manu Vaivasvata's given sone 587
Lin and Re-Budyumme, Purdravas, &c. Manu's son Pusadhra 590 killed a hishman's cow sid seings cursed became a sudra.
Lin Fartners descendants were mentioned.

Distriction Nathaga marrieds vaisya maiden wilfelly.

	LANCE FOR
Carro.	1
114 and became a vaisya; their son Bhanandana conquered the earth, but Nabhaga declined to reign. Then Nabhaga	ود تربیعات دارا دربیعات درا wife explained that she was not really a vaisya, but that ner father was a king who became a vaisya under a rai's curre	4.3
115 with a promise of recovery, and that she was a princess and	OT.
Lad become a vaiáca under Agastya's curse.	1 17
Rhanandana became king. His son Vatsapri rescued	606
neincoca Sunanda from Patala after killing a demon king	, , ,
117 who had a magic club, and married her. His son was	OXV
Desmin and Pransu's son Prainti. Prajatic son Maan	•
tra was beneticent; his brothers ministers practised magic	3 ~ ·
118 to dethrone him but destroyed themselves; Khunitra re	- 010
110 signed the kingdom in grief and went to the forcet. In	n ork
Venne performed sacrifices for the parvests. His sur	u
Tire and grandson Vivinisa. Vivinisa's son Khaning	- OTA
a little benting med two door eager to be sacrificed, sur	u
121 by Indra's favour obtained a son Balasya Balasya was calle	0 128
Transitions because of a fanciful victory.
122 His son Aviket married many princesses and carried of	700
123 princess Vaisalini at her svayamvara the suitor king	3 020 and contured him, but she refused them su	1 5
and Remarklance required Aviksit, but Aviksit retused to marr	A OOF of the series of the disconditure; she turned to austerial
125 and obtained an assurance from the gods: Avikait's mother	or out attained a promise from him to beget a sou	1:
to the bar regard the princess from a denion at	IC DAY
the gody: she proved to be a Gandnarva maiden at	10 020
the Candharva world; she bure in the Candharva world; she bure as	)U
Aviket married her had a vike treturned but refused the kingdo	m 044;
of his disconfiture. Marutta became king, and w	an una
" and managed a prest sacrificer, and meral penetrate	W
The Nagas gave great trouble, and ne
A Alam but Avikait interposed in favour or the rings	1 and a lattle was averted by the reis, and the Nagas made reput	. 07
Manufia's wives are named.	147
His son Narisyanta enriched the brahmans permaatis
NATE TO A ME

PAGE.

Olayro:

Datarna princess, and defeated the suitor kings, who, in vic-

134 lation of marriage laws, opposed him. Dama became king. 674 Narisyanta was murdered in the forest by Vapusmat one of 195 those kings. Dama bewailed, and vowed vengeance against 678

186 the murderer; he slew Vapusmat and celebrated his father's 680 obsequies with Vapusmat's flesh and blood.

Conclusion.

187 The Birds closed their long repetition of Mārkaņdeya's 684 instruction to Kraustuki, with an encomium on the Purāņas and this Purāṇa in particular. Jaimini thanked them.

ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS.

- P. 2, 1. 23, after sacred add customs.
- P. 20, l. 19, for Sáma reed Sáman. l. 26, for nára read nárá.
- P. 25, 1. 6, dele -phul.
- P. 26, l. 21, for Nsoka read Asoka.
- P. 27, 1, 25, for Peninsular read Peninsula.
- P. 29, l. 18, udd unless it is the same as the bird 'putra-priya' which was so named because its note resembled putra putra,' Ramáy, Ayodh.-k. (Ed Gorr.) ev. 11, (Ed. Born.) xevi. 12.
- P. 29, l. 24, for biween read between.
- P. 29, I. 33, add See Raghu-V., vi 36.
- P. 31, l. 8, for families read families.

Cantos VII, VIII & IX for Haris-Candra road Hariscandra.

- P. 42, l. 15, for back read bark.
- P. 44, l. 11, for compassionate read passionate.
- P. 55. l. 13, for Bráhman read Brahman.
  l. 17, for Brahman read the Prajápata.
- P. 65, l. 29, for the read thee
  P. 89, l. 33, for not therefore long read therefore; dele not.
- P. 93, l. 15, for atceters read et ceters.
- P. 99, 1. 6, for Dattatreya read Dattatreya.
- P. 100, 1. 12, for yogi read yogi.
- P. 102, l. 85, for Bala khilyas road Valakhilyas.
- PP. 100-107, passim for Lakshmi read Lakshmi.
- P. 108, heading, for XX road XIX.
- P. 109, l. 1-3 read instead And the doctrine of religious devotion was indeed declared by Dattatreys to that high-souled royal rishi Alarka who was faithful to his father.
- P. 118, L 2, for exceedingly read exceedingly.

- P. 118, 1. 5, for him, the large thighed hero, the chief of his race, read Tumburu the spiritual preceptor of her family.
  - 1. 7, for accepted her read arrived.
  - note*, cancel the note and substitute See canto exxvii,
- P. 122, l. 15, dele funeral:
- P. 124, last line, for son and daughter read son's wife.
- P. 125, l. 38, after anxiety add"
- P. 133, L 30, after inspirer add "
- P. 186, l. 12, for atru-jit's read S'atru-jit's.
- P. 143, l. 14, for religion read righteousness.
- P. 159, l. 34, for begun read begin.
- P. 178, bottom, for Kámatás read Kámatas.
- P. 174, l. 14, for carry read use.
  - l. 15, for are carrying read have used.
- P. 177, l. 20, read instead the wise man should bathe, keeping his clothes on; and so also after resorting to a place where bodies are burnt.
- P. 179, l. 34, for guru read gurus.
- P. 181, l. 2, for holidoys read holidays.
- P. 182, l. 3, for screened by many read concealed within many things.
  - P. 197, L 34, for practice read practise.
- P. 201, L. 7, for Gandarvas read Gandharvas.
- P. 236, 1. 8, for aptor read aptor.
- P. 289, L. 8, for is read are.
- P. 241, l. 21, add The Bombay edition reads instead "the kharvataka and the drami."
  - P. 242, l. 1, to varma-vat add note The Bombay edition reads "kharvata" instead.
    - 1. 21, add The Bombay edition reads "jana" instead of "jala."
    - 1, 88, add The Bombay edition reads." drami" instead.
  - P. 245, l. 27, for mentioused read mentioned.
  - P. 260, L 21, for Dhunnavati read Dhumnavati.

P. 288, 1. 28, dele the words from In a list to Nagarat.

P. 298, 1. 3, for Vritra-ghni read Vritra-ghni.

P. 800, 1. 40 for Silaveti read Silaveti.

P. 382, l. 4, add May this name be identified with the town Kodungalür (the modern Cranganors) north of Cochin? It is a place of sanctity, and was formerly an important town and harbour.

P. 366, l. 6, add See p. 445.

P 368, 1. 13, for Badavá read Badavá.

P. 403, l. 12, for mightly read mighty.

P. 445, 1. 35, add and p 365.

P. 469, l. 9, for universal read universal.

P. 486, l. 25, for my read may.

P. 581, l. 27, for auguents read unquents.

P. 636, last line, for om read from.

THE

MARKANDEYA PURANA.

OMI REVERENCE TO THE ADOBABLE VISHNU!

May Vishnu's lotas-feet, which power have
To dissipate the woss wrought by the fear
Of existence, and which are lauded high
By ascetics, assidnons, whose minds
From all things else are rapt—may those same feet,
Whose steps the earth, the sky, and heaven o'erpassed,
To sight appearing, purify your souls!

May He protect you, who is skilled to save

In every kind of sin impure; whose form

Within the bosom of the sea of milk

Upon the hooded snake reclines; sad at

Whose touch the sea grows mountainous, its spray

Up-tossing from its waters by his breath

Disturbed, and into seeming dancing breaks!

CANTO I.

The Care on Vapu.

Jaimini applies to Markandeys for instruction regardle difficulties in the Mahibhdrata-Mürkandeys references learned Birds, the some of Driven and particle their Maring adored Nariyans, and Nans the best of men, the goods.

The illustrious Jaimini, the disciple of Vyasa, interrogated the great Muni Markandeya, who was engaged in the performance of austerities and the study of the Veda.

"Sir! the high-souled Vyssa related the story of the Mahabharata, which is replete with splendid spotless collections of various Sastras, which is characterized by accuracy regarding the different classes, is embellished with beautiful words, and contains complete knowledge of prima facie assertions, and established conclusions. As Vishnu is chief among the gods, as the brahman chief among men, and as the crest-jewel chief

5 among all decorations, as the axe* is the best among weapons, as the mind best among the organs, so in this world is the 6 Mahabharata the best among all the Sastras. Here are described both Wealth and Virtue, Love, and Final emancipation from transmigration; these have both reciprocal and peculiar consequences. It is the best Charma-sastra, it is the most eminent Artha-sastra; it too is the forement Kama-sastra, as eminent Artha-sastra; it too is the foremost Kama-sastra, as well as the noblest Moksha-sastra. It has been declared, Sir, by Veda-Vyasa the wise, to be the authority for the sacred and maxime of the laws of the four periods of a brahman's life. For this Mahá-sastra has been so constructed, dear Sir, by Vyása the noble in deeds, that although beset with 40 difficulties it is not overthrown by them. The earth has been freed from the dust of passion by the stream of Vyása's words, which has descended from the mountain of the Veda.

11 and has ewept away the trees of bad reasoning. Therefore have I come to thee, Sir, being desirous to know truly the story of Vyasa, in which melodious sounds are the geese, the 12 noble story is the splendid lotus, the words are the expanse of water, and the Vedas are the great take this precious.

WEST CONTRACTOR

consider. World, although deviated qualities can consider. And why was Drupada's daughter Krist manon wife of the five sons of Pandu? for on this pa

It is feel great perplexity. Why did the mighty believed 16 mage? And how was it that the unmarried heroic high-souled sons of Draupadi, whose protector was Pandu, were slain,

17 if they had no protector? Deign to recount all this to me the at length; for sages like thee are ever the instructors of the ignorant."

18 Having thus heard, his speech, the great Muni Markandeya, devoid of the eighteen defects, began to speak.

Markandeya spoke.

19 "The time for my engaging in religious rites has now arrived, most virtuens Muni! and this is not entermed the senson.

20 for a long discourse. But I will now tell thee, O Jainini, of those birds who will speak to thee and so resolve thy 21 doubts. They are Pingáksha and Vibodhs, Snpatrs, and Samukha, the sons of Droya, the noblest of birds, versed in the principles of philosophy, and meditators on the Sastrac.

22 Their mind is unclouded in the knowledge of the meaning of the Veda and Sastras. They dwell in a cave of the Vindhymmountains, visit and question them."

23 Then, thus addressed by the wise Markandeya, replied the Muni pre-eminent, his eyes wide open with astonishment.

Jaimini spoke.

24 "Very wonderful is this, O brahman! that those birds have gained knowledge most difficult to be acquired, as if have

The 18 defects are said, in a translation began by the late Rev. Lat.

Banerjea, to be these—pulpitation, fear, thickness in speech, isoliticalized speaking through the nose, discordancy, want of emotion, disconnected roughness, hoarseness, high pitch, inaccuracy in promunciation, pursuit the want of cadence, sing-song, shaking the head, weakness of cadence, sing-song, shaking the head, weakness of cadence.

The best of the second of the box is in that there is the box is in that there is the box is in that there is selled the children of throws? And who was the financia through the box is the box is the box in th

Márkandeya spoke.

Marketen attentively to what happened of yore in Nandana, surthe meeting of Indra and the Apsarases and Narada.

Narada saw Indra the king of the gods in Nandana, surrounded by a band of those wanton maidens, with eyes fastenthe on their faces. Sac'i's lord, immediately he was seen by that best of Rishis, rose up, and respectfully gave him his own seat. Those keavenly maidens, on seeing him, the slayer of Bala and Vritra, rise up, prostrated themselves before the Theoremshi and stood reverently bending. He then, worshipped by them, duly greeted Indra, when he had seated himself, and conversed pleasantly with him.

"Then in the course of their talk, Indra said to the great Muni—Declare, which of these dancers pleases thee most. Is it Rambhá, or Karkasá, or Urvasí, Tilottamá, Chritáo'i, or Menaká? or whichever delights thee.' Nárada, best of dvijas, hearing this speech of Indra, pondered and then addressed the reverently bending Apsarases:—She, of you all here present, who thinks herself pre-eminent in beauty, nobility and good qualities, let her dance before me. There is indeed no success in dancing for one who is destitute of good qualities and beauty. Good dancing implies graceful comportment:
other dancing is vexation.'

Markandeya spoka.

And immediately on that speech, each one of those bowing ones thus exclaimed—'I excel in good qualities; not you, nor the lord Indra seeing their agitation said, 'Let the Munibs saled, he will say which of you excela in good qualities.'

What Marada, sought by those followers of Indra's will the mid, hear that from the O Jamiesi Site among you.

The state of the period of the most notify later Provided the second of the second of ## Márkandeya spoka.

- 41 "Having heard that his sentence, they all exclaimed, with trembling necks, 'this is impossible for us!'
- 42 "Among them an Apsures named Vapu, confident of parturbing the Muni, replied, I will follow where the Muni dwells:
- 43 now will I make that tamer of his body, who has roked the horses of his organs, but a poor charioteer whose reins
- 44 drop before the weapons of love. Whether it be Brahma, or Janardana or the purple S'isa, his heart will I now pierce with the arrow of love.'
- 45 "Having thus spoken Vapu departed then to the Snowy mountain to the Muni's hermitage, where the beasts of prey
- 46 were quelled by the might of his austerities. Stopping at the distance of a call from where the great Muni is scated,
- 47 the lovely Apsaras sang the curkoo's melody. Hearing the strains of her song, the Muni astonished in mind went
- 48 to where sits that heanteons-faced monden. On socing her, beautiful in every limb, the Muni, summoning his resolution, was filled with anger and resolution, knowing
- 49 that she had come to perturb him. Then the great Rishl, the performer of mighty austerities, promunced this sentence.
- 50 Since thou hast come here, O maiden! intoxicated with pride, to cause me pain by obstructing my austerities, which are ac-
- 51 complished with difficulty, O Apsaras, therefore shalt thou, polluted by my wrath, be born in the fooliab race of birds
- 52 for the space of sixteen years, losing thine own form, and taking the form of a bird; and four sons shall be keen to
- 63 thee, O vilest of Apsarases; and without having gained affection among them, absolved from guilt by dying in the field of battle, thou shalt regain thy dwelling in the sky. Nevermake any reply.
- 56 The Brahman, red-cyed with anger, having pronounced the concepts were transling, alterdoned the saith, whose waves true pery translicus, and departed to the heavenly Ganges whose stream consists of a multitude of renowned qualities."

CANTO II.

The Birth of the Sparrows.

The story of the Birds continued—Kandhara, king of the birds killed a Rákhasa Vidyud-rúpa for killing his brother, and, marrying the Rákhasa's wife, had a daughter by her named Túrkshí who was the Apsaras Vapu—She married Drona—When pregnant by him she was killed at the battle of the Kauravas and Pándaras, and there laid four eggs from which the four Birds were born—The Birds were nourished by the Muni S'amika.

Márkaudeya spoke.

- 1 The king of the birds, Garnda by name, was the son of
- 2 Arishtanemi: Garuda's son was renowned as Sampáti: and his sou was Supárśva, heroic, mighty as Váyu: Supárśva's son
- 3 was Kunti; Kunti's son was Pralolupa. And he had two sons Kanka and Kandhara.
- 4 On the top of Kailása, Kanka saw the Rákshasa famed as Vidyud-rúpa, whose eyes were like a lotus leaf, a follower
- 5 of Kuvera, who was busied in a banquet, clad with strings of bright garlands, sitting in company with his wife on a beau-
- 6 tiful clean rocky scat. Then the Rákshasa, immediately he was seen by Kanka, filled with anger, said, "Wherefore hast
- 7t thou come hither, O vilest of the egg-born? Why hast thou approached me when I am in company with my wife? Such is not the rule of the wise in matters that must be accomplished in secret."

Kanka spoke.

"This mountain is common both to you and me and to other creatures also; what special ownership then cannot thou. Sir. have here?"

Markandaya spoka

- The Barshass with his sword slew Kanka, while he was thus speaking, who fell defiled with the streaming blood, quivering and senseless.
- 10 Having heard that Kanka was sinin, Kandhara the king of the birds, hewildered with anger, resolved speedily to slay
- 11 Vidyud-rapa. Inaving gone to the mountain-top, where Kanka lay slain, the king of the birds, his eyes swellen with anger and resentment, and sighing like the king of the Nigas.
- 12 performed the Sankalana for his older brother. Where sits the slayer of his brother, there he went, rocking the lofty
- 13 mountains with the nughty wind from his wings. He, with blood-red eyes, overtopping the mountains, and foreibly burling down masses of clouds with his wings, used to destroy
- 14 his enemies suddonly. There he saw that demon, whose thoughts were intent on drinking, whose face and eyes were of a copperish colour, and who was sested on a golden couch,
- 15 whose crest was covered with strings of garlands, who was adorned with yellow sandal, whose face was very horrible with teeth that re-embled the inside of the Ketzki leaf.
- 16 And he saw, seated on the Rakshasa's left thigh his long-syed wife, named Madanika, whose voice was soft as the encloses.
- 17 Then Kandhara, whose mind was filled with wrath, addressed that immate of the cave, "O thou of atterly evil soul! come
- 18 forth and tight with me. Since there hast mardered my trustful elder brother, therefore I will bring thee, while en-
- 19 grossed in drunkenness, down to Yama's abide. To-day, shain by me, shalt thou go to all those hells that are the abides of the murderers of those who trust in them, and of the murderers of women and children."

Márkapdeys spoke.

- Addressed even thus by the king of the birds in his wife's presence, the Rakshasa, filled with anger, then answered the 21 bird. "If thy brother has been slain, then have I displayed
- 21 bird. "If thy brother has been stain, then have I managed my valour; thee, too, to-day, will I slay with this want.

West Stay's member, thou must not move here alive, O

Thus he spoke and seized his bright sword that resembled mass of collyrium. Then took place is marvellous battle between the king of the birds and Kuvera's warrior, such as between Garuda and Indra. Then the Rakshasa, in anger swiftly hurling his sword, black as charcoal, flung it against the king of the birds. And then the king of the birds, slightly springing up from the ground, saized it with his beak, as 26 Garuda seizes a serpent; and the egg-born one broke it with his beak and talons, and shook it. Thereupon, the sword 27 being broken, they began to fight with their arms. Then the Rakshasa, being attacked in the breast by the king of the birds, was speedily deprived of arms, feet, hands and head.

38 When he was killed, his wife besonght protection of the spoind: somewhat fearful, she said, "I am thy wife." That noblest of birds, taking her, returned to his abode, having obtained a recompense for his brother by the slaughter of so Vidyud-rupa. And she, the daughter of Menaká, with beautiful eyelrows, capable of assuming forms at pleasure, on reaching the house of Kandhara, took a form resembling Garusta da's. Of her, he then begat a daughter named Tárkshí, (namely Vapu the leveliest of the Apsarases, who was consumed by the fire of the Muni's curse). Then the bird gave her the name Tárkshí.

32 And Mandapála had four sons of boundless intellect, Jari33 tari the eldest and Drona the youngest, best of dvijas. The youngest of them, righteous in soul, thoroughly read in the Yedas and Vedángas, married her the beauteous Tárkshi, With the consent of Kandhara. And after a while Tárkshi conceived; when she had gone seven fortnights in her pregbetween the Kurus and Paudavas was then being fought, and, in consequence of her action being predestined, she entered into the battle. There, then, she beheld the contest between Bhagalatta and Arjuna. The sky was think filled with arrows, if with locusts. Discharged from the bow of Arjuna an

HERE OF REAL PROPERTY.

- 38 the skin of her belly. Her belly being pierced four moon-like oggs fell on the ground as if on a heap of coulds, from the
- 39 fact that their allotted period of life was not ended. At the same time that they fell, fell the great bell, the cord of which was cut by an arrow, from the noble elephant Supratike.
- 40 It reached the ground evenly all around, cutting into the surface of the ground, and covering the eggs of the bird which lay upon flesh.
- 41 And after king Bhagadatta, ruler of men, was slain, the fight between the armies of the Kures and Pandavas went on
- 42 many days. At the end of the battle, when Dharma's son Yudhishthira approached the son of Santanu to hear the high-
- 43 souled Bhishma proclaiming the entire lews, a sage usmed Samika came to the spot where, O best of dvijas, by the eggs
- 44 within the bell. There he heard the voice of the little birds chirping, whose voices were inarticulate on account of their
- 45 infancy, although they had transcendant knowledge. Then the Rishi, accompanied by his desciples, bited up the bell and saw with surpress the young motheries, and fatherless nirds.
- 46 The vonerable Main Sanika, having so seen them on the ground there, filled with astonishment, addressed his acterdant defins.
- 47 "Well was it said by the cheef of the dvijas, Usaras himself, the regulat of the planet Venus, when he saw the army of 48 the Daityas interest on sleeing, hard-proceed by the gods. "You - must not go, tren ye back; why run ye away, ye feeble ones?

  Abandoning valence and glosy, where have ye gone? Ye shall
- 49 not perish. Whether one perishes or whether one fights, one possesses life as long as God originally crosted, not as
- 50 long as one's moud desires. Men pecish, some in their homes, some in flight; so, toe, do they meet their death when
- 51 cating food and drinking water. So, too, others, when sporting themselves, scatted in the chariot of Love, free from sickness, their bodies unnicreed by arrows, fall into the nower
- 52 of the King of the departed. Others, when intent on ansterities, are led off by the servants of the King of the departed:

55 immortality. Of yore, Indra hurled his thunderbolt against Sambara, yet that demon, though pierced thereby to the heart, 54 did not perish. By that very thunderbolt, indeed, and by the same Indra, when their time was come, the Dánavas 65 were slain, the Daityas forthwith perished. Perceiving this, ye should not fear: return ye.' Then those Daityas, aban56 doning the fear of death, turned back. This speech of Usanas is proved true by these most noble birds, which even in the superhuman battle did not meet with destruction.

57 Whence comes the laying of the eggs, O brahmans? Whence comes the even full of the bell? And how comes it that the 58 ground is covered with flesh, fat. and blood? Certainly these must be some brahmans; they are not ordinary birds. The favour of destiny shows great good-fortune in the world."

Having spoken thus he looked at them and spoke again, "Return, go to the hermitage, taking the young birds with you.

60 Where these egg-horn may have no fear of cat, or rat, of 61 hawk or ichneumon, there let the birds be placed. O dvijas, what is the use of great care? All creatures are destroyed or preserved by their own actions, as have been these young

62 birds. Nevertheless men must exert themselves in all matters; he who does a manly act gains commendation from us, the good."

63 Thus urged by that illustrious Muni, those young Munis, taking those birds, went then to their own hermitage, delightful to ascetics, where clusters of bees settled on the boughs of

64 the trees. And he, the noblest of dvijas, gathering wild roots, flowers, fruits, grasses, such as his mind loved, perform-

65 ed the various religious ceremonies ordained by the Veda to all the deities, to Vishnu, Rudra, and the Creator, to Indra, Yama, and Agni, to Varuna, to Vrihaspati and Kuvera, and also to Vayu, to Dhátri and Vidhátri. THE TO THE RESIDERA MOUNTAIN

CANTO III.

The Visit to the Vindhya Mountain.

The Story of the Birds continued—The Birds, when full-group; were endowed with speech, and explained that wender to the Music Samika—They were the four sons of a Rishi Sukrisha—Indee, appeared to the Rishi in the form of an aged bird, and asked for human flesh—The Rishi ardered his four sons to sucrifice themselves—They refused, and he cursed them to be burn in the brute creation, but, moved with compassion at their entreaty, bestoned on them perfect knowledge—Hence they were born as hirds.

Markandeya spoke.

- Thus he, the most virtuous Muni, O princely brahman, nourished them day by day with food and water, and in safety.
- 2 After a month they resorted to the sun's chariot-road, being gazed at by the Munis' soes, whose eyes were tremulous
- 3 with currosity. After seeing the earth, with its cities, and
- with its ocean and rable rivers, which appeared of the size 4 of a chariot wheel, they returned to the hermitage. The
  - spirited birds were wearied in their souls with their toil: and their knowledge was developed there through these energy.
- 5 They all performed the reverential circumandulation around the Rishi, who was expending the truths of the law in compassion for his disciples, and respectfully saluted his feet
- 6 and said, 6 We have been delivered by thee, O Muni! from dreadful death; then hast given us shelter, feed, and water;
- 7 thou art our father and spiritual guide. Our mother died, when we were still in the womb; nor have we been nourished by a father: thou, by whom we were preserved when young.
- 8 hast given us life. Thou, of perfect splendour on the earth, lifting high up the elephant's bell, didst parge away eril
- 9 from us who were withering like worms. 'How may these strength-less ones grow? When shall I see them flying in the sky? When shall I see them alighting on a tree of the
- 10 earth, settling within the trees? When shall my natural colour be obliterated by the dust which the wind from their thus thinking, didst nourish us; now we, those very birds, are grown up and have become wise, what ought we to do?"

grown up and have become wise, what ought we to do?"

Having clearly heard this their perfectly articulated speech, the Rishi, surrounded by all his disciples, and accompanied by his son S'ringin, being full of eager curiosity, and covered with horripilation as with a garment, said, "Tell me truly tho the cause of your power of speech. Through whose curse did you incur this wondrous transformation both in form and speech? Deign here to tell me that."

The birds spoke.

- 15 "There was of yore a most virtuous Muni named Vipulasvat.
- 16 To him were born two sons Sukrisha and Tumburu. We are the four sons of soul-subdued Sukrisha; to that Risbi we were ever submissive in reverence, religious practices and fuith.
- 17 As he desired, who was diligent in the performance of austerities, and who constantly kept his organs under control,
- 18 we at once produced fuel, flowers and everything else, and whatever was needed for sustenance.
- 19 "Now while he and we thus dwelt in the forest, there came the king of the gods in the appearance of a bird, mighty in size, with broken wings, stricken with age, with eyes of a 20 copperish colour, down-cast in soul; desirous to prove that venerable Rishi, who practised truth, purity, and patience, and who was exceedingly lofty in mind; and for the coming of the curse upon us.

"The bird spoke.

21 "'O exalted dvija, deign here to save me, who am consumed with hunger. I seek for food, noble Sir! be then my in-22 comparable refuge. As I was standing on a summit of the Vindhya Mountains, I fell; Sir, at an exceedingly swift blast sent 23 by the wings of a bird. So there I lay on the ground, lost in unconsciousness, without memory, for seven days; with the 24 eighth day I regained consciousness. Now fully conscious, pressed by hunger, I have come for help to thee; I am seek-

CHART TO THE VILLETYA BOUNTAIN.

26 pain. Therefore turn, pure-minded suge, thy steadless mind to my resone; give me. O Brahmarshi, food suitable to support my life.

26. "He, thus invoked, answered him, Indra in bird-like shape,
I will give thee the food shou desired for the support of thy 27 life.' Thus having spoken, that best of dvijas further saked him, 'What food shall I prepare for thy use?' and he replied, 'My chiefest delight is in human flesh.'

"The Rishi spoke.

28 "Thy childhood is past; thy youth, too, gone; thou art as-29 suredly in the decline of life, O egg bern. Why art thou most malign-hearted even in old age, then in whem of all

30 mankind every desire has coased? What has thy last stage of life to do with human flesh? Assuredly no one is created 31 foremost among exil-beings' Or what need boot them to address me, being what I am r One should always give when one has promised such is our professed opinion.

32 "Hav'ar thus spoken to him the Bruhmarshi resolved that it should be so. Calling us quickly and commending us accord-

33 ing to one good qualities, the Muni, multated at heart, addressed a most severe speech to us all, who were requestfully

34 bowing, full of faith, with bands reverently joined. 'Ye noble dvijes, whose minds are improved, are bound by obligations equally with me. A glorious process has spring from you, just 35 as ye, O twice-born, have spring from me. If a father is deemed by you a gurn worthy of reverence and most exalted, perform ye then my promise with cheerful mind."

3d "Whilst he so spoke we exclaimed respectfully, 'What thou shalt say, consider that in truth as already "complished."

"The Rishi spoke.

37 "Of me has this hird weight protection oppressed with hunger and thirst: wherefore let him be straightway satisfied.

38 with your flesh, and let his thirst be quirely assuaged with your blood.

- 29 claimed, 'Alas, alas!' and said, 'not this deed! How for the sake of another's body can a wise man destroy or injure
- 40 his own body? for a son is even as one's own self. A son pays those debts, indeed, that have been declared due to the pitris, the gods, and men; a son does not offer up his body.
- 41 Therefore we will not do this; we have done as has been done by men of old. While alive one receives good things,
- 42 and while alive one does holy acts. When one is dead, the body perishes, and there is an end of righteousness, &c. Men skilled in holy law have declared that one ought by all means to preserve one's self.'
  - "Having heard as speak thus, the Muni, burning as it were with anger, again addressed us, scoreling us, as it were, with
- 44 his eyes. 'Since ye will not perform this my plighted word for me, therefore, blasted by my curse, yo shall be born among the brute creation!'
- "Having thus addressed us, he next said to that bird, 'When I have performed for myself the final sacrifice, and my obsequies,
- 46 according to the S'astras, do thou unhesitatingly eat me here, (O best of dvijas): this my body I here grant thee for
- 47 food. The brahmanhood of a brahman is deemed such, so far indeed as he maintains his truthfulness, O chief of the feather-
- 48 ed race. Not by sacrifices accompanied with presents, nor by any other act, do brahmans acquire such great virtue as by the observance of trath.'
- "Having thus heard the Rishi's speech, Indra, in bird-like form, his soul tilled with astonishment, then replied to the
- 50 Muni, 'Applying thyself to deep meditation, O lord of brahmans, quit this thy body; for living thing I never eat, O lord of brahmans.'
- "Having heard this his speech, the Muni concentrated himself in deep meditation. Perceiving that his fixed resolution, Indra.
- 52 further, resuming his own form said, 'Ho! princely brahman, understand with thy understanding what is to be understood, O man of understanding! To prove thee have I thus
- 53 transgressed, O sinless one ! Pardon me then, O pure-minded one: and west highly an I with thee, for maintaining thy tree of word. Howeforth, knowledge like Indra's shall be revealed to thee, and no obstacle shall withstand thee in austerities and holy law.'

- 55 "But when Indra after speaking thus had departed, we prostrate on our faces thus implored our father, the renowned
- 56 Muni, who was filled with anger. 'Dear father, high-minded, deign to purden us misecuble ones who dread death; for life
- 57 is dear to us. In an aggregate of skin bones and flesh, filled with pus and blood, wherein one should take no delight, therein
- 58 do we find this delight. Here too, See, how people are beguiled when overcome by those powerful enemies, their faults,
- 59 love, anger and so forth. Great is the foetress which has Wisdom for its rampart, the bones for its pillars, the skin for
- 60 its walls and banks, the flesh and blood for its platfor. Nine gates it has: it is capable of great effort; it is cachosed on all sides with sinews; and there the Section Soul* sits from as
- 61 king. He has two rival ministers, the Intelligence and the Understanding; those two strive to destroy each other as
- 62 foes. Four engages desire the descention of that king Desire,
- 63 Anger, and Covetowness; and Folly; is the ether enemy. But when that king closes those gates and stands dru, then he becomes indeed both happily strong and free from alarm;
- 64 he displays his affections; he is not overcome by his enemies.
- 65 But when he leaves all the gates open, then the enemy named
- 66 Passion¶ assails the gates of the eyes, etc. Gaining an entranea by the five gates, he penetrates everywhere and spreads widely: then indeed enter, following on his track, the three other
- 67 terrible enemies. That very enemy, Passion, Living entered there, forms a close union with the Understanding, together

· Parusha.

+ Buddhi, perceptive faculty.

<sup>1</sup> Manas, cognitive faculty.

&amp; Kama, love, desire, effection.

Moha, folly, infatuation.

T Raga, passion, emotion; used as equivalent to Kama.

68 with the other gates which are known as the ergans. He, difficult to be approached, having reduced into subjection the organs and the Understanding, and having reduced into sub69 jection the gates, then destroys the rampart. The Intelligence, seeing the Understanding the dependent of that enemy, perishes forthwith. And there, deprived of his ministers and abandoned 70 by his subjects, the king, his strategetical points gained by the enemies, perishes. Even so Passion, Folly, Covetousness and 71 Anger provail, evil in their nature, wrecking the memory of mankind. From Passion springs Anger; from Anger is born

72 Covetousness; from Covetousness arises Folly; from Folly errors of memory; from loss of memory loss of the intellect; through 73 loss of the intellect man perishes. Shew favour, O thou most virtuous! to as who have thus lost our intellects, who are compliant to Passion and Covotousness, and who covet life.

74 And let not this curse take effect, which thou hast pronounced, Sir! Let us not tread the miserable path of darkness, O best of Munis!"

" The Rishi spoke.

- 75 "'What I have attered, will never become false; my voice
- 76 has not spoken untruth hitherto, O sons! Fate is here supreme, I think. Fie on worthless manhood, whereby I have been thoughtlessly forced to do a deed that ought not to be done!
- 77 And since I am besought reverently by you, therefore, when endowed with the nature of brutes, ye shall obtain the highest
- 78 knowledge. And ye, having your paths illuminated by knowledge, with the stains of pain removed, free from doubt, shall through my favour gain the highest perfection.'
- 79 "Thus, Sir, we were cursed of old by our father through the power of destiny; hence we have descended to a lower grade of
- 80 created beings for a long time; and we were born on the field of battle; we were nourished by thee: thus have we acquired the nature of birds, O brahman. There is no man in this world who is not bound by fate."

Márkandeya spoke. ...

Having heard this their speech, the venerable and sminent

82 * Breat isfore did I make this remark in your presence, 'These are not ordinary birds; these must be some brihmans, who even in the superhuman battle escaped destruction.'"

83 Then they, permitted by that affectionate high-souled Muni, went to the Vindhya, the goodliest of mountains, clad with 84 trees and creepers. Hitherto have the righteous birds remained on that mountain, engaged in ansterities and the study sons gained the hospitality of the noble Muni, sequired the shape of birds, and are dwelling on the Vindhya range, in a caye of the noble mountain, where the water is very secred, #### CONTO IV.

with their minds subjued.

The Incarnation of the Four-forned God.

Jaimini whits the Birds, and explaining the reason of his visit, puts them the four questions that perfected him After is aking Vishau, Braheni and Scient they replain the first question, why Vishau, though decoid of qualities, or endued at the humanity.

Markandaya spoke.

- Thus those birds, the sore of Drone, became learned; and they dwell on the Vindhya montrain visit them and nake them.
- them.

  2 Jainaini, having heard this speech of the Rishi Markandeys, went to the Vindhya mountain, where dwelt those righte-
- 3 our birds. And when Jaimini reached that mondain, he heard their voices as they were reading, and having heard
- 4 filled with sucprise, he reflected. The brahmans are reading, observing the hearties of the various passages, regulating their breath, without any intermission, distinctly and
- 5 without faults: wondrozs is this, methinks, that Sarasvati does not forsake these Muni's sone, although they are born in
- 6 the brute creation. One's circle of relatives and a friend and whatever else is desired in one's home all that forsakes our

- and departs; Sarasvell does not abandon one. Thinking the
- dvijas standing on a ledge of the rock. Looking at them as they were reading, their faces free from blemish, he then addressed them all, with mingled sorrow and joy.
  - Hail to yon, O bráhmans! Know that 1 am Jaimini, a disciple of Vyása, who am come to you, being eager for learn-
- 10 ing. Verily be ye not angry; whereas ye, being cursed by your father, who was exceedingly wrathful, have been turned
- 11 into birds, that was indeed altogether fate. In a family of immense wealth some intelligent members, it is said, were born; when their wealth was lost, they were well comforted,
- 12 O brahmans, by S'abara. Men after giving to others become beggnts themselves; and others, after killing men, have been killed themselves; and others, after having overthrown men, have been themselves overthrown;—those very men, through the decay
- 13 of ansterities. Thus I have very often seen opposites of this kind: the world is constantly distressed by the destruction of 14 existence and non-existence. At such thoughts as these in
  - 4 existence and non-existence. At such thoughts as these in your minds, ye should not give way to sorrow: so much is invulnerability to sorrow and joy the fruit of knowledge."
- 15 Then they all did Jaimini honour, by giving him water for his feet, and the arghya offering; and they bowed to him, and
- 16 questioned him with deep respect. Then all the birds addressed him, the disciple of Vyasa, rich in austerities, as he sat at ease, resting himself, with his fatigue mitigated by the breeze from their wings.

The birds spoke.

- 17 "To-day has our birth become fruitful, and our lives have been well-lived, inasmuch as we see thy lotus-feet which are worthy
- 18 to be praised by the gods. The blazing fire of our father's anger, which continues in our bodies, has been quenched to-
- 19 day by the water of the sight of thee, O brahman. We trust that all is well in thy hermitage among the deer and birds, among the trees too, and the various kinds of oreepers, shrubs,
- 20 reeds, and grasses. Or perhaps we though respectful have not spoken this fittingly,? Whence can evil befall those who property; by whom, powerful for our good fortune, hast them, been brought to our view?"

Jaimini spoke.

22 "Let the reason be heard, O brahmans, why I have come here to the Vindhya mountain's delightful cave, which is sprinkled

23 with drops of water from the river Narm ds. At first I questioned the great Muni Markindeyn, a serial of Bhrigu's race, since I found difficulties in connexion with the Maha-

24 bhárata — And he, when asked by one replied, "Drona's high-souled sons are leving on the mighty Vandhya mountain, 25 they will decker the full meaning to thee. And I impelled by his speech, have come to this et at monttrine therefore hear me fully. having heard, deign to give an explanation."

The linds spoke

26 "The matter being on a specially known to u, we will declare it; listen then, free from distant, who should we not tall

27 then that of which our intellegence cognizant? For even in the four Vedes, for in the DI consentral above and in all the Angas and whatever else is conformable to the Vedas.

the Angas and whatever else is conformable to the Vedate-28 in these does our intellect range. O hast of baldmans, but 28 in these mes nar metric that is give a promie. Therefore declare fearlessly what is doubtful in the Mahábhírata, we will declare it to thee, O thou who art wise in the law; if not there will be bewilderment."

Jairtini spoke.

30 "Hear, O ye pure ones" the matters in connection with the Mahabharata, which are doubtful to me here; having heard,

31 deign to explain them. Who is denárdana Vásueleva, who is the support of everything and the cause of all causes, al-

32 though devoid of qualities, endued with humanay? And why was Drupada's daughter Krishaa the common wife of the five was Drupada's daughter Krishaa the roman wife of the five sons of Pandu? On this point there is very great perplexity.

33 Why did the mighty Briadeva Haláyadha expinte his braha. 34 manicido by engaging in a pilgrimage i And how was it that a mattered heroic high-souled sons of Draupadi, whose sected was Pandu, were slain, as if they had no protector?

Let all these doubtful points in connexion with the Maha-bharata be explained to me; that I having attained my object, may return to my hermitage in comfort."

The birds spoke.

*Having paid adoration to Vishau, the lord of the gods, the pre-eminent, the universal soul, the immeasurable, the eternal, and the changeless; to him who subsists in four forms, possessed of the three qualities, and devoid of qualities, the most choice,

38 the most venerable, the most excellent, and the immertal; to him then whom there is nothing more minute, than whom there is nothing more immense, by whom—the unborn one, the begin-

39 ning of the worlds—this universe is permeated,—this universe which, characterized by appearance and disappearance, by visibility and invisibility, has, mon say, been created and also been

40 destroyed in the end: and having paid adoration with profound meditation to Brahmá, the creator, who purifies the three worlds with his mouth; as he atters the Ric' and Sáma

41 hymns: also having prostrated ourselves before the lord, conquered by one of whose arrows the bands of the Asuras do

42 not interrupt the sacrifices of the sacrificers: we will declare the whole dectrine of Vyása, who was wonderful in his actions, by whom, in delivering the Mahábhárata, justice and the other virtues were made manifest.

43 "The waters were called Naru by Munis conversant with truth; they were originally his place of movement"; hence he 44 is called Náráyana. The adorable god, the lord Náráyana, pervading all things, lives, O brahman, in a quadruple form: he

45 is possessed as well as devoid of attributes. His first form is inscrutable; the wise behold it bright: it is covered with gar-

*6 lands of flame; it is the name of perfection to devotees; it is both far and it is near; it is to be understood as transcending attributes; when called Vásudeva, it is seen devoid of egoism;

18 always pure; it is the sole form of pre-eminence. His second torn relief frame, supports the earth below with its hear it is described as being characterised by the quality of darkings devoted to the preservation of creatures; it is to be considered as consisting chiefly of the quality of goodness; it is the 50 fashioner of virtue. His fourth form abides in water; it lies on a scrpent as its bed; its attribute is passion; and it is always indeed active.

51 "The third form of Vishnu, which is assiduously intent on the preservation of creatures, always maintains righteousness on the

52 carth. It destroys the haughty Asaras, the exterminators of righteousness; it protects the gods, and holy men, who are 53 devoted to the preservation of righteonsuess. Whensoever, O Jaimini, the wane of righteonsuess occurs and the rise of 54 iniquity, then it creates itself. Having formerly become existent, as a wild hear it repelled the water with its snout, and

55 lifted out the earth like a lotes with one of its tushes. Having taken the form of the man-lion, it slew Hiranya-kasipu, and 56 destroyed Viprac'itti and other Danavas. I cannot now enumerate its other incarnations, those of the dwarf, etc.: his 57 recent incarnation here was this one in Mathurá. Thus that form, which is characterized by goodness, becomes incarnate; and it is designated Pradyunna; it is occupied in the work of 58 preservation. And ever by Vásudeva's will, it exists in divine form, human form, and brute form, and partakes of their several natures.

59 "Thus this has been declared to thee, how that the lord Vishnu, though all-successful, assumed human form. Hear again the sequel thereof."

CANTO V.

Indra's Transformations.

The Birds explain the second question—Fraupodi was the wife of the five Pandavas, because they were partial incarnations of Indra, and she was the incurnation of his wife.

The birds spoke.

1 "Of old, O brahman! when the son of Tvashtri was slain,

The pleases, oppressed by the brahmanioide, suffered a selection. Then because of his wrong conduct Indra's splendour entered Dharma; and, his righteousness and splendour being gone, Indra became splendourless.

Then hearing that his son was slain, the prajapati Tvashtri earaged, tearing out a single matted lock of hair, uttered this speech. 'Let the three worlds and the gods thereof see my might this day, and let Indra the perverse brahmanicide see, by whom my son when engaged in his own business was destroyed.' Thus having spoken, he, his eyes red with anger, sacrificed that lock of hair in the tire.

6 "Then uprose Vritra, the mighty Asura, encircled with flame, huge in body, with great teeth, resembling a mass of broken

Le collyrium. He, the enemy of Indra, of immeasurable soul, surpassing the might of Tvashtri, mighty in valour, increas-

8 ed daily a bow-shot in stature. And Indra, having seen the mighty Asura Vritra eager for his slaughter, unnerved by 9 fear, sent seven Rishis, desiring peace. Then the affectionateminded Rishis, who delighted in benevolence towards all creatures, brought about friendship and treaties between him and

Vritra, then his might overwhelmed by the sin of the slaughter 11 waned; and that might which quitted indra's body entered the wind, which pervades everything, is imporceptible, and is the 10 Vritra. When Indra violating the rules of the treaty slew supreme deity of power.

"And when Indra, assuming the form of Gautama, violated Ahalya, then the lord of the gods lost his form. Thereupon his beauty of limb and feature, which was exceedingly captivating, forsook the wicked lord of the gods and went to the Asvins.

14 "Perceiving the lord of the gods to have lost his uprightness and glory, to be powerless and formless, the Daityas endeavour-

15 ed to conquer him. Daityns of exceeding might, desirous to conquer the lord of the gods, were born in the families of kings

16 of surpassing valour, O great Muni. Then the Harth, afflicted with their weight, once went to the summit of Meru, where is

17 the abode of the heaven-dwelling gods. Afflicted with their

19 the world of men in the families of kings; their armies are numerous indeed: opprossed by their weight, I am sinking downward; do ye, O ye thirty gods, devise how tranquillity may be attained for me.'

The birds spoke.

20 "Then the gods descended with portions of their glory from heaven to earth, to benefit the creatures and to alleviate the

21 burden of the Earth. Dharma himself relinquished the glory which is innate in the body of Indra, then was born

22 of Kunti the resplendent raja Yudhishthira; Váyu relinquished his might, then was born Bhíma; and from the half of Iudm's power was born Dhananjuya, the son of Prithá;

23 Yama's two sons, resembling Indra in form, of glorious dignity, were born of Mádrí. Thus the adorable Indra became incar-

24 nate in five forms. His auspicious wife was born as Krishņá

25 from Agni: she, Krishná, is the wife of Indra alone, and of no one else. The lords of ascetics can even multiply their bodies.

26 "Thus the fact of her being one wife to five men has been explained to thee; be it heard how Baladeva went to the Sarasvati."

CANTO VI.

Baladeva's brahmanicide.

The Birds explain the third question—Baladeva, in order to avoid siding with the Pándavas and Kauravas, went to the Raivata forest—Overcome by intoxication, love, and the influences of the place, he killed Súta for not saluting him—To explate that sin he undertook the pilgrimage.

The birds spoke.

The plough-armed Ráma, knowing the perfect affection of Krishna for Arjuna, deliberated much—"Can what has been done be better done? Without Krishna assuredly d will not

2 done be better done? Without Krishna, assuredly, d will not go near Duryodhana; or how, siding with the Pándavas, shall Therefore I will go neither to Arjuna nor to king Duryodhana.

Will myself bathe myself at holy bathing places, so long as it conduces to the ending of the Kurus and Pándavas."

Having thus taken leave of Krishna, Arjuna and Duryodhana, the descendant of Súra, surrounded by his army, went to Dvá-

8 raká. Arriving at Dváravatí, which was thronged with glad and well-fed citizens, Ráma Haláyudha drank a draught at the

7. holy bathing places, which are to be visited in future. Having drank his draught, he then marched to the flourishing park of Raivata,* taking with him the intoxicated Apsaras-like Revati.

8 Encircled by a bery of maidens, the hero went on, intoxicated, stumbling in his walk. And he saw a forest, fascinating, beyond

9 compare, loaded with the fruits and flowers of every season, thronged with troops of monkeys, sacred, dotted with clumps of

10 lotus-flowers, a great forest abounding in pools. Listening to the copious, pleasure-inspiring, love-soft, beautiful, ear-delighting, melodious songs poured forth from the mouths of the birds, he

11 saw the trees there, leaded with the weight of the fruits of every season, bright with the blossoms of every season, ren-

12 dered resonant by the birds; --mango trees, hog-plums, thinarungas, to cocanuts, and findaka trees, that the bel

* A mountain near Dváraká in Gujarat. The woodland scene described seems to be a fanciful one, compounded from the author's observations overywhere.

† Amrataka, the Rog-plum Spondius numgifera; the modern umra. It is both wild and cultivated. I give the botanical names, from Hooker's Flore of British India, of all except the most common, as many of the troes have no English names, and are botter known by those names: but there can be no doubt that the various species in a genus are not always distinguished, and that the Sanskrit names are sometimes as much generic as specific. The descriptions are taken from Royburgh's Flora India, Edu. Clarke, 1874, from Oiver's Indian Betany, 1869, and from Firminger's Manual of Gardening for India.

2 Bhavya, Averrhea carambola, the modern kamranga. A garden tree.

5 I do not find tindake in Prof. Monier-Williams Dictionary: tinduke coours in verse 14. The late Raw. Dr. Banerjea, in a translation he began, translates it Ebony, which is Diopyres melanosyles, the modern tindu. It is large true, growing in most woody mountainous parts of India.

in, f forigransies, Caleons, S Jack fro

dan trees, and paravata trees, tankola trees, naling trees, docks, || marking nut trees, || emblic myroba

- A' raka. I do not find this in the Dictionary. Bilva, the Bel or Bengal.

  Quince eight marmelos; the modern bel-phul and s'ri-phul. Both wild and culti-ated. It bears punicles of large white flowers, which are used in worship.
- † Jira, Camin, Caminum cyminum; the modern jira; this is a slender cultivated annual. Jira also means Panicum miliaceum. Roxb., the modern checna, which is a cultivated cereal from 2 to 4 feet high. (Roxb., p. 104.) Neither scens appropriate.
- † Dádima, the Pomegranate, Punica granutum; the modern dárim or dátim. A cultivated tree in India.
- § Vin-páraka, Citron, Citrus medica, the modern nebv. A cultivated tree in (udia.
- || Pannya, the Jack or Jack-fruit tree, Articarpus integrifetia; the modern kanthil. A cultivated tree. (Roxb., p. 633: Oliver, p. 272: not in Hooker).
- ¶ Lakuda, the Monkey jack, Articurpus tacucha; the modern dephal. A garden tree. (Rozh., p. 634; Firminger, p. 188; not in Hocker).
- ** Nips, Anthorryhaus cadamba (Nauclea cadamba, Roxb.); also kadamba, the modern kadam. A garden tree, highly ornamental with its large, globalar, beautiful, orange-colour d heads of flowers, and very useful from its extensive close shade (see Roxb., p. 172).
- †† Párávata: the Dictionary says this is Disappros embryopteris (clutinosa, Roxb.), which is the modern adb: but this tree is also tinduka, which occurs in the next verse, and tindaka has occurred in verse 12. Párávata mosas also a dove or pigeon, and has been corrupted into the Bongali páyrá; might not párávatu, the tree, be corrupted into the Bangali peyárá, which means the Guava, Paidium guyana?
- 11 Kankola. I do not find this in the Dictionary. Read ken kellán for kankolán? Kankella is given as the Asak, Saraca indica (Jonesia asaka, Roxb.), but this occurs in verse 15.
- §§ Nalina. Dr. Banerjea translates this as the Indigo plane, but Prof. Monier-Williams says nalina, neut., is the Indigo shrub, Indigofera tractoria; while nalina, masc. as here, is the Cariasa carandas; but the latter occurs in the next verse
- ## Amin-vetasa, the Dock or Sorrel. as Prof. Monfer-Williams gives—
  The Dock in Rumse revicerius, Roxb. The Sorrel is Ocalis corniculata, Prof.
  (see Oliver, pp. 181 and 289).
- . TT Bhallataka, the Marking nut tree, Semecorpus anacardium, the Bougali

karamcha trees, yellow myrobalans, belevic myrobalans. 15 He, Yadu's descendant, saw these and other trees, and a so aso16 kas, ** punnagas, †† screw-pines, ‡‡ and vakulas, §§ c'amp kas, || ||

bhela. A tree, growing in all the mountainous parts of Incia, win large panieles of small greenish yellow flowers. (Roxb., p. 268.)

- A'malaka, the Emblic Myrobalan, Phyllanthus emblica, the modern amia (Roxb., p. 684 and Oliver, p. 279).
   I do not find it in Hooker. Emblica officinalis is an earlier name.
- † Tinduka, Diospyros embryopteris (glutinosa, Roxb.), the modern gab. It is a tree common in Bengal, and among the mountains in the Circus. Its fruit is as large as a medium-sized apple.
- In guda, the Almond tree, Terminalia catappa, the modern badám. A beautiful large tree, growing overywhere.
- § Karamarda, Garissa carandae, the modern karameha. A common small tree, with beautiful, white, jamino-like flowers.
- || Haritaka, the Yellow or Chobulic Myrobalan, Terminalia chebula; a largo forest tree.
- T Vibhitaka, the Beleric Myr-balan, Terminalia belerica, the modern lathera; a large forest tree.
- ** A'soka, the Asok, Surucu indica (Jonesia asoka, Rovb.). A middling-sized, very handsome, garden tree, with large, globular bunches of rather large flowers. The flowers are of a beautiful erange colour when they first expand, and gradually change to red, forming a variety of beautiful shades they are frageant during the night. (Rovb., p. 312).
- †† Punnága, Rottlera tinctoria, (Roxb. and Oliver). it is still called punnág. I do not find it in Hosker A tree, a native of Coromandel.
- ‡‡ Kotaki, the Scrow-Pine, Pandanus aderatissimus, (Rozb. and Oliver), the modern keard. A large shrub, with panicles of large white, sheath-like leaves, enclosing bundles of closely-packed minute flowers. "It is the tender white leaves of the flowers, chiefly those of the male, that yield that most delightful fragrance, for which they are so universally and deservedly esteemed; for of all the perfumes in the world it must be the richest and most powerful." (Roxb., p. 707.)
- §§ Vakula, Minusops elength, the modern bakul. A tree, commonly cultivated, with flowers middle-sized drooping, white and fragant; but Firminger says they are small, pale-green. (Roxb., p. 818; Hooker, p. 458; Firm., p. 490).
- ill Campaka, Michelus champaca, the modern champak or champs. A garden tree with large yellow delightful fragrant flowers.

parijate trees, kovidaras, mandaras, and jesmines.

parijate trees, kovidaras, mandaras, and jejube 17 trees, delightsome Bignonia trees; in blossom, and devdar trees, al trees, palmyra palms, || and ta-

- Sapta-parna, Alstonia scholaris. An over-green tree growing in the drier forests of India.
- † Karnikára, Pterospermum acerifolium, the Benguli kanuk-champu. A Himalayan tree, but also grown in gardens. It has very large, pure white, fragrant flowers.
- I Málati, the Catalonian or Spanish Jasmine, Jasminum grandiforum, the Benguli játí or chamelí, Hindustani chambelí. It is a sproading gardon shrub with graceful pinnate foliage and middling-sized white fragrant flowers, which retain their odour when dried and are much used for perfume. (Firm., p. 518). Málati also means the Clove-secuted Echites, Aganosma carpophyllata (Echites carpophyllata, Roxb.), now called málati, which is a climbing shrub, with bay-like leaves and sprays of middling-sized fragrant white flowers. (Roxb., p. 245; Firm., p. 518.)
- § Párijáta, Erythrina indica. A large tree growing all over India, with recemes of numerous large bright scarlet flowers. This tree is generally called mandar now.
- ji Kovidára, Bauhinia variegata, tho Bongali rakta-kanchan. A gardon tree with large reddish-purple flowers.
- ¶ Mandára. Prof. Monior-Williams says this is Erythrina fulgens, but I do not find it in Hooker or Rexburgh. May it be E. stricta, which grows in the Western Peninsular and much resembles E. indica I In Bengal E. indica is now generally called mandér.
- ** Badura, Zisyphus emopliz (jujuba or scandens, Roxb.), the Bengali kul, the Hindustani ber. A small tree with fruit of the size of a large cherry.
- †† Páțala, Bignonia suaveolens, Royb., the modern pácil. I do not find it in Hooker. A tree, with large, exquisitely fragrant, dark duli crimson flowers. It blessoms during the hot season. Prof. Monier-Williams calls it the Trumpet-flower tree, but I do not find this name in any of the Botanical books I have consulted.
- 11 Dova-daru, Pinus devdara, Boxb, the modern devddr. I do not find it in Hooker. A great tree, native of the mountains north of Robillhand. No species of pine is native in the Peninsula (Oliver, p. 294); this tree therefore is quite out of place in this Gujarat seene.
- $$ Sála, the Bál tree, Shores robusta, the modern edl. An immense timber tree.
- Hill Tale, the Palmyra Palm, Borassus stabelliformis, Roxb., the modern tell. Not in Hooker. Fans are made from the large fan-like leaves.

The halo, kiminks, t and fine vanjula trees! —inhabited by chakers, and woodpeckers, shrikes, and parrots, koils, and 19 sparrows, green pigeons.** and jivajivaka pheasants, t by priya-

• Tamála. Prof. Monier-Williams says this is Garcinia cauthochymus (Xauthochymus pictorius, Roxb.); this is a tree, a native of the mountainous districts in India. But Roxburgh says the Tamála is Diospyros cordifolia, which Hooker unites with D. montana; this is a common tree.

† Kims'uka, Butea frondosa, the Bengali palásh. Oliver calls this tree the Dhak, (p. 195), but 1 do not find this name anywhere else. It is a common tree, with handsome, irregular, orango-red flowers in racemes which are covered with a soft grounish purple down. (Roxb., p. 540.)

 † Vanjula, Ougsinia dathergioides (Dulbergia oojsinensis, Roxb.). A tree with recemos of numerous, rather small, very pale rese-coloured flowers, somewhat fragrant.

§ C'akora, Caccabis chuker. The Chakor is said in Prof. Monier-Williams' Dictionary to be the Greek partridge, Perlix rufa or Tetrau rufus, but the Grock partridge, Caccabis squatilis, is a different species, inhabiting Europe, from the chakor the Asiatic species. The chakor is found in the Humilayas and the other northern ranges. It is always a bird of the hills, and does not occur in Gojarat, where this scene is laid (Jerdon's Birds of India, Kdn. Godwin-Auston, Vol. II. p. 564; Hume and Marshall's Game Birds of India, Vol. II, p. 33). Tetrao rufus is the name Lianaus gave the European bird. Perdix rufa seems, from the edition of his works in the Bengal Asiatio Society's Library, to be an earlier name. There are other partridges in the plains of India, Ortygorais guians, &c., but I do not think the reference can be to them, for the writer seems to be mentioning birds inhabiting the Rimalayas; see the note on the Jivajicaka pheasant, helow.

|| Bhringa-raja. Prof. Moning-Williams translates this, Malabar shrike, Lamius mutaharious. This bird stands in Jerdon as Edolius malabaricus, and is, I am informed by Dr. J. Scutly, a king-crow. Another bird may be meant, the Malabar Wood-shrike, Topicodornis sylvicols, but, as the writer seems to be referring to birds found near the Himalayas, bhringa-raja may mean any kind of shrike, almost every kind of which is common throughout the speaker part of India. (Jerdon, Vol. I, p. 400).

Kokita, the Koil, Endynamys orientalis (Jerdon, Vol. 1, p. 842).

** Harits, the Green Pigeon, probably the Bengal green pigeon, Crocopus phonicopterus, or the Orange-breasted green pigeon, Conocreron bicincta. The Southern green pigeon, Crocopus chlorigaster, and the Green imperial pigeon, Carpophaga sylvatica, are not found near the Himalayas.

Jivajivaka. Prof. Monier, Williams gives the symonyms jiva-jiva and splains the word as a kind of bird supposed to be a phaseant, patrage and pied-crested cuckoos, and by various other beautiful and placid, crowded on all sides with the lotus water-filies, and lotuses, and the brilliant blue water-or the chaker. As the chaker is mentioned already, it must have the first meaning. Taking it to be a kind of phensant, I would suggest that it is the Cheer Pheasant, Phasianus Waltichi. The Sanskrit name looks like an one-matopouns one, and the cry of this bird is "something like the words chir a pir, chir chir, chirves charact." Cheer is the native name. The bird is found in Garhwal and Kumson and the neighbouring country, and inhabits the middle slope of the Himalayas (Hume and Marshall, Vol. I, p. 169: Jardon, Vol. II, p. 537). If this bird to a pheasant, it is clear the writer is mentioning, not the fauna of Gajarat, but of the country near the Himalayas for it appears from Humo and Marshall, and Jordon, that no pheasants are found in India except in the Himalayan and Irdo-Burnese mountains and forests.

- * Priva putra. Udo not know what this bird is. The name offords ac indication.
- † Chinka, the Pied-crested Cuckoo. Prof. Monier-Williams says the bird is Guenlas metanolouous, but I find no such name mentioned in Jerdon. It is the Guerge'es melandeaces of Jerdon (Vol. I, p. 339), which he says is called chatak. It is found all over India.
- ‡ Kam el, the Letus water-lily, Nymphaa totus (Oliver, p. 155). There seems to be some confusion in distinguishing byween the Sanskrit names for the letus and the water-lilies, and I would attempt a solution in this and the following notes.
- Of the water-hies, Nymphwo, large water herbs with leaves and flowers ylunting on the surface, there are 2 species common in India, vis., N. lotus, the Lotus water-hily, and N. stellata, the Blue water-hily.
- N. totas has leaves 6-12 inches broad, and flowers 2-10 inches broad, white, cose, or red. This species combines Roxburgh's N. rubra and N. sdutis (esculenta). Its Sanskrit name is known, and probably amba-ja; the red variety is raktolpala. It closes during the day and opens at night.

The latter species, N. stellata, has flowers 1—10 inches broad, slightly odorous. It comprises 3 varieties, (1) cyanca (N. cyanca, Roxb.), flowers medium-sized, blue; (2) purvifora, flowers usually smaller, blue; (8) versicolor (N. rersicolor, Roxb.), flowers larger, white, blue, purple, or flesh-voloured. The blue-flowered N. stellata is called indivars, utpala, kuvalaya and utlevila. (Hooker, Vol. I, p. 114: Roxburgh, p. 427.)

§ Pandarika, the Lotus or Sacred Lotus, Nelumbium speciesum. This is the only species of Nelumbium in India. It is a large erect water-herb with its

Milies, with water lilies, and lotuses; and thronged with kadamba geese, and ruddy shieldrakes, and water-fowl, 22 with karandava ducks, pelicans, treese, 11 fortoises, and leaves and flowers raised high above the water. Its leaves are peltate, cupped, 2—3 feet in diameter. The flowers are 4—10 inches broad, white or rose-red. Its Sanskrit names are kamala, nalini, padonini, pundarika, sarasi-ja, and sahasra-patra. The flower is padma and punka-ja. The red variety is kokamada and tâmarosa. Roxburgh says the white variety is called in Sanskrit sitâmbu-ja, and the red variety raktotpala; but those names more properly designate the white and red varieties of the water-lily (Nymphaa), and Prof. Monior-Williams translates them so. The Lotus opens during the day and closes at night (Hooker, Vol. I, p. 116; Oliver's Indian Betany, p. 156; Roxburgh, p. 450.)

- Nilotpula, the Blue water-lily, Nymphica etclinta, see note ‡ on knnind, supra p. 29.
- † Kablers. Sect. Monier-Williams says this is the White esculent water-Hy, Nymphos lots, but Hoxbargh visigns it to his N. cyanea. Can it mean the rese-coloured variety of the N. lotus or stelluta? See note; on kunud, supro p. 29.
- . T. Kamala, the Lours, Nelumbium speciesum; see note § on Pundariku, supra. p. 29. But there ungt be some difference between the two.
- § Kádambana, kind of goose with dark grey wings (kala-hansa), so Prof. Monier-Williams. It seems to be the Grey Lag-Goose, Anser concreus, which is called kar-háns in Bohar. (Hume and Marshall, Vol. III, p. 55; Jerdon, Vol. II, p. 779.)
- || C'akraváka, the Raddy Shieldrake or Brahminy Duck, Casarca cutile.

  Anas casarca is the Linnean name. (Unme and Marshall, Vol. 111, p. 125; Jerdon, Vol. II, p. 791.)

- ¶ Jala-kukhnta. This is probably the Water-hen, Gallinula chloropus, commonly called the jal-murghi, which means the same. (Jerdon, Vol. 11, p. 718.)
- ** Kárandava, a kind of dack; also called karands. I would suggest that this is the Common Teal, Guerquedula creeca, which is now called kerra in the N. W. Provinces, and kardo in Sindh. (Hume and Marshall; Vol. III, p. 205; Jerdon, Vol. II. p. 206.)
- †† Plava. Prof. Monier-Williams translates this as pelican, Pelicanus fuelcellis; but I do not find any such species in Jerdon. It may be the Grey pelican, Pelsenaus Philippensis, which is the most abundant species in India. (Jerdon, Vol. II, p. 858.)
- ## Hanas This is of course general, and means any kind of goose or dack.

diverse thronged with these and other birds swimming in the water all around.

28 So gazing on the delightful forest, Sauri accompanied by the maidens gradually proceeded onwards to an incomparable

24 bower of creepers. There he saw brahmans, deeply read in the Vedas and Vedangas, belonging to the families of Kusika,

25 and Bhrign, Bharadvája, and Gotama, and brahmans sprung from various famalies, all eagerly listening to the tales,

26 seated on large outer garments made of the hide of the black antelope, and on the kuśa grass and on kuśa-grass seats; and

27 Súta (their bard) in the midst, reciting glorious tales of the olden times, based on the deeds of the first Surarshis. Seeing

28 Rama, whose eyes were red with drinking, all the brahmans, perceiving he was intoxicated, rose up in haste, saluting the 29 plough-bearer, except that scion of the bards. Then filled with rage, the mighty plough-bearer, who caused all the Dánavas to anake, relling his eye, smote Súta.

30 When that bard was slain while repeating the words of the Veda, all those brahmans, clad in black antelope skins, depart-

31 ed from the wood. And the plough-armed here, perceiving himself disregarded, thought, "This is a very grievous sin

32 that I have committed; for since I have come here to a brahmans' abode and have slain Súta, these dvijas perceiving

33 me have all departed. And my body has a disgusting odour, as it were of blood, and I perceive that I am contemned as

34 a brahmanicide. Fic on my rage, and the wine, my arrogance, my cruelty! Possessed by them, I have committed this most 35 grievous sin. To expiate it I will perform a twelve-year vow, making the confession of my deed the uttermost penance.

36 This then is the pilgrimage which I have now undertaken; I

37 will go to the Pratilomá Sarasvatí itself." Hence he, Ráma, went to the Pratilomá Sarasvatí.

Next listen to this reference to the story of the Pandaveyas.

• Madgu, a kind of diving bird. It is probably the Little Grebe, Podecope Philippensis, commonly called dub-dubi from its inveterate diving. (Jerdon, Vol. II, p. 822.) But it may be the Bald Coot, Fulica atra, which is also a ready diver (id., p. 715.)

2.3

CANTO VII.

The Birth of the Sons of Draupadi.

The Birds explain the fourth question—King Haris-c'andra incurred Visvamitra's anger, and to appease him gives up to him his kingdom and all his wealth—Visvamitra ill-treats the queen, and five Visve Devas censure him for his brutality—He curses them to be born as men, but exempts them from marriage—They were born as the jive sons of Draupadi, and died young.

The righteons birds spoke.

- 1 There lived formerly in the Tretá Age a most exalted Rájarshi named Haris-c'andra, virtuous in soul, a ruler of the earth.
- 2 brilliant in fame. No famire, nor sickness, nor untimely death occurred among men, nor did the citizens delight in evil, while
- 3 he ruled as king; nor, further, did the people become aproarious through wealth, valour, austerities or spirituous liquors; nor were any females born who failed to reach womanhood.*
- 4 And he, of mighty arm, when once chasing a deer in the
- 5 forest, heard women repeatedly crying, "save us"! The king, giving over the deer, called out "fear not! who is this per-
- 6 verse being that, under my rule, behaves with injustice?" At this interval also the Raudra Vighna-raj, the opponent of every
- 7 undertaking, who was following that ery, deliberated: -- "This Viśvámitra, full of heroism, undertaking incomparable austerities, keeping a vow, is mastering the sciences of Siva and others, which have not been perfected before. Those sciences
- 8 being mastered by this man, who governs his mind in patience and silence, are verily lamenting, afflicted with dread. How
- 9 can I manage this i Glorious is this noblest of the Kansika family; I am much weaker than be: these terrified sciences
- are thus hewailing: it appears to me difficult to be accom-10 plished. Now this king has come in my way, calling out
  - repeatedly 'fear not!'; into him indeed entering, I will speedily accomplish my desire."
- 11 Then the king possessed by that Raudra Vighneraja, who had thus taken counsel with himself, uttered this speech in anger:—

* An allusion to inflintleids?

- Made this wicked man that hinds die in the corner of his germent, when I the lord am present, gleaming with the low glewing splendour of my power? He to-day, pierced in every limb by my arrows, which in their flight from my bow illumine the other regions of the sky, shall enter upon a long sleep."
- 14 Thereupon Visvamitra luxing heard the king's speech was enraged: and, when that great Rishi was enraged, those
- 15 sciences perished in a moment. The king moreover, seeing Viśvámitra, rich in austerities, being terrified, suddenly trom-
- 16 bled exceedingly like the leaf of the peopul tree.* When the Muni exclaimed, "wreteb!" and "stand!"; then the king fall-
- 17 ing prostrate in reverence addressed him:—"O adorable lord! this is my duty! t have committed no fault! Deign not O Muni! to be augry with me, who am engaged in my duty."
- 18 A king, conversant with his duties, must give gifts," and must afford protection, and lifting his bow must wage war, according to the Dharma-Sástras."

Visvámitra spoke.

19 "To whom, O king, must thou give gifts, whom must thou protect, and with whom must thou wage war? Speedily declare this, if then fearest unrighteensness."

Haris-c'andra spoke.

20 "I must always give gifts to brahmans principally, and to others who are straitened in their means; I must protect those in fear; I must make war with enomies."

Višvámitra spoke.

- 21 "If your highness, a king, duly regards the duties of kings—I am a brahman desirous of a reward, let the desired fee be given me."
- * Figure religions. The leaf, which varies from 2½ to 5½ inches in length and almost the same in breadth, is avate-cordate, and has a long slender apex (acumen) 1 to 2 inches long. It has a round flexible stalk 2 to 8 inches long, which is twisted so as to make the inner surface of the leaf face outwards from the branch. The leaf langs downwards by the long stalk, with its inner surface, which is slightly concave, facing outwards, and thus catches the lightest broaze.

22 The Raja, having heard this speech with gladdened soul, deemed himself as it were born anew, and addressed the sage

23 of the Kausika race: "Be it declared, adorable sir! what, free from doubt, I must give thee; consider it as already given,

24 albeit most difficult to be obtained, whother gold or money, son, wife, body, life, kingdom, city, good fortune --whatever is the desire of my own soul."

Višvámitra spoke.

25 "O king! this present has been accepted, which then hast given: first, however, bestow the fee appertaining to the Rája-súya sacrifice."

The Raja spoke.

26 "O brohman! I will indeed give your honour that fee. Choose, O chief of the dvijas, whatever present then desirest."

Viśvamitra spoke.

- 27 "Give me this earth, with its ocean, and with its mountains, villages and towns; and thy entire kingdom, O warrier, with
- 28 its multitade of chariots, horses, and elephanis; also thy treasury and treasure; and whatever else thou possessest, excepting
- 29 thy wife, and son and body. O sinless one! and excepting thy virtue, which, O thou that knowest all the virtues, follows its possessor when he moves. What need for me to say more? Let all this be granted me."

The birds spoke.

30 With gladdened mind the king, unperturbed in countenance, having heard the Rishi's speech, joining his hands respectfully replied, "So be it!"

Visvámitra spoke.

31 "If all thy property is given me, thy kingdom, the earth, thy army, thy wealth, --whose is the lordship, O Rájarshi! when I the ascetic am seated in the kingdom?"

Hariś-c'andra spoke.

32. "At what time I have yielded up the earth to thee, O brahman! at that time thou. Sir, art the owner, how much more now the king."

Visvamitas spoke.

33 "If O king! the whole earth has been given me by thee, thou must deign to depart from the realm where I hold sway;

34 unfastening all thy ornaments, such as thy waist-band and overy thing else, and clothing thyself with the bark of trees, together with thy wife and son."

The birds spoke.

35 Having said "So be it!" and having so done, the king started to go, in company with his wife Saivyá and his young son.

36 Then he addressed the king having obstructed the read as he was moving—" Where wilt then go, without giving no the fee appertaining to the Rája-súya sacrifice?"

Hariś-c'andra spoke.

37 "Adorable Sir! this kingdom has been given thee free from adversaries: these our three bodies, O Brahman! are all that remain to me this day."

Viávámitra spoke.

38 "Nevertheless thou must assuredly give me the sacrificial fee; a promise unfulfilled, especially to brahmans, proves injurious.

39 As long as brahmans delight, O king! in the Rája-súya sacrifice, so long indeed wast the fee for the Rája-súya sacrifice bo

40 given. After making a promise, one must bestow the gift; and one must fight against assailants; so too the afflicted must be protected; thus hast then already agreed."

Harissa'andra spoke.

Al "Adorabic Sir, I have nought at present; I will give thee the fee after a while; and show me favour, O Brahmarshi! bearing in mind noble behaviour."

Višvámitra spoke

42 "What length of time must I wait for thee, O'guardian of men! Tell me speedily, or the fire of my curse shall consume thee."

Haris-c'andra spoke.

43 "In a month will I give then the fee-money, O Brahmarshi! At present I have no means; deign to great me this permission."

Section .

Go, go, O noble king; observe thy duty; and may thy way be suspicious! May there be no enemics!"

- 45 Permitted to go, the king departed; his queen, who was 46 unused to walk afoot,* followed him. Seeing that most noble king departing from the city with his wife and son, the citizens raised a cry and followed the king, archiming---
- 47 "Alas, O master! why leavest thou us, who are afflicted with continual sufferings? Thou, O king, art devoted to righteoneness, and thou art the penefactor of the citizens.
- 48 Lead us also, O Rájarshi! if thou regardest righteousness.

  Stay a moment, O king of monarchs! Our eyes as bees drink?
- 49 thy lotus-like month. When again shall we behold thee, who, when then goest forth, art preceded and followed by kings?
- 50 Hore is thy wife, helding her young son in her hand, following thee, before whom, when thou goest forth, go thy sevenn's scated
- 51 on elephants! Here goes to day walking afoot the king of monarchs, Hariś-c'andra! Alas, O king, what will thy 52 very worthful heartiful hypered soft skinned theoretical face.
- 52 very youthful, beautiful-browed, soft-skinned, tine-nosed face become, when injured by the dust on the road? Stay, stay,
- 53 O best of kings, observe thy own duty. Mildness is a very noble virtue, especially among kshatriyas; what need have we of wife, what need of children, or of wealth, or of grain,
- 54 O master? Abandoning all this, we have become mere shadows of thee. Alas master! alas Mahárájá! alas, O lord!
- 55 why dost thou aboudon us? Where thou art, there indeed will we be. That is joy, where thou indeed art. That is our city where thou art. That is Svarga where thou, our king, art."
- 56 Having thus heard the citizens' address the king, overwhelmed with grief, stood then in the road through very compassion for
  - 57 them. Still Visvamitra, seeing him distressed by the citizens exclamations, approaching him, with eyes rolling in anger
    - * Rent padbhyim for predbhyim.
    - † Butter piedma for piblimb, let us drank?

- False, prooked in thy speech! who also, after giving me th
- 50 kingdom, wishest again to withdraw it." The king thus roughly accosted by him replied thus trembling, "I am going," and de-
- 60 parted hastily drawing his wife in his hand. Thereupon the sage of the Kausika family suddenly belaboured with a wooden staff the very youthful toil-wearied wife, as the king was
- 61 drawing her along. Seeing her thus beaten, the king Harisc'andra, oppressed with pain, exclaimed "I am going;" nor did he atter aught else.
- 62 But then spoke five Viève Devas full of pity, "This Vièvémitra is very wicked; what worlds will be obtain, who has
- 63 uprooted this best of sacrificers from his throne? By whose funeral coronomy further shall the some juice expressed at the great sacrifice by purified, by denking which we shall reach the exhibitant that is preceded by incantations?"

- 64 Having heard this their remark, the sage of the Kausika race, exceedingly ouraged, cursed them "Ye shall all assume human
- 65 form!" And propitiated by them, the great Mani added, "Al-
- 66 though in human form, ye shall have no offspring. There shall be neither marriage of wives for you, nor hestility: freed
- 67 from love and anger ye shall become gods again." Thereupon those gods descended to the mandon of the Kurus with their own portions; they were born of the vomb of Draupadi as the
- 68 five grandchildren of Pándu. Hence the five heroic Pándaveyes did not take to themselves wives, through the curse of that great Muno.
- 69 All this has been declared to thee with reference to the tale of the Pandaveyas. Thy four questions have been answered in song. What else dost thou wish to hear?

CANTO VIII.

The Story of Haris-c'andra (continued).

Viscumitra not satisfied demands further fees, and Haris-c'andra in desperation wells his wife and his son to a brahman and himself to a c'andála, and gives Visoámitra all the price -- Haris-c'andra earns his livelihood as the c'andála's servant at a hurning-ground in the most abject state for a year-Then he sees a vision of his future transmigrations with a promise of happiness ultimately-His son is litten by a make, and the queen brings the corpse to the Inerning-ground-They recognise each other and bewait their misfortunes-Both resolve to immobite themselves on their son's funeral pile; but the gods interpose and restore his son to life -- Dharma explains that he had personated the c'andála- Indra calls the king to Sparga, but he refuses to go without his faithful people—Re, and his queen and people ascend to Scorga in perfect bliss.

Jaimini spoke.

- Ye have declared this in order according to my questions: 1 great is my curiosity regarding the story of Haris-c'andra.
- 2 Ah! passing great was the woe incurred by that magnanimous king; I trust be obtained a bappiness fully commensurate, O bráhmans!

- Hearing Viśvámitra's speech the king moved on slowly, full 8 of sorrow, followed by his wife Snivyá with her young boy.
- The king having reached the divine city* of Benares- the choice of Siva who pronounced that it was not to be enjoyed
- 5 by men. Distressed with sorrow, he travelled afoot with his compliant wife. On entering the city, he saw Visvamitra
- present. Seeing he had already arrived, Haris-c'andra bowed
- reverently and, joining his hands respectfully, addressed the great Mani :-- " Here is my life, and this is my son, and this is
- my wife, O Muni! Take that as the choicest arghya offering 8 with which thou shouldst quickly deal. Whatever else we
  - should do, deign to excuse that." For parine read puring.

Vilvimites spoke.

Some is the month, O Rajarshi!; let my fee be given me, if thy word regarding the Raja-súya sacrifice be remembered."

Haris-c'andra spoke.

"O brahman, rich in sadeless austerities! to-day the month 10 will, in truth, be completed : await this half-day which remains, but not long."

Viśvámitra spoke.

"Be it so, Mahárájá! I will come again: unless to-day thou shall make the gift, I will pronounce a curse on thee."

The birds spoke.

- Thus having spoken the brahman deported : and the Raja then took thought - " How shall I give him the fee which has
- 13 been promised? Whence can I find powerful friends? Whence can I get wealth at this moment? Blameworthy is
- 14 my present : how can I escape going downward? How much more am Labandoning life! To what region shall I, who am nothing, go, if I perish without having performed my promise?
- 15 I shall become a robber of brilingus, a worm, a wicked man, the vilest of the vile; or I shall become a slave better indeed let me sell myself."

- Then his wife in words broken with weeping answered the king, who was distressed, dejected, anxious, with downcast
- 17 face-" Leave of care, O Mahárájá; preserve thy trathfuluess; a man destitute of truth should be avoided like a burning-
- 18 ground. There is no higher rightconsness, they say, for a man than this, namely, maintaining his truthfulness, O roble
- 19 man! Oblations to consecrated fire, or study, or the whole circle of good deeds, such as liberality, &c., are fruitless in
- 20 him who speaks at random. Truthfulness is constantly declared in the Dhamus-sastras to tend to the salvation of men of understanding; and falsehood to the overthrow of men of
- 21 uneducated minds. A king named Kriti, after offering seven horse-sacrifices and a Rája-súya sacrifice, fell forthwith from
- 22 Svarga for falsehood. Uking, I have given birth to a child-

OPER THE

Thus having spoken she wept aboud. The king spoke as follows to her whose eyes were bathed in tears.

Haris c'andra spoke.

"Coase, lady, thy agitation; here stands thy boy; pray, speak what thou desirest to say, O thou who art graceful in thy gait!"

The queen spoke.

24 "O king, I have given birth to a child: the wives of good men bear fruit in their sons. Do thou therefore, being such a man, give me in exchange for wealth, and pay the brahman the fee."

The birds spoke.

- 25 Hearing this proposal, the king lost his senses; and on re-26 gaining consciousness lamented, sorely grieved: -- Dire is this grief, O lady, that thou thus mentionest to mo: is thy joyous
- 27 intercourse with mo, wretch that I am, forgetten? Ah! alas! how couldest thou suggest this, O sweet-smiler Repuguant
- 28 is this plan; how can I execute it?" Thus having spoken, the king, repeating the word "Shame! shame!" fell to the
- 29 ground overwhelmed by faintness. Seeing the king Hariso'andra prostrate on the earth, the quoon full of sorrow, uttered these pitcons words: —

The queen spoke.

- 30 "Alas! Mahárájá! from whom has come this evil thought, that then, who art accustomed to coverings made of the hair
- 31 of the spotted deer, basi fallen on the barr ground? Here sleeps the king, my lord, on the ground,—he, by whom ten thousands of choice cattle and wealth were dispensed among
- 32 brahmans. Ah! woe! what has this king done to thee. O' brahman, that he, the equal of Indra and Vishnu, has been
- 33 reduced to a state of coma?" Having soliloquised thus, she, beautiful-hipped, fell swooning, crushed by the intelerable
- 34 great weight of her husband's misfortunes. The child seeing his parents lying thus helpless on the ground, being exces-
- 35 sively hungry and very unhappy, spoke: Father, dear father, give me some food; mother, mother, give me something to said I have become directfully hungry, and the up of tongue is growing parched."

The birds spoke.

36 At this interval arrived Visvamitra great in austerities; but, seeing Haris-c'andra lying on the ground in a swoon,

37 he sprinkled the king with water and addressed him thus:—
"Rise up, rise up, O supreme king; give me the fee I desire.

38 A debtor's misery increases from day to day." Then being 39 refreshed with the snow cold water, the king, recovering conscionsness, and perceiving Viśvámitra, again fell into a swoon, 40 and the Mani grew angry. The brahman, making the king recover, spoke: -- ' Let my fee be given me, if thou regardest 41 eighteousness. By truth the sun sheds warmth; in truth the earth stands firm; truth in speech is the highest rightethe earth stands firm; that in speech is the mignest righte-42 outness: Svarga is based on touth. Also a hundred horse-sacrifices and truth are placed in the balance -- truth verily 43 outweight the hundred horse-sacrifices. Otherwise what motive is there for my speaking thus penceably to thee, base 44 one, evil-intentioned, and cruel, false in speech? Since thou art powerful as king, let this my kindly feeling be headed. If 45 O king, thou shalt not give me the fee to-day, when the 45 O king, thou shall not give me the fee to-day, when the sun reaches the Western mountain, then I will assuredly curso thee."

Having spoken thus the brahman departed; and the king 46 remained, weak with terror, fugitive, vile, indigent, harassed by the malicious and the rich. His wife again spoke thus—

47 "Let my proposal be complied with, lest consumed by the fire of his curse then perish." But the king, thus urged

48 by his wife again and again, teplied-" Lady, here without pity I proceed to sell thee; what even the malicious could not

49 do, that do I, if my voice be able to utter so hard a speech as this." Thereupon having so spoken to his wife, he went unnerved to the city and then, his throat and eyes impeded with tears, uttered this speech;—

The king spoke.

50 "Ho! ho! citizens, listen ye all to my word. Why do ye ask me, 'ho! who art thon?' I am mischievous, inhuman Stratistics a very ornel Reliabane, or even more wicked then that $2.1, who will not yield up my life, am come to sell my wife. If any of you has need of the desire of my life as a slave-girl, let him speak quickly while I survive."

The birds spoke.

A certain aged brahman approaching accosted the king—
"Deliver the slave-girl to me; I am a purchaser, paying teady money. I have no little wealth, and my wife is very young; she cannot perform the household duties; therefore give me this girl. This wealth is proportionate to the skill, age, beauty and disposition of thy wife: take it; deliver me the maiden." When thus addressed by the brahman, king Haris-c'andra's mind was lacerated with grief; nor did he make him any reply. Thereupon the brahman binding up the money in cash in the end of the king's back-cloth dress, dragged off the queen, seizing her by the hair. But the child Robitisya, who had a boy's side-locks of hair, and who was clutching her dress with his hand, wept on seeing his mother dragged away.

The queen spoke.

59 "Loose, loose me, noble Sir! while I take a look at my boy. A future view of him, kind Sir! will be difficult to get.
60 See! come my child to me thy mother thus sold into slavery. Do not touch me, my royal child! I must not be touched by 61 thee now!" Then suddenly the boy seeing his mother dragged along, ran to her crying "Mother!" with tear-soiled eyes.
62 The brahman purchaser, seeing the child had approached, kicked him with his foot; the latter, however, exclaiming "Mother!" did not leave hold of his mother.

The queen spoke.

63 "Shew me favour, O master! and buy this boy. Although purchased, I shall not be a diligent servant to thee, Sir, 64 when separated from him. Do thou in this way beam favourably on me unfortunate; unite me with my child, as a cow with her calf."

"Take thou this wealth and give me the boy: the wage of a man and woman have been fixed by those conversant with the Dharma-sastras at a hundred, a thousand, and a hundred thousand pieces, and a price of ten millions by others."

The birds spoke,

66 Accordingly then he bound that money in the king's upper garment, and taking the boy bound him close together

67 with his mother. Seeing them both, his wife and son, led away, the king lamented sorely grieved, sighing deeply again

68 and again. "My wife whom neither the wind, nor the sun, nor the moon, nor the populace formerly gazed on, here she

69 is, fallen into bondage. Here is my boy, who is sprung from . the Solar race, and whose hands and fingers are very young,

70 disposed of by sale. Shame on me, sorry fool that I am! Ah, my darling! ah, my child, my pet! my improdent conduct, base man that I am; has brought me into thraldom to fato; yet I am not dead, ah shamo!"

The birds apoke.

- While the king was thus lamenting, the brahman taking them both disappeared hastily among trees, houses and other
- 72 high objects. Then Viśvámitra meeting the king, demanded the wealth; Haris-c'andra delivered that money to him.
- 73 Considering those riches, procured by the sale of the wife, insufficient. Kansika curaged addressed the sorrow-stricken
- 74 king. "O kshatriya, if thou deemest this a fitting sacrificial fee for me; then behold thou quickly my appreme might,
- 75 arising from austerities well performed here, and from stainless brahmanhood, and from my terrible majesty, and from my perfect study."

Hariś-c'andra spoko.

"More will I give thee, adorable one; be pleased to wait 76 some time; at present I have nought; my wife has been sold, and my young son."

Viávámitra spoke.

"This fourth part that now remains of the day, O king, for 7.7 that I must wait; nought more must I say to thee."

The hirds spoke.

- So, having uttered the harsh pitiless speech to the supreme king, the angry Kausika took the money and quickly departed.
- 79 When Visvamitra had gone, the king, encompassed by a sea of fear and sorrow, after reflecting in every aspect, speke aloud,
  - 80 with downcast face: "Whatever man desires me for a sleve, bought with money, let him speak quickly, while the sun yet shines."
    - Then advanced hastily the god Dharma, wearing the form of a c'andala, foul-smolling, disfigured, uncouth, bearded,
  - 82 with projecting teeth, compassionate, dark in complexion, his belly pendulous, his eyes tawny and haggard, his pronunciation rade, and carrying a batch of birds, adorned with gar-
  - 83 lands taken from corpses, a skull in his hand, his face long, horrid to look at, talking much and often, surrounded by a pack of dogs, dreadful, a staff in his hand, hideous

The c'andála spoke.

84 "I am an applicant to thee; tell me quickly thy own hire, at which, whether little or much, thou art to be acquired."

The birds spoke.

85 There gazing at him, such as he was, cruel-cyed, very coarse, muttering, very bad in disposition, the king asked "Who art thou?"

The c'andála spoke.

86 "I am a c'andála, known hero in this greatest of cities as Pravire, famed as the slayer of those condemned to death, the gatherer of blankets from corpses."

Hariś-c'andra spoke.

87 "I should not wish to become the despicable slave of a c'andála; better to be consumed by the fire of the curse rather than to be thrall to a c'andála."

The birds spoke.

88. While he was so speaking, the great hermit Visyamitra arrived his eyes rolling with anger and wrath, and will to the king :-

Višvámitra spoke.

89 "This c'andala is ready to give thee no little wealth; why is not my full sacrificial fee paid mo?"

Hariś-c'andra spoke.

90 "Adorable descendant of Kuśika! I know myself to be sprung from the Solar race; how, though desirous of wealth, shall I go into bondage to a c'andala?

Višvámitra spoke.

91 "If then wilt not give me the c'andála's wealth, obtained in exchange for thyself, at the fixed time, I will assuredly curse thee."

The birds spoke.

92 Thereupon the king Haris-candra, his life bound up in his auxiety, overcome with agriation seized the Rishi's feet, 93 exclaiming. Be then gracions! I am a slave; I am in suffering; frightened am I; and I am specially the votary: shew me favour. O Brahmarshi! Deplorable is association with 94 candálas. Instead of the balence of the money, I would be subject to thee indeed, O mighty Mani! the agent in every matter, the servant, obedient to the will."

Višvámitra spoke

95 "If your honour is my servant, then, given by me to the c'andila for a hundred millions of money, thou hast fullen into slavery:"

- When he had so spoken, the low out-caste then, glad in mind, giving that pelf to Viśvámitra, bound the king and 97 led him, bewildered by blows of the staff, his senses atterly confused, grieved at his separation from his loved kindred, to his town.
  - 98 Then king Haris-c'andra, dwelling in the c'andala's town, at string meon and evening sang this :- "My downcast girl seeing before her my downcast son, filled with grief, 100 remembers me; hoping 'the king will free us both,' by giving, when he has amassed wealth, more wealth than this to the brahman.' She, fawn-eyed, does not know that I 101 have done more wickedly. Loss of kingdom, abandonment of friends, sale of wife and son, and this c'andala-life that 102 I have sank to: -- alas! a succession of misfortunes." Dwelling in this condition, he remembered unceasingly his beloved son and his soul-engrossing wife; deprived of all his property, and abject.

103 Now for some time king Haris-c'andra, as a servant to that man, became a gatherer of garments from dead bodies at the

104 burning-ground, and was instructed by the c'andála, who gathered garments from dead bodies-"Stay here day and 105 night on the lock out for the arrival of corpses. This part is to be given to the king, and a sixth part is for the corpse, let three parts be for me, and two parts for thy wages."

Thus instructed he went to the mortnary house and to the 106 southern quarter, where then stood in Benares the burning-

107 ground, a place of horrible cries, frequented by hundreds of jackals, strewn with the garlands from corpses, foul-smelling,

108 recking with smoke, thronged by Piśác'as, Bhútas, Vetálas, Dákinis, and Yakshas, crowded with vultures and jackals,

109 encompassed by packs of dogs, thickly strewn with heaps of bones, full of dreadful odours; pervaded with the cries of the friends of the various dead persons and with a terrible

110 hubbab-"Ah! son!-friend!-ab! kinsman!-brother!my child, dear to me now !--ab ! husband !--sister !--mother !

111 -ah! maternal uncle! - paternal grandfather!--maternal grandfather !- father !- grandson !- where art thou gone ! -come, my kinsman!"; where was heard a great din of

112 persons uttering such cries as these :- a place filled with the

118 sputtering of burning flesh, marrow and fat. Black halfburnt corpses, their rows of teeth just bursting into view. grinned from amidst the tire, as if saying, . This is the body's . 114 final state!' Here the fire crankled along rows of bones of

THE PROBLEM BARRY & LIDER

relations, which was caused by the merriment of the purious

- 115 kasas. There is heard a very loud and frightful sound, as if at the close of the ago,—of Bhutus, Votálas, Piáccas,
- 116 Ganas and Rákahasas singing. Crowded with great heaps of buffaloes' ordure and cows' dung; and surrounded with high piles of the ashes derived therefrom, mixed with bones;
- 117 darkened by the confusion of the crows among the many offerings, garlands and lamps; filled with many sounds, the
- 118 burning-ground resembles Naraka.† The burning-ground reverberated with the fire-prognant, inauspicious yells of the she-jackals; it was impenetrable by reason of the terrific cries; very dire; with the close contagion of fear; and painful by reason of the sounds of lamentation.
- 119 The king arrived there, unhappy, ready to grieve: "Ah servants, ministers, bráhmans! Where has that my kingdom
- 120 gone. O Creator? Ah Saivyá! ah my young son! forsaking me, luckless one, through Viśvámitra's fautt they both, mine
- 121 own relatives, have gone elsewhere." There revolving thus in his mind over and over again the words of the c'andala, dirty, uncenth in every limb, his hair long, nul-odorous, bear-
- 122 ing a flag, armed with a club, somewhat resembling Doath, and gunning hither and thither, exclaiming "This price has been
- 123 obtained for this corpse, and shall I get it? This is mine, this is for the king, and this for the head c'andala;" the king, while running in all directions, and while alive,
- 124 ontered into another birth. Clothed in patched cloth made of old rags well fastened together; his face, arms, belly and feet covered with ashes from funeral piles and with dust;
- 125 his hands and fingers smeared with various kinds of fat, oil and marrow; sighing; intent on satisfying himself by
- 126 feeding on various corpses and water; § his head dressed with
  - * A low caste.
- † Naraka, the general name for hell or the place of terment; it is distinguished from Pátilla, the lower regions.
  - 1 Read bheyam for bhayam !
  - I The text nand-favodana-kritahara seems to be incorrect.

W. of by night, frequently exclaiming "ah! alse!" In this manner passed twelve months as if a hundred.

One day that noble king wearied, separated from his kind-128 red, and uncouth in form, being overpowered by slumber, fell indeed into a dead sleep; and there on his pallet beheld a 129 great wonder:-Through the power of destiny, he had in another body by diligent occupation at the burning-ground 130 given the guru his fee, and there was immunity from the infliction of pain for twelve years. Then he saw himself conceived 131 in the wond of a pakkasa woman. Further the king, when in that condition, considered thus--"Immediately I am 132 born, I will verily practice the duty of liberality." Thereupon he was born. Then as a pukkasa boy he was always ready to perform the obsequies of the dead bodies in the 133 burning-ground. On his reaching his seventh year, a dead bráhman was brought to the burning ground by the relatives; then he perceived that the brahman had been poor and 134 virtuous. But he, asking for his wage, despised the brahmans; those bráhmans mentioned there what Visvámitra had done, --135 "Do thou a deed most sinful, and vicious, O evil-doer; Harisc'andra the king was formerly turned by Visvamitra into 136 a pukkasa for breaking the slumber of a brahman, by the destruction of his merit." When he did not have patience 137 with them, they then in anger carsed him-" Go forthwith thou vilest of men to terrible Naraka." Immediately upon 138 these words, the king still in his sleep saw Yama's messongers, bearing nooses, terror-inspiring. He saw himself 139 then seized by them and led off by force. Sorely afflicted, exclaiming, "Alas now, O mother! O father!" he fell 140 into Naraka into a tub of oil. And he was toru asunder beneath 141 darkness, feeding on pus and blood. He saw his dead self, seven years old, in the form of a pukkasa. Day by day in 142 Naraka he is burnt and roasted in one place; he is attlicted and shaken in another place; he is killed and torn as under by saws and the edges of razors, and suffered pain in dense

THE STORT OF MADIS -C'ANDRES

ta mother place; in another he is made to melt away and the blaze; in another place he is assailed with cold winds. To remained in Naraka one day, which was as long as a hundred years; so a hundred years there in Naraka are called by 144 the demons. Thereafter cast upon the earth he was born a dog, eating filth and vomited matter, and enduring cold

145 and heat: in a month he died. Next he saw his body born as an ass, an elephant, a monkey, an ox, a goat, a cat, and a heron, a bull, a sheep, a bird, a worm, a fish, a tortoise, and

'146 a wild boar, a porcupine, a cock, a pairot, a maina, and motionless living objects, a snake and other corporeal beings.

147 Day by day consumed with grief he saw the birth of one living being after another; a day was as a hundred years.

148 A full hundred years thus passed with him there born among the lower creation. And the king saw himself born once again 149 in his own race. While in that state, he lost his kingdom in dice-playing; and his wife was carried off, and his son too; 150 and he sought the forest alone. There he saw a terrible 150 and he sought the forest aions. There he saw a territor ravenous hou approaching with open mouth, accompanied by a

151 young elephant; and again he was devoured, while ready to bewail his wife, 'Ah S'aivyá! where at thou gone now,

152 forsaking me here in misery?' Again he saw his wife with her son imploring him, 'Rescue us O Haris-c'andra! What 153 hast then to do with dice-playing, my lord? Thy son has fallen to a lamentable condition, and so has thy wife S'aivyá."

Then he no longer saw them, though running about again and 154 again. And again he saw,—he the king was souted in * S'áriká, a mainá. There are several kinda of mainas (or myanas). The best known are the Common mains deribelleres to its, which is a brown bird common throughout india, and the Nepal Hill mains Fulsees intermedia, which is a black bird found along the lower ranges of the Himálayas. Bothers commonly esged and learn to task, but the latter attains much higher proficiency. (Jerdon's Birds of India, Edu. Godwin-Austen, Vol. II, pp. 325 and 339). Prof Monier Williams says S'áriká is Gracult religiosa or Turdus saltes. The former name is an old name of the Southern Hill mains (E. religiosa) and of the Nepal Hill mains (E. intermedia). (Id., Vol. II, pp. 337, 339). I do not find the second name in Jerdon.

† Surabha; or a fabulous animal with eight legs, stronger than a list.

CANTO VIII.

- 155 hair, stript of her garments, exclaiming 'Ah! alas! rescue me!' in repeated cries. Then again he saw there through 156 Yama's ordainment—the dwellers in the sky are calling out 'Come hither O king! Yama has been addressed by Visva-
- 157 mitra, O king, regarding thee. Yamu's vervants, who bore
- nooses of serpents, having thus spoken, lead away the prince 158 by force. Yama related Viśvámitra's deed. At that point, how-
  - ... ever, his change which resulted from iniquity came to an end.

    These were all his states of being which were revented in sleep;
- 159 they were all experienced by him during twelve years. When the twelve years were spent, being brought forcibly by the
- 160 demons, he saw Yama in bodily shape. Yama addressed the king, 'This anger of the high-souled Visyamitra is difficult
- 161 to be resisted. Kansika will inflict even death on thy son.

  Go then to the world of men, and underge the remainder of the suffering. When then art gone there, O supreme king!
- 162 thou shalt obtain happiness.' And when the twelve years expired, the king, at the end of his misery, fell from the sky, being thrust away by Yama's messengers.
- And when fallen from Yama's world, he awoke through the agitation of fear, exclaiming, "Alas! woe is me!" thinking of the working of the corrosive substance in his wounds.
  - 164 "In my sleep I have seen grievous wee, the end of which have twelve years, as I have seen in
  - 165 my sleep, gone with me?" he inquired with agitation of the pukkasse standing there. "No" replied certain of the bystanders; and others said exactly the same.
- 166 Then the king grieved at hearing this, sought the gods for refuge, ejaculating, "May the gods bestow blessings on me,
  - 167 on S'aivya and on my child. Adoration to great Dharma!

    Adoration to Krishna the creator, all-comprising, pure,
  - 168 ancient, and immutable! Adoration to thee, O Vrihaspata!
  - 169 Having attered this proyer, the king employed himself in the pukkasas' occupation, in fixing the price of corpses, as if again dead in memory. Filthy, matted-haired, black, he, nor wife indeed, in the track of his memory; ruined in energy was he through the loss of his kingdom; dwelling then in the burning-ground.

171. To that place came his queen, bewailing, bringing her son 172 dead, for the boy had been bitton by a snake. "Ah my-darling! ah my son, my child!" thus she was oft exclaiming; emaciated, pallid, insone, ber hair covered with dust.

The queen speke.

173 "Alas O king! dost thou not see to-day on earth this thy child, whom thou didst formerly see playing about, now bitten by a huge snake and dead?"

174 The king, listening to that her lamentation, hurried thither

175 thinking "here will be a dead man's bianket." But the king did not recognise as his wife her, who was weeping sorely, who worn with his long absence was like a woman in another

176 birth. The princess too seeing bin, who formerly had boautiful tooks, now with matted earls did not recognise the 177 king, who was like a withered tree. The king seeing the sneke-bitten child, who was characterized with the kingly

178 marks, on the black cloth, fell into a toveries- "Ah! alas to what a state has this child bore in the family of some king

179 been brought by malignant Dath! For, since I have seen my child thus lying in his mother's lap, my child Rohitásya 180 with his lotus-like eyes recurs to my memory. Such indeed would be my child, and of about this age, if dreadful. Death has not made bin bis thrall."

The queen spoke.

181 "Ah my child! through disregar? of some sin this great and terrible evil has befallen as, the cud of which we do not.

182 perceive. Ah, my lord king! how dost thou remain placidly in some place without consoling me who am miserable?

183 Loss of kingdom, for aking of friends, sale of wife and child—what has thou not done to the Raijarshi Haris-candra, O creator?"

184 Hearing this her lament the fallen king, recognising his deeding very S'aivya, this is my child!" and wept consumed used with sorrow, and fell into a swoon. She too recognising him fallen into that state, fainted with affliction and sank motion-less to the ground. The king and queen both regaining consciousness together, wailed in deep suffering, oppressed with the load of anguish.

The king spoke.

"Alas my child! when I look on thy very young face, with its beautiful eyes, brows, nose and curls, is not my afflicted 189 heart torn asunder? To whom, as he comes to me of himself sweetly babbling, 'Father, dear father,' shall I affectionately exclaim with an embrace, 'My child, my child'?

,190 By whose knees shall the yellow dust be brought that shall 191 soil my upper garment, my lap and body? Born of my body and limbs, thou wast the delight of mind and heart to me, who, bad father that I am, sold thee, O my child, like a chattel.

192 After snatching away my large kingdom entire, with its resources and wealth, Fate as a nexious sorpent then bit my

193 child. Just gazing on the lotus-face of my son, who has been bitten by the screent Fate, even 1 am now blinded 194 by the dire poison." Having thus spoken, incoherent through tears, he took the boy, and embracing him, fell motionless in a swoon.

The queen spoke.

"This tiger-like man is known truly by his voice; he has the moon-like mind of a wise man; it is Haris-c'andra with-

196 out doubt. And his nose is prominent in front and goes downwards; and like opening buds are the teeth of him,

197 the renowned, the high-souled. Wherefore has this king come to the burning-ground to-day?"

Coasing her grief for her son, she looked at the prostrate. 198 king. Agitated, surprised, afflicted, sorely oppressed on account of her husband and son, gazing carnestly, she then saw her husband's abominable staff fit for a low outcaste.

- Therenpon the long-eyed lady fainted, and gradually regaining consciousness, spoke falteringly:—
- "Fie on thee, O Fate! most doleful, unruly, abominated, who hast reduced this god-like king to the position of a low out-
- 201 caste. Though thou didst make him undergo loss of kingdom, forsaking of friends and the sale of wife and son, yet hast thou turned the king, after he was parted from us, into this
- 202 c'andála. Ah! O king! why dost thou not now raise me, who am thus afflicted, from the ground and tell me to mount
- 203 to thy couch? I do not see this day thy regal umbrella, nor yet thy golden vase, thy chowrie or fan; what is this revolu-
- 204 tion? He, before whom formerly, when he moved, kings in the guise of servants freed the earth from dust with their
- 205 own upper garments, such having been, he the supreme king now walks oppressed with grief in the burning-ground, which is thickly strewn with jars and pots, with skulls fast fixed therein; where the hair of corpses is concealed by the
- 206 remains of sacrificial ceremonies and strongs; where the cavities of the dry ground are bedecked with oily exudations; which is dreadful by reason of the mixing of the marrow and half-burnt bones with the askes and charceal; where the
- 207 small birds have been scared away by the cries of the voltures and jackels; which has spread gloom over the regions of the sky with the colour of the trails of smoke from
- 208 the funeral piles; where the night-reaming demons are joyful through the delight of tasting carrion."
- 209 Thus having spoken the princess embraced the king's neck and, bearing hundreds of wees and griofs, lamented with sorrowful voice,—

The queen spoke.

- 210 "O king, is it sleep or waking truth? Tell me Sir, this that thou art thinking of: my mind is bewildered indeed.
- 211 If this be so, O thou conversant with righteonsness, there is no help in righteonsness, nor in worship of bráhmans, gods
- 212 and others, nor in protecting the world; there is no such thing as righteousness. Whence are there truth, and candour, and constructs in that thou, the devotes of righteonsness, hast been constend from thy kingdom ?"

Hearing this her speech, sighing deeply he related in faltering accents to the slender-limbed lady, how he had 214 become a low outcaste. She also the timid lady wept very long, and sighing deeply, full of grief, told him how her son had met his death.

The king spoke.

215 "My darling, I choose not to undergo affliction for a long time, nor is my soul decile, O slender-limbed ludy. Behold 216 my ill-fortune. If I shall enter the fire, with the permission of the c'andála, I shall in another birth go again into 217 bondage to c'andálas 1 shall fall into Naraka, as a wormeating insect; into Vaitarioi* which is slimy with much pus, 218 fat, blood, and sinews. Reaching the Asi-patra wood, I shall be frightfully cut to pieces; or reaching Mahá-rangava 219 and Raurava I shall be burnt. Surrender of life is the shore for one sunk in the ocean of grief. I had just one son, who 220 was this boy, to continue my family. He too has sunk through the violence of the waters of my Fate, which are very strong. How shel! I resign my life? I am dependent 221 on others, and in a strait. Or, does not a man afflicted with pain regard evil? There is no such suffering in the brute 222 creation, nor in the Asi-patra forest. Whence is there such suffering in Vaitarini as in the bereavement of a son? I will 223 fall then with my son's body into the blazing fire, O slender-limbed! Thou must pardon my ill-deeds; and do thou who hast my permission go to the brahman's house, () bright 224 suffer! And hearken, O stender-limbed! to my word with sepectful mind. If one makes gifts, if one offers sacrifices, 225 If the gurus are satisfied, there may be union for me in another world with my son and with thee. But whence in this 226 world will there be this aim for me? In company with thee I shall speed happily on in the search for our son, which I shall make laughingly or somewhat secretive O bright-smiler.

THE PROPERTY REALIST CANDEL

despise not that brahman through pride that thou art a queen; thou must please him with thy utmost efforts, as if he were thy lord and god, O beautiful lady!"

The queen spoke.

228 "I also, O Rájarski, unable to endure the burden of grief will assuredly enter the blazing fire with thee here this day."

The birds spoke.

- 229 Thereupon the king heaping up the funeral pile, placed his son thereon; and then associated with his wife he joined his
- 230 hands reverently, thinking of the Supreme Soul, Siva, Náráyana Hari Vásudova, the ruler of the gods, who sits in the cave-like recesses of the heart, of Brábman who is without beginning or end; of Krishna, yellow-clad, beautiful.
- 231 While he was thinking, Indra and all the gods, making 232 Dharma their leader, assembled in baste. Approaching spake
- they all—'Ho! O king! heacken. O lord! This is Brah-
- 233 man, visible to open sight, and the adorable Dharma himself; and here are all the Sadhyas,* the Marats,* the Lokapálas,* with their vehicles, the Nágas,$ the Sadhas; and the Gand-
- 231 harvas, and the Radros and the two Asims, these and and others, many in number, and also Visyamitra, whom the
- 235 three worlds could not formerly make a friend. But Visvámitra desires to proffer thee friendship and good."

He mounted, thereon he met Dharma, and Indra and Visvámitra.

Dharma spoke.

- 236 "Be not rash, O king! I Dhaema have visited three, gratified with thy patience, self-command, truth and other virtues."
  - · Class of inferior deities.
  - + Wind-gods.
  - I Guardian-gods of the world.
  - § Human-facod serpents of Pátála.
  - || Class of demi-gods.
- ¶ Demi-gods, Indra's celestial musicians.
  - ** Eleven demi-gods (personified ropring of the wind),

Indra spoke

237 "O virtuous Harif-o'andra! I Indra have approached night thee; the eternal worlds are won by thee and thy wife and 238 son! Accompanied by thy wife and son, ascend, O king! to the third heaven, which to others is very difficult of attainment, but which has been won by thine own deeds."

The birds spoke.

239 Then Indra, the lord, going to the funeral pile, poured down from the sky a shower of nectar that prevents sudden

240 death, and a very copious shower of flowers, accompanied with the sound of the heavenly drams, here and there on

241 that closely-gathered assemblage of gods. Then the highsouled king's son arose, very youthful in body, in per-

242 feet health, placid in his organs and mind. And king Haris-c'andra immediately embraced his son; and in possessing his wife regained his own Fortune. He was decked 243 with heavenly garlands; and was happy, completely satisfied in heart, and filled with supreme joy.

244 Indra at once re-addressed him. "Accompanied by thy wife and son, they shalt gain supreme felicity. Ascend, O virtuous king, by the results of thy own actions!"

Haris-c'andra spoke.

245 "O king of the gods! while unpermitted by my master the low outcaste, I will not, without having recompensed* him, ascend to the abode of the gods."

Dharma spoke.

246 "Perceiving this thy affliction that was to be, I myself descended as the low outcaste through an illusion of myself; and I displayed that inconsiderate conduct."

Indra spoke.

247 Accord, O Haris-c'audra, to the supreme abode which is desired by all mankind on the earth, the abode of men holy in deed."

Hariś-c'andra spoke.

248 "O king of the gods, adoration to thee! hearken also to this

For a-gatvá read a-dattvá ?

THE STORT OF BARB'-CARDEA.

349 countenance is beautified through benignity. My subjects in the city of Kośalá* remain with minds sunk in my grief; how disregarding them shall I now ascend to heaven?

250 The murder of a brahman, the killing of a garm, the slanghter of cattle, and the slaying of women--equal to these has been pronounced the great sin incurred in the abandonment

251 of one's adherents. Neither in this world on in the other do I see happiness for one who abandons an obsequious

252 and innocent adherent, who ought not to be abandoned. If they go to Svarga in company with m., O lord of the gods! then I too will go; or I will go even to Naraka with them."

Indra spoke.

253 "Many are their merits and sins, various and diverse. How wilt then again attain to Svarga which will be enjoyed by multitudes?"

Haris c'anora spoke

254 "O Indra, by the influence of the householders a king onjoys his kingdom, and sacrifices with great sacrifices, and works

255 meritorious deeds; and therefore by their influence have 1 performed everything; I will not torsake those benefactors

256 in the desire to gain Svargo. Therefore whatever, O lord of the gods, I have done well, whatever I have given in alms, whatever sacrifies or prayers I have made, let thus be com-

257 mon to them and us. For whatever fruit of my action must be enten through long time, let that be for me and them together just a single day through thy favour!"

The birds spoke:

258 "So shall it be!" thus having spoken India, lord of the three worlds, and Dharma, and Visvámetra, Gádhi's son, 259 became propitious in their minds. Indra went from Svarga to the earth, with a company of ten million heavenly chariots and addressed the people of Ayodhyá thus, "Ascend 260 ye to heaven." And having heard with effection that speech of Indra and the king's speech, and having brought

CANTO VIII.

- gods also, the Munis, and the Siddhas, enthroned the king's son in the charming city of Ayodhya, after enthroning the king.

  262 Then all the people, his glad and prosperous friends, with their
- children servants and wives, ascended to heaven with the king.
- 263 Those people moved step by step from one heavenly chariot to another. There king Haris-c'andra also grow in gladness.
- 264 The king, attaining unparalleled dignity with the heavenly chariots, sat on the figure of a city which was surrounded with ramparts and walls.
- 265 Then beholding his prosperity, Usanas, the eminent spiritual guide of the Daityas, conversant with the meaning and the truth of all the S'astras, sang a verse there.

S'ukra (Uśanas) spoke.

- 266 "Like unto Haris-candra there has been no king, nor shall there be. Whoever, when afflicted with his own sufferings
- 267 listens to those of others, may be obtain great happiness! May be who longs for Svarga gain Svarga; may be who longs for a son gain a son; may be who longs for a wife gain a wife; may
- 268 he who longs for a kingdom gain a kingdom! Ah, the majesty of patience! ah, the great fruit of liberality! since Haris-c'andra has reached his city and has gained his sovereignty."

- 269 This whole story of the deeds of Haris-c'andra has been declared to thee: hear the remainder of the discourse next,
- 270 O best of Munis! the outcome of the Rája-súya sacrifice, which was the cause of the decay of the earth, and the cause of that outcome, xiz. the great battle of the Mainá* and Heron.†
- * Adi, also called S'aráli. The dictionaries all say this bird is Turdus ginguianus, which is the old name. It is Jerdon's Bank Maina, Acridotheres ginguianus, which is common throughout Upper India, and burrows in the river banks (vol. II, p. 826). Jerdon gives salik (śáriká) as the general Bengal; name for mainas; but I do not trace either of those two words in his book.
- † Vaka. Prof. Monier-Williams called this bird Africa nivida, but I do not find this name in Jordon. Bak, bag, (Bengali) and bagle (Hindi) are the general modern names for various kinds of common horons, egrets and

CANTO IX.

The Battle of the Marna and the Heron.

Vasishtha, enraged with Visvámitra for his cruelty to Harisc'andra, cursed him to become a heron, and Visvámitra cursed Vasishtha to become a mainá—Both Munis us gigantic birds have a terrible fight, and are at length parified by Brahmá.

The birds spoke.

When Haris-c'andra had left his kingdom and had gone to the abode of the thirty gods, there came out from his residence in the water the glorious family priest, Vasishtha, the Muni, who dwelt at the Ganges, at the end of twelve years; and he heard the whole of the deeds of Visvamitra, and also the downfall of the noble-dealing king Harisc'andra, and his association with the c'andâls, and his sale

4 of his wife and son. That most illustrious Mani having heard the story, being full of affection for the king, grow weathful in his dignity against the Rishi Visyanatra.

Vasishtha spoke.

- It was Visvauitte who do troyed my bounded sons; yet on that occasion I was not so wroth as I am this day, on hearing that this king, who was logh-rouled, eminent, worshipful towards the gods and brahmens, had been ousted from his kingdom. Since that king, tenthful, cranquil, devoid of envy
- 7 kingdom. Since that king, tenthful, tranquil, devoid of envy even towards an enemy, faultless also, upright in soul, vigilant,
- 8 a relicr on me, has been reduced to the last extremity together with his wife dependants and son, has been expelled from his kingdom by Višváreitra, and has been greatly worsted,
- 9 therefore that impious brahman-hater, uprooted from among bitterns. The Large Egret (Hermitas alba, Jordon), the Smaller Egret (H. egreticides), and the Little Egret (H. garretta) are all white; the Cattle Egret (Buphus coromandus) and the Pond Heror, generally known as the Paddybird, (Ardeola leucoptera), which are most commonly called tag and bryis, have white bodies (Jordon, vol. 11, pp. 744-751).

the wise, blasted by my carse, the fool, shall be turned into a heron."

The birds spoke

Hearing the curse, the glorious Viśvámitra likewise, Kuśika's descendant, inflicted the counter-curse, "Do thou also 11 become a mainá."† Both those most illustrious sages were transformed into birds through their mutual curses, the glorious Vasishtha and Visvánutra, Kušika's descendant.

Both of them, boundless in might, allying themselves with other classes of beings, fought together, exceedingly exasperated, great in strength and movess. The Mainá increased in size to two thousand yojanas; as the Heron, O bráhman, 14 increased to three thousand and ninety. And then those two, of wide heroism, assailing each other with blows of 15 their wings, created sore fear among the creatures. The Heron, his eyes swellen with blood, lifting his wings beat the Mainá; and he also, stretching out his neck, struck the

16 Heron with his feet. Overthrown by the wind from their wings, mountains fell down on the earth; and struck by the 17 downfall of the mountains the earth quaked; and the earth, as it quaked, caused the waters of the seas to swell up, and receled over on one side, turning towards the descent to Patála.

18 Living beings perished, some by the fall of the mountains, others by the waters of the seas, others through the quaking

19 of the earth. Thus overything being terrified was turned into lamentation, hereft of consciousness; the world was greatly agitated, and its countries were thrown into confusion,

20 people exclaiming "Ah, my child! ah my beloved child! come, here I am fixed"—"ah my darling wife!"—"my beloved husband!"—"this rock is falling, escape quickly."

21 Then, when the world was thus distressed and averted in terror, surrounded by all the gods, advanced the fore-father,

22 the lord of the universe, and replied to both these combutants who were violently enraged—" Let this your strife cease, and

* Nee note †, p. 58.

&#x27; + See note *, p. 58.

- 23 the worlds recover their stability!" Although they have been stabled with anger and fury still fought, and did not desist.
- 24 Therenpon the fore-father, the god, seeing the destruction of the worlds, and desiring the welfare of both of them, dis-
- 25 sipated their brute-nature; and the god, the lord of creation, addressed them both, clothed in their former bodies, Vasishtha and the noble descendent of Kušika, the senter of darkness having been dispelled:—
- 26 "Stay thou, my beloved Vasishtin, and thou, most virtuous Kansika, this contest that, while involved in the state of
- 27 darkness, ye desire to earry on. This outcome of the Rájasúya sacrifice of king Huris-éandre, and this war between
- 28 you two, are causing the earth to waste away. Nor moreover does that best of the Kansikas offend against that king, for since he has caused him to attain to Syurga, O trahman! he
- occupies the position of a benefactor. Do yo both, the creators of obstacles to gone susterities, who have fallen into subjection to lust and anger, cease, for worthy are your prayers, and ample is your power."
- 30 Thus admonished by hun, both then grew ashaned, and 31 embracing lovingly forgave each other. Thereupon, hymned by the gods, Brahmá departed to his own world, and Vasishthato his own place, and Kauska also to his own hermitage.
- 32 Those mortals, who shall fittingly relate and who shall fittingly hear this battle of the Mainá and the Heron, and the 33 story of Haris-c'andra, what they hear shall verily dispolatheir sins; nor shall they ever encounter antagonistic duties.

CANTO X.

Conversation between a father and son.

Jaimini asks the Birds for instruction how living beings come into existence and die, and how the factus lives and develops—The Birds repeat the explanation that a wise young brahman Sumati, who was nick-named Jada* because of his apparent stupidity, but who remembered his former existences, gave his father—He explains how death occurs, and describes the after-existences through which a living being passes according as it has lived well or ill—He describes incidentally the hell Raurava.

Jaimini spoke.

- Declare my doubt, when I enquire, O powerful bráhmans, wherein the appearance and disappearance of living beings
- 2 consist. How is an animal produced? How too does it develop? How, again, is it placed when contained within the
- 3 womb, pressed upon by the limbs? How, again, when it has
- issued from the womb, does it grow? And how at the moment of departure is it deprived of the sentient state? Every dead
- person also experiences the results of both his good and his bad deeds, and how ther do those deeds being about their results to
- 5 him? Why does the focus not become digested there in the stomach, as if it were converted into a morsel of food? In the
- female's belly, where the various foods consumed are digested although highly indigestible, how is it that the little animal
- 6 is not digested there? Declare all this to me, free from doubtful terms; this very matter is a transcendant mystery, where men do err.

- 7 Unparalleled is this burdensome question that then hast propounded to us; it is difficult to be imagined, touching as it does the existence and death of all living beings. Listen to it Sixt as a son prost the much by right caus, named Sarrati the content of the content o
- 8 it, Sir! as a son, most thoroughly righteous, named Sumati,; once declared it to his father.
  - See Canto XIV.
  - † For sampadayanti road sampadayati (nenter, dual, present participle)?
- ... I For Samatir read Sumatir.

- A certain highly intelligent brahman of Bhrigu's line addressed his son Sumati who had undergone his initiation, and
- 10 who was tranquil, and in appearance stupid. "Study the Vedas, O Sumati, in order from the beginning, be zealous in obedience to thy guru, make thy food of victuals collected by
- 11 begging. After that taking upon thee the duties of a honsebolder, and performing the chiefest sacrifices, beget the
- 12 desired offspring. Next resort to the forest, and then living in the forest, my son, be a wandering ascetie,* free from family ties. Thus shalt thou attain that highest object of religious knowledge, the Suprems Being, reaching which thou shalt not grieve."

- 13 Thus frequently counselled, he through his stupidity never replied: still the father again and again repeatedly admonish-
- 14 ed him affectionately. He thus frequently exhorted by his father, through paternal love, alternative and in pleasant terms, spoke thus et length with a length; -
- 15 "Father! I have repeatedly studied this that then enjoinest me to-day, the other Sastras also, and the various mechanical
- 16 arts. Ten thousand births and more have passed into my memory; disgusts and gratifications have sported in the
- 17 decay and the rise of my mind. There eeen partings and meetings among enemies, friends and wives. I have seen mothers of various kinds, and fathers of various kinds also.
- 18 I have tasted joys and sorrows thousands of times. Many
- 19 kinsmen have I gained, and fathers of divers kinds. I have also dwelt in women's wombs, shony with ordere and urine; and thousands of times have the pains of sicknesses also taken.
- 20 grievous hold of me. Many sufferings have I endured in my stomach in childhood, and youth and old age. all those do
- 21 I remember. I have been begotten of bridmans, kshutriyas and vaisyas, and even súdrus; and again of cattle and insects,
- 22 of deer and birds. I have been born moreover in the houses of kings' dependants, and of kings resplendent in battle, and

* For parierafa roud parieran.

23 in thy dwelling also. I have been a servant and a slave frequently to men. I have been a master and a lord, and a poor man as well. I have given blows, and I have received blows from others, and my own blows have procured me blows in return. Others have given me gifts, and I have given gifts to others many a time. I have been gratified also by the deeds of father, mother, friend, brother, wife and other relatives. And often have I fallen into misery with my face 26 washed with tears. Whilst thus wandering, O father, in the crowded circle of mundane existence, I have gained this knowledge, which procures final conncipation from existence. 27 That being known, all this body of religious rites, called Ric' Yajus and Saman, is worthless, and does not appear fit-28 tingly to nie. Of what use consequently are the Vedas to me, who am mature in wisdom, satiated with the knowledge 29 of the gurus, void of desires, virtuens in soul f [ will gain, O brahman! the highest seat, that Supreme Soul, which is exempt from the qualities of the sixfold actions, pain, pleasure, joy, and love. Hence, O father, I will abandon this well-known 30 sories of pains which is trinted by love, joy, fear, inquictude, anger, resentment and old age, and which is hampered with hundreds of nooses in close contact ensuaring one's own self as game, and I will depart. Does not the duty enjoined by the three Vedas, which abounds in unrighteousness,* resemble

The birds spoke.

the result of sin?"

32 Heaving that his declaration, which was interrupted by joy and surprise, the eminent father with gladsome mind addressed his son.

The father spoke.

- 33. "What is this thou sayest, my son? Whence arose thy wisdom? How came thy stapidity before, and thy awakening
- 84 now? Is this a curse-wrought change inflicted on thee by a Muni of god, since thy wisdom which was obscured has become manifest?"
- * A pun on dharma and a dharma. Prof. Monier Williams gives trays dharma as muse, only ..

The son spoke.

- **Listen, father, how this happened to me, entailing pleasure and pain on me, and who I was in another birth, and what is beyond myself.
- I was formerly a brahman, my soul fixed on the Supreme Being; I attained the highest perfection in the consideration of the knowledge of the Supreme Being. While continue the supreme Being of the Supreme Being.
- 37 tinually occupied in devotion, through constant application to study, through association with the good, through my own natural disposition, through deliberation, behaviour and
- purification, while occupying myself in this indeed I experienced the sublimest joy at all times, and I gained the position of a spiritual guide, the most successful remover of
- the doubts of disciples. A long white atterwards I attained absolute perfection; and my good disposition warped by
- 40 ignorance fell into calamity through carelessuess. Beginning from the time of my departure 1 had no failure of memory, until a year had passed and had returned to my
- 41 recollection of my births. Being such, I, keeping my organs under control, will strive indeed, O father, by means of that my former study, so to act that I may not have another
- 42 existence. For this is the result of learning and liberality that I remember former existences; this indeed is not obtained, O father, by men who apply themselves to the duty enjoined
- 43 by the three Vedas. Being such I, from my former hermitage indeed, recurring to the duty of perfection, will attain to devotion to one object and will strive for the final emancipa-
- 44 tion of my soul. Declare thou then, Sa! what is perplexing in thy heart; and to this extent let me, bringing the joy, discharge my debt."

The birds spoke

Thereupon the father spoke to his son that speech of a man of faith, which relates to the perfection of mundanc existence, and which we have been asked by thee, Sir.

The son spoke.

"Listen, O father, how I have often perceived the truth; the circle of mundanc existence is ever young, the duration of which is not known. I then tell thee the whole, with thy permission, O father, commencing from the period of departure, as no one else will tell thee.

48 "Hot moisture is excited in the body; it is set in motion by a strong vital air; blazing without fact it pierces the sites of 49 the vital organs. And then the vital air, called Udána, passes upwards, impeding the downward course of the water and food consumed.

50 "Hence he, who has offered presents of water and has given 51 food and drink, obtains joy therefrom in adversity. He also food and drink, obtains joy therefrom in adversity. He also, who has bestowed food with a mind purified by faith, is then satisfied even without food. He who has not so keep up.

52 satisfied even without food. He, who has not speken untruth, nor caused a breach of amily, a faithful believer,

63 meets a happy death. Men who have been intent on the worship of the gods and brahmans, and who are unepiteful,*

54 fair, charitable, shanefast, die hoppily. He who would not forsake rightcousness through test, or anger or hatred, who acts up to his words and is gentle, meets a happy death.

55 Men who do not give away water, nor give away food, endure then, on the approach of death, burning thirst and hunger

56 Those who give away fuel overcome cold, those who give away sanded occream heat; and those who do not inflict dis-

57 tress overcome the worful life-ending pang. Those who cause error and ignorance suffer grievon terror; base men are op-

58 pressed with intense pains. A false witness, a liar, and he who teaches evil, they all and also blaspheners of the Vedas die in delusion.

59 "Then Yama's officers, terrific, foul-smelling, carrying hammers and maces, hard-heavied, approach the false man.

60 When they meet his eyesight, trembling seizes him, and he beweils without censing his brother, mother, and children.

61 His voice seems thick, O father! and monotonous; and his sight wanders through terror; and his mouth grows dry with

62 his breathing: his bieathing grows loud; his sight fails; next

63 he is pervaded with pains; then he quits the body. Preceded by the vital airs he assumes another body, similar to the former, produced by the actions of the former, intended to chastisement, born of no methor and father, like the previous one, with the periods of life and death conformable thereto.

* For anusiyarah read an-aniyarah.

- 64 "Therenpon Yama's messenger speedily binds him with cruel fetters; drags him, bewildowd as he is with the blows
- 65 of his staff, to the southern region. And so, to some place which is rough with knon grass, thorns, ant-hills, stakes, and stones, where a fire is raging, which abounds in hundreds
- 66 of holes, and which is heated by the blazing sun, which is scorehed by his rays, he is haled by Yama's emissaries, terrible
- 67 through their glasstly cries. Being dragged about by those fearful servants, being eaten by hundreds of she-jackals, he, the evil-doer, proceeds by an awful road to Yana's abode.
- 68 Men who give umbrellas and shoes, and who bestow garments, those then pass along that road in case; and so also do those
- 69 who give away food. Thus encountering afflictions, the man oppressed with sin is led in to dve days to the city of king Yama.
- 70 "While the body is being burnt, he experiences a great burning; also while it is being bed-in, and while it is being
- 71 divided into pieces, terrible agony. While the body is being wetted a living being a dare a very bag paia, even while it is inhabiting another boo., through the consequences of
- 72 its own acts. There the deceased foods on the water that his relatives offer together with the sessionin seed and the cake
- 73 that they offer. The anointing with oil by relations, and the kneading of the limbs that they perform. - a living being is
- 74 nonrished thereby, and by what his relations* eat. A living being does not encounter excessive affliction on the earth through his deceased relatives; and so when dead he is nourished by his relatives who make gifts
- 75 "Being led off the sees his own abode for twelve days and he enjoys the water, cake &c. that are offered on the carth.
- 76 After twelve days, the man who is being carried off, next sees Yama's 249, awful, made of iron, terrible in appearance.
- 77 Immediately he has gone there he beholds Yama, with fiery red eyes, like to a mass of broken collyrium; in the midst of.

78 Death, the destroyer Time and others; his mouth gaping with projecting teeth, his countenance dreadful with frowns; a lord, surrounded by hundreds of deformed, horrible and crooked diseases; busy in awarding punishment, with long arms, a moose in his hand, very formidable. Then the living being takes the happy or miserable course decreed by him. But the false witness goes to Raurava, and the man who is untruthful. Listen while I describe the nature of that Raurava.

81 **Raurava** is in truth two thousand yojanas in size. Then there is a chasm, just knee-deep, very difficult to pass over:

82 in it charcoal is heaped up and made level with the ground.

It barns vehemently with its glowing surface of kindled

8 charcoal. In its midst Yama's servitors cast the evil-doer.

84 He runs about there, being burnt by the violent flame; and at each step, his foot is wasted and consumed again and again; day and night he continues on the move.

When he has thus passed over a thousand yojanas he is released, and then enters another similar hell Niraya, to purge away his sins. Afterwards when he has passed through all the hells, the sinner enters the brute creation, among worms, insects and hinds; among carnivorous animals;
among mosquitoes and su a like. After having been born among elephants, trees and such like, among cattle, and among horses also; and among other evil and noxions creatures; he attains humanity, and is born a man, contemptible as a hunch-back or a dwarf; among c'andálas, pukkasas and such-like castes; and then accompanied by the remainder of his sin and merit, he enters the castes in ascending order, on such as súdras, vaisyas, kings and 'so on; also the position of bráhmans, the gods and Indra. Sometimes in descending order, and thus evil-doers fall headlong into the hells.

"What happens to righteous-doers, haten while I declare that. They take the holy course decreed by Yama. Bands of Gandharvas singing, bevies of Apsatases darwing, brilliant beyond compare go forth quickly to them. And when they descend therefrom, they are born in the family of kings and other high-souled men: there observing upright conduct, they experience vigorous pleasures, and afterwards

&quot; Terrible.

† Dovoid of happiness.

95 they go upwards; and otherwise, when they take the downward. path, they become men as before.

"This has all been declared to thee, how a living being perishes. Next listen, O Brahmarshi, how the feetus begins."

CANTO XI.

Connersation between the father and son (continued).

Sumati (Jada) coplains how living beings are conceived and born, and mentions the evils of all coistence.

The son spoke.

"Now human impregnation; of women is a seed sown in durkness; immediately it is disclarated it sets out from Naraka or Svarga. Dominated thereby the two seeds attain firmness, O father! and next the character of a speck-of a globule-of a ball of flesh. As there may be a minute seed in the ball of flesh, so it is called a germ. So the five limbs upgrow according to their parts; and the minor limbs also, the

4 grow according to their parts; and the minor limbs also, the fingers, the wes, the nose, the month, and the ears, grow out of the limbs; similarly the nails and other features grow out of

5 them. In the skin is developed the hair of the body, and afterwards the hair of the head. The womb verily increases

6 ... size equally with it. Just as the coron-nut enlarges together & with its shell, so it grows in size. The womb is situated with

7 its mouth downwards. But at the bottom of the words the fields develops, placing its hands on either side of the knees: and its thumbs are placed upon the knees, and its finger in

8 front of them; behind the knees are the eyes, and between the killies is the nose; and the buttocks rest on the ficels; the arms and legs lie outside.

* For . f. bhildni read - fobbild?

+ Ugra; or noble.

I For nishekam manaram read nisheko manarah?

"In this way gradually grows the human being, when contained in a woman's womb: in the womb of other creatures, the position of the focus corresponds to its form. The gastric fluid* renders it firm. It lives on the food at 1 drink taken by its mother. Thus the gestation of a living creature is meritorious, and constitutes a means of obtaining merit. Also the cord, which is called Apyayani, is fixed in its navel, and it 12 becomes fixed in the belly of women. As women's food and drink penetrate into their womb, the focus increases in size, its body being nourished thereby.

"Numerous matters of its transmigrations occan to its memory; hence distressed on this side and on that it becomes dispirited, thinking. 'Never again will I thus act, when once

I am delivered from this womb; assuredly I-will so strive 15 that I do not again undergo conception. Thus it meditates, recollecting the hundreds of pains attending existence, which have been experienced aforetime, and which spring from destiny.

16 "Afterwards in the course of time the fortes tarns round with its face downwards, since it is born in the ninth or tenth

17 month. While it is being expelled, it is pained by the wind of the prajapatis, and it is expelled wailing, being pained at

18 heart by its sufferings. And when expelled from the belly, it falls into an intolerable swoon, and it gains consciou mess

19 when it comes into contact with the air. Thereupon Vishnu's magical power, which effaces consciousness, assails it; its soul being stupofied thereby, it loses its knowledge.

20 ."Thereafter the homan being, bereft of knowledge, enters on childhood; and afterwards on boyhood, youth and mature

21 age; and again the human being undergoes death, and so birth. Hence he revolves in this round of mandane existence, like the jar and rope at a well.

22 "Sometimes a man reaches Svarga, sometimes Niraya; and23 sometimes the dead man goes to Narake and Svarga. Sometimes times indeed re-born here, he obtains the consequences of his own actions; and sometimes the man who has consumed the consequences of his actions, passes at death with a very small remainder. And hence he is sometimes born here with a scanty stock of good and evil, having almost consumed them in heaven* and in hell,† O brahman! In the hells there is 25this very great suffering that the dwellers in Svarga are visible thence, O father; and the denizens of hell rejoice, as they are harled down. Even in Syurga there is an 26 unparalleled pain in that from the very time of ascension there this thought revolves in one's mind, 'I shall fall from hence'; and from viewing the helt; great suffering is folt; day and night one is cheerless, thanking 'I shall go this 28 course.' One who is being born has great authoring in remaining in the womb; and after both one has suffering in childhood and old age. The connexion also between desire 29 envy and anger is crievens to bene in youth, and old ago is almost all suffering; the heaviest suffering lies in death. 30 Both for him who is borne off by Years's messengers, and for him who is incled down to the hells, there are again destined both conception, and birth, death and hell.

* Agni.; or, the digestive fugulty.

MACHINES OF THE HELDS MARLEAURAYA, &C.

So in this round of proudance existence creatures tevolve about, like the jur and rope at the well; and taving been bound with the fetters of nature they are bound repeatedly.

32 No pleasure is there a whit, O tather, in this world crowded with hundreds of paint; why then should this giving for omancipation from existence observe the three branches of religion?"

CANTO XIL.

Jada describes the Hell: Mahis-anvara, Tamus Vikrintana, Apratishtha, Asi-patra-rana, and Tapta-kumbha to Lis father.

The father spoke.

1 "Good, my son! thou hast declared the despess obscurity of mundanc existence, relying on the great finit that grows

2 from the bestowal of knowledge. Therein thou hast verily · Syar-loka. † Nuraka. † For modernte read ridante?

CANTO MIL

4

described the Raurayas as well as all the Narakas; tell me of them at length, O mighty in intellect!"

The son spoke.

🛂 🗸 "I have described to thee first the hell Raurava, now listen to the description of the hell named Mahá-raurava. O father!

- There for seven times five thousand yojanas all around the
- carth is made of copper; beneath it; is fire. Heated by the heat thereof the whole region shines with a light equal to that of the rising moon, most intensely severe to sight touch and the
- 6 other sensations. There the evil-doer is deposited, bound hand and foot, by Yama's servants; he moves rolling about in the
- midst. Preyed upon by crows, herons, wolves, and owls, 7 scorpions, and mosquitoes, and vultures he is speedily drag-
- ged out into the road. Burnt and confounded, he exclaims 8 repeatedly, "Father! Mother! Brother! Dear one?" Full of
- fear he can get no repose. In this manner therefore emunci-9 pation from existence is attained to by violent men, who evilminded have committed sin, in ten thousand times ten thousand years.
- 10 "Moreover there is another hell named Tamas it it is bitterly cold naturally; it is as long as Mahá-raurava, and is enveloped
- in darkness. There the men, afflicted with the cold, running about in the awful darkness, encounter one another and seek
- 12 refuge clasping one another. And their teeth adhere together, chattering with pain through the cold; there are also other
- plagues the strongest of which are hunger and thirst. A cutting wind, laden with particles of snow, pierces their bones; prossed with hunger, they feed on the marrow and blood that
- trickle down therefrom. Constantly licking, they whirl about in mutual contact. * So there in Tamas very great affliction is
- indeed endured by human beings, until. O most worthy brahman! their sins are completely consumed.
- "Next there is another notable hell, known as Nikrintana.§ 16 In it potter's wheels revolve incessantly, O father! Human
  - _ ‡ Darkness. * Very terrible.

† For tasya read tasya?

6 Cutting off.

DESCRIPTION OF THE MALES HARA-RAUGAVA, &C.

beings are mounted thereon and are cut by the string of Fata.

17 which is borne on the fingers of Yama's servant, from the sole of the foot to the head; and these men do not lose their life.

thereby, most virtuous brühman! and their portions severed in hundreds reunite. In this way sinners are cut in sunder during thousands of years, until indeed the whole of their daring thousands of years, until indeed the whole of their sins are consumed.

 "Listen also while I speak of the hell A pratishthu the 20 "Listen also while I speak of the helf A pratishths, the occupants of which helt undergo intolerable pain. Those whoels are there indeed, and jur and well-ropes on the other 21 side, which have been constituted causes of pain to men who engage in sin. Some human beings monnted on the whools whirl around there; for thousands of years no other condition is theirs; and then modifier man is bound to the jar and 23 well-rope, as the jar in the water. Hamm beings whirl around, continually spitting out blood, with blood pontung 24 from their faces, and with over streaming with tears. They are visited with pains that are beyond endurance by living creatures.

25 "Hear also of another hell called Asi-patea-yana, * which has the ground covered with blazing fire for a thousand yojanas, where they are grievously secreted by the very 26 fierce vehicment because of the sun. The living beings that inhabit the hell are ever falling down there. In the midst 27 thereof appears a charming forest with moist leaves. The thereof appears a charming forest with most forces. The leaves there are sword-blades, O most victious brilliand! 28 Myriadst of powerful black dogs also back there, with long

9 muzzles, with large teeth, formidable as ugers. Then gazing at that lorest before them, with its cool shades, the living beings hasten thither, oppressed with raging thest, crying 'Ah nother! an dear one!' in deepest wee; their feet burnt by the fire lambent on the ground. When they wend there, a wind 31 blows, that hurls down the sword-levves, and so casts the swords down upon them. Thereat they fall to the earth into

32 a mass of blazing fire, which has pervaded the entire surface of the ground, and is constantly licking in other directions.

Therenpon the terrific dogs quickly rend many limbs from the bodies of those wailing ones. I have described this Asi-patra-vana to thee, dear father!

34 "Next learn of me about the very dreadful Tapta-kumbha." On all sides heated pitchers are surrounded with the flames 35 of the, and are tilled with oil iron and powder which boil over on to the heaps of blazing fire. Into them the workers of 36 iniquity are east head-long by Yama's servants. They are boiled, and foul the water with the marrow that cozes from their bursting limbs. Terrible vultures pulling them out fracture the eye-bones of their borsting skulls; again they are dropped into the same pitchers by the impetuous birds; again 38 they become united with the liquetied heads, limbs, sinews, flesh, skin and bones, by means of the oil in the sectling vessel. Then being quickly and vigorously stirred up by Yama's ser-39 vants with a spoon the sumers are charged up in the whirling poel of copious cil. Such is the Tapta-knudha that I have fatly described to thee, O father!"

CASTO XIII.

Correspond for between the father and was (continued).

Sumate returns an incident in one of the periods he spent in hell. King Vipaša'd comes there and asks why, in spite of a righteous life, he was condemned there.

The son spoke.

- Now I was been in a Vaisya's family in the seventh life that preceded my present one. Once upon a time I obstructed the cattle at their drinking. In consequence of that act I was consigned to a very terrible hell, fearful with flames of fire, infested with birds with iron beaks, maddy by reason of the streams of blood that flowed from limbs crushed by machines, pervaded with the sound of blood pouring down from sinners who are being cut asunder. When cast down
  - · Barning-pitcher.

+ For yamyah read yamyaih.

KING VIPAS'C IT'S VISIT TO HERE.

- there I spent a hundred years and more, scorched by the intense heat, and burning with thirst.
- 5 On a sudden a wind blew on me there, bringing gladness, deliciously cool; issuing from out of a pitcher of meal and sand.*
- 6 Through contact with it all the men were relieved of their terments, and I too gained a bliss supreme, such as the celes-
- 7 tial beings enjoy in Syanga. And with eyes fixed in a wide gaze of joy, in monder at what this was, we saw at hand a
- 8 peerless perfect man; and Yama's dire servant, staff in hand, like India's thunderboit, was showing the path in front, and
- 9 a voice come saying "come bither!" Then that man seeing the hell fill d with hundreds of fortures, moved with compassion, addressed that servant of Yama.

The man spoke.

- 10 "He servant of Yama' say, what six have I committed, for which I have incorred this deepest hell, trightful for its
- 14 forments r Known as Vapasse'tt, I was born in the family of the Janakas, in the country of Vadelia in very truth a guar-
- 12 dian of mon. I sacro sel with many specifics; I protected the earth with noriginals, now did 1 fer lighting rage; no
- 13 guest departed with averagl countenance; nor did I offend the pitris, the gods, the rishes or my servants; nor did I covet other men's wives, or we did, or night also belonging to them.
- 11 At the neon's changes the patity on other luner days the
- 15 gods, velustarily approached mankiedt a cows a pool. The two retirious duties, both so viits and meritorious work, perish our much as the performers of domestic sucrifices depart
- 16 sighing with avertid face. The merit amassed in seven lives is dissipated by the sighing of the puris, the cighing assuredly destroys the destroy that springs from three lives. Hence
- 17 I was ever indeed kindly dispered to what concerned the gods and the pitris; being such, how have I incurred this very terrible hell?"

. Or, camphor.

+ Parasha.

17

CANTO XIV.

Jada's narrative (continued) -- The conversation with Yama's officer.

Yamu's afficer tells kiny Vipas-c'it why he was condemned to hell—He explains to him the nature and results of good and evil deeds generally, and mentions at great length the punishments awarded to various special sins.

The son spoke.

Thus interrogated then by that high-souled king in our hearing, Yama's officer, though deadful, with modest speech replied.

Yama's officer spoke.

- 2 "Mah heijā! it is even as thou hast said, undoubtedly. Nevert! cless thou didst commit, Sir! a very trifling misdeed;
- 3 I will recall it to thy mind. The wife whom then hadst, a princess of Vidarbha, named Pivari. her season of aptitude for sexual intercourse was formerly rendered barren by thee,
- 4 who wast enamoured of the resplendent Krikeyi; hence for the transgression in the matter of her season then hast mean-
- 5 red, Sir's a deadful hell such as this. As the Fire expects the fall of the liquid butter at the time of the Homa oblation, even so does Bridma expect the deposit of seed at the
- 6 approved reason. A righteons man who disregarding that season, may become absorbed in objects of desire, would still incur sin by reason of the debt due to his ancestors and
- 7 would full into hell. Such indeed was thy sin; naught else is found, come then ! go. O king, to the enjoyment of thy no "terious nets."

The king spoke.

- 8 "I will go, O servant of the god, where then shalt lead me. Something I isk deign to declare it to me aright. These
- 9 crows with adament beaks are tearing out men's eyes; and these new ste having their eyes renewed again and again.
- 10 And what deed have they done? Explain this abominable thing. Likewise they are tearing out the tongue from theso

&quot; The 'Stupid one,' Sumati's nickname.

- Il other men as it is being reproduced anew. Why are these grievously afflicted men torn with a saw? Why are these other men, immersed in oil, hoiled among meal and sand?
- 12 And these other men are dragged about by iron-beaked birds; say, of what kind are they, screaming with load cries through the pain caused by the loosened bedily bands.
- 13 Pained by the wounds in every limb, why are these men, who have wrought iniquity, struck by the onslength of the iron
- have wronght iniquity, strick by the disadight of the from 14 heaks day and night. Tell me without reservation, through what maturing of their acts are these and other torments seen among sumers."

Yama's officer spoke

- 15 "Since those askest me, O king, concerning the rise of the fruits of sirral actions, I will tell thee that succinctly and
- 16 correctly. A man verily attains ment and decemb in regular to older; and his sin or his morit diministers as he consumes it.
- 17 But to luman action, whether virtuous or sinful, quickly cleanses except by consumption. Discountion arises through
- 18 consumntion. And he abandons mere and demorit through consuming it; hearken to me. From faming indeed to famine,
- 19 from affliction to affliction, from fear to fear go needy sinners, more dead than the dead. A neurofold course do
- 20 contines take through the letters of their actions. From festival to festival, from Svarga to Svarga, from happiness to
  - happiness go the faithful, and the reneefal, the rich, and the doers of good. But sinuers, when shan by sin, encounter perils from beasts of prey and elephants, terrors from snukes
- 22 and thieves, what surpasse this? Decked with fragrant garlands, c'a? in thre appared enjoying beautiful carriages dwellings and food, those who are proised ever go to succed groves with their meritorious decels.
- 23 Thus men's merit and demorit are massed in the sum of many hundreds of thousands of fives; they spring from the germs of pleasure and pain. For as the seed, O king, awaits
- the water, so do merit and demerit await bim who acts otherwise than at the right time and place. A trifling sin committed by a man, when it reaches the place and time,

CINTO LIV.

inflicts the pain produced by a thorn, when the foot is planted down heedlessly. Then it inflicts the acuter severe pain that is caused by pins and wedges, and likewise scarcely endurable headaches and other pains. * It causes the pains engendered 27 by eating unwholcsome things, by cold, heat, fatigue, inflammation and such like. Moreover sins have regard to one another amid the confluence of their results. In this way beinous 28 sins have regard to the deteriorated state of protracted illness, &c; and they verily tend to the consequences produced by weapons, fire, calamity, pain, imprisonment, and so forth. 29 A trifling good deed confers at once a pleasing fragrance, or touch, or sound, taste, or shape; more marked likewise after a long time, and great when arising at the proper period. And in this way pleasures and pains spring indead out of good and but actions. A man stays here consuming the productions of numerous mundanc existences. And the results of knowledge or ignorance are checked by race and country, and remain there united merely by outward sign to the soul. "Never and nowhere doth the man exist, who doeth not a wicked or body act in body, mind, or speech. Whatever a man 33 receives, whether pain or pleasure, whether great or insignificant, it produces a changed condition of the mind; by so 34 much either his virtue, or on the other hand his sin. gradually diminishes by consumption, just like food that is being eaten. 35 In this way these men, dwelling within hell, diminish their awful beinous sins by torments day and night. Likewise, O king, they cousume their virtues in the company of the immortals in Sverga with the songs and other joys of the 37 Gaudhurvas, Siddhas and Apsurases. In the condition of a god, and a human being, and a brate creature, one con-38 sames good or evaluarising from virtue or sin, and characterized by pleasure or pain. "What thou enquirest about of me, O king! namely 'Of what particular sins are the tortures of wicked-doers the consequences P' that I will declare to thee in full detail.

"When vile covetous men have gazed on others' wives and 40 on others' goods with evil eye and evil mind, these birds

PUNTERMENTE FOR VARIOUS SINS.

41 eyes reproduced continually. Moreover during as many twinklings of the eyes as these men have committed the sin, so many thousands of years they undergo the eye-terture.

42 "Those men who have given instruction in wicked S'astras, and those who have advised men instruction, for the purpose of

43 completely destroying the sight even of their enemies; those who have repeated the S'astra improperly; those who have given utterance to an evil word; these who have blasphened the Veda, the gods, the dvijas and their gurn; for so

44 many years these very terrible birds with adamant beaks tear out those men's very tongers as they are continually reproduced.

45 "Also hase men, who have exceed dissension among friends, or dissension between a father and hi son and rolations, between a sacrificer and a spiratual presentor, between

(4) a mother and her son who is her companion, and between wife and insband, size! these m is sho are such are form with a saw, O king!

47 "Also those who cause pain to others, and those who forbid joyousness; and tree who deprive the contains, precy places, 48 sandal, and usic grass stand loss men who have instituted suffering on innocent men at tites end others, participators in sin, who are such, are placed within neal and caud.

49 "Mercover the man who eath enother's staidtha, when invited by the other to a ceregony either to the gods or to the pitris, he is rent in twoin by backs.

50 "But whoever breestes the vitale of good men wish wicked words, those hirds to checked continually strike him.

51 "And whoever indulges in backluting, descending in speech, dissembling in mind, his tongue is asseredly toru in twain thus by sharp revers

* Andropogon maricatus, Roxburgh, the modern Lhambur. The roots, when dry, and then gently moistened, on it a pleasant fragrance; they are employed to make large fans; and also servers, which are placed before doors and windows, and which being kept most during the hot winds runder the air that passes through them coil and fragrant (Roxb, p. 89).

- "Whoever pulled up, show contempt towards their parents and gurus—these men, who are such, are plunged head foremost into a pit recking with pus, ordure and urine.
- 53 "Those who eat, while the gods, guests and living beings, dependants and visitors, and also the pitris, the fire and birds
- 54 are left unfed; those evil men feed on carrion and exudations, and they become Súc'i-mukha birds,* as large as mountains.

  Behold! there are men of that kind.
- 55 "But those who feed a brahman or a man of another caste in one company disagreeably on earth,—those men, like these persons, feed on ordere.
- Whoever cat their own food neglecting a man, who has gone forth in company with them, and who being destitute soeks wealth, -these men, who are such, feed on phlegm.
- 67 "Those men who, without washing their hands and mouth after meals, O king! have touched cattle, brahmans and the fire, these hands of theirs placed in fire-pots are licked repeatedly.
- 58 "But those men who, without washing their bands and mouth after meals, have gazed longingly at the sun, meen and stars,—in their eyes Yama's servants place fire and augment it.
- "Moreover whatever men have touched cattle, fire, their mother, a brillman, their eldest brother, father, sister,
- 60 daughter-in-law, their gurns and the aged with their feet, they stand mid piles of charcoal, with their feet bound with red-hot iron fetters, anduring burning up to the knees.
- "Whoever have caten in an unhallowed manner milk, khichree, goat's flesh, and things offered as food to the gods,—
- 62 the eyes of these sinners, as they lie hurled to the ground gazing with starting eyes, are torn out, ago! from their faces by Yama's servants with pincers.
- The dictionaries do not say what bird this is. I would suggest from the meaning of the word, that it means a Honey-Sucker (the commonest species of which is the Purple Honey-Sucker, Arachaechthes aciatica), or it may be the Honey-Opener Upoper, which also has a long signder beak (Jerdon, vol. I, pp. 270 & 390.)

- And base men who have hearkened to blasphemy again
- garus, the gods, and dvijas, and against the Vedas, the servants of Yama continually drive iron wedges, red as first into the ears, of such wicked men who rejoice in such things though they bowail the while.
- 65 "Whoever, led by anger and covetoneness, have broken up and destroyed beautiful rest-houses,* the abodes of gods and brahmans, and assemblages in the temples of the gods,—
- 66 Yama's exceedingly cruel servants continually flay the skins of those men from their body by means of these sharp instruments.
- 67 "Whatever men have made water in the path of cattle," brahmans, and the sun, these entrails of theirs are drawn out through the anus by crows.
- "Where a man after having given his daughter to some one, gives her to a second person, truly that man is thus divided into many portions, and swept along in a stream of burning corrosive.
- Whatever man, moreover, engrossed in his own nourishment abandons his destitute children, dependants, wife and 70 other relatives in a famine or in a disturbance, he indeed
- in his hunger thus gets portions of his own flesh, which Yama's servants cut off and put into his mouth.
- 71 "Whoover through avarice abandons those who have sought protection and who are dependent on him for their livelihood, he indeed is thus tortured by Yama's servants with tortures by means of machines.
- 72 "Men who check good deeds all their lives long are ground with the grinding of rocks, as are these evil-doers.
- 73 "Men who carry off pledges are bound with bands on alltheir limbs, and age devoured day and night by insects, scorpions, and ravens:
- "Wicked men who indulge in sexual intercourse by day, and men who defile others' wives, are worn away by hunger, have their tongues dropping from their palates by reason of thirst, and are racked with pangs.
  - * Props, road-side sheds for accommodating travellers with water.

- thorns; mounted thereon the bodies of singers are pierced, and they are foul with the streams of blood that pour forth.
- "See also, O tiger-like man! these defilers of others' wives, who are being destroyed by Yama's servants in the "mouse."
- "Whatever man, deposing his spiritual preceptor, stubbornly pursues his learning or art,—he verily, hearing thus a
  - 78 rock on his head; undergoes affliction in the public way, suffering exceeding pain, emaciated with hunger day and night, his head quivering through the pain of his burden.
- 79 "Those who have discharged urine, phlegm or ordere in water,—they, such as these persons, have come to a hell stinking with phlegm ordere and urine
- 80 "Pressed with hunger these men are devouring one another's flesh—these men formerly did not cat according to the rules of hospitality mutually.
  - 81 "Those also who have discarded the Vadas and the fires, themselves kindling their own fires,—they, such as these persons, are repeatedly hurled down from the loftiest summit of a mountain.
  - 82 "Those men who have married virgin widows and have grown old to the full extent of life, --these turned into worms are consumed by ants.
  - 83 "By receiving favours from an outcaste, t by performing sacrifices for an outcaste, by constant attendance on an outcaste, a man ever reaches the condition of an insect that liers among stones.
  - 84 "The man, who cats aweetments all by himself, while his relatives or his friends or a guest look on, cats a pile of barning charcoal.
  - *This man's back is continually devoured by fearful welves, because, O king! he was a backbiter of people.
  - * Edimali, the Cotton or Silk totlen tree, Bombas malabaricum (heptaphylla, Boxb.), the Bengall simul, the Hindustani samel. It is a large tree, common number everywhere, with stent hard conical prickles (Hooker, vol. I, p. 849; Rozb., p. 514). Here it means a kind of instrument of torture.
  - A kind of instrument of torture. . 1 Sec. Canto XV. yerse 1.

Mind moreover, deaf, dumb, this man roams about an with hanger he, base man, was ungrateful to men who co cupy themselves in conferring benefits.

"This man, who returns evil for good, working injury to his friends, very evil-minded, drops into Tapta-kumbha; 88 thereafter he will suffer grinding; then he will go to Karambha-báluká;* next he will undergo mechanical tortures; then Asi-patra-vans ; and rending with saw-like leaves. After experiencing, too, division by the thread of Fate and manifold 89

tormeuts, how he will obtain expiation herefrom I know not. "Corrupt Brahmans, for having assailed one another when 90 assembled at S'ráddhas, drink verily the moisture that exudes from every limb.

95

"A gold-stealer, a brihman-slayer, a drinker of spirituous 91 liquors, a defiler of his guen's bed, remain, being burnt in blazing fire beneath, above, around, for very many thousands of years; thereafter they are re-horn as men afflicted with .

leprosy, consumption, sickness and other diseases. And when again dead, they enter hell; and when again born, they undergo a similar malady matil the end of the kalpa, O king!

"A cow-slayer also goes to hell for a rather less period, 94 namely, during three lives.

"There is likewise a fixed ordinance regarding all minor sins.

"To what various grades of creatures, for what several definite sins, men go, when released from hell-listen to me while I recount that."

CANTO XV.

Conversation between the father and son-- (Continued).

The exposition of sins and their punishments is continued, and Juda cancludes his story of king Vipus-dit - The king by his merit delivers all the inhabitants of hell and ascends to heaven

Yama's officer spoke.

"For accepting anything of value from an outcaste, that it dvija be born an ass: but lat him who sacrifices for the outcaste become a worm, on his release from hell.

. Bee Canto XIII, verse 5.

† See Canto XIV. verso 88; protection dvip who has misbehaved towards his spiritual protection, by covering the latter's wife and the latter's property in his mind, undoubtedly becomes a dog.

The man also who scorns his parents is born an ass; for reviling his mother and father he is born a mains; and he who scorns his brother's wife becomes a pigeon; but for injuring her he becomes a tortoise.

"He who, while eating his brother's pinds, does not pursue his brother's welfare, being overwhelmed with folly is indeed born after death a monkey.

"He who carries away a deposit is born a worm on his release from hell. And the detractor when released from hell becomes a Rákshasa. And the man who destroys trust is born a fish.

"For carrying off through folly paddy, harley, sesamum; seed, mash beans, kulattha beans, mustard-seed.
chickpess, ** beans, †† annu rico, ;; mudga beans, $$ wheat

Upádhyáya. † Sáriká; see note * p. 49.

Tila, Sesamum, Sesamum orientals, Roxb. (indicum, Linnœus); the modern til (Roxb., p. 491). Not in Hooker.

§ Masha, a kind of bean, l'hassolus mungo, variety radiatus, the Bengali sadsh-kaliy. It is esteemed the best of all the leguminous plants, and the meal is made into bread for many religious ceremonies. (Hooker, vol. 11, p. 203; Roxb., p. 557.)

| Kulattha, a kind of bean, Doltchos biftorus, the Bengali kulattha (Hooker, vol. II, p. 210; Roxb., p 563.)

T Sarshapa, Mustard, Sinapis campestris; which combines Roxburgh's S. dichotoma, (the Beng. iddá rái or sarishd, Hind. sarson), and S. glauca (the Beng. sveta rái). From both varieties an oil is expressed which is used in diet, and for various other purposes. (Hooker, vol. I, p. 156; Roxb., p. 497.)

** O'aya, Chick pea or Gram, Oicer crictinum, the Beng. but, chand and chhold; it is the same as vartula. (Hooker, vol. II, p. 176; Roxb., p. 567; Oliver, p. 196.)

†† Kaláya. This is the general name for most of the commonly cultivated kinds of beans, Phasenius.

II Kalama, the down (hemania) or later rice, which is sown in May and June and is reaped in December and January. The due (dou) or easily rice is sown about April and reaped about August.

155 Mudga, Groon gram, Phasyolus mungo, the Bong, mug or mug katey.

born a large-monthed rat resembling an ichneumon.

"Moreover for improperly touching another's wife he is 10 born a horrible wolf. And the foolish sinner who violates his brother's wife becomes a dog, a jackal, a heron, a vulture, a snake, and a bird of prey, by degrees. And the sinner, who has violated his friend's wife, his guru's wife, and the king's wife, becomes a cock-cuckoo when released from hell. The man of lustful soul is born a hog.

"Let him who hinders sacrifice liberality and marriage become a worm.

"And he who gives his daughter away twice is verily burn

a worm.

a worm.

"He who obtains food, without giving some to the gods

14 the pitris and brahmans, is indeed born a crow when released from hell

"He who scorns his eldest brother, or a brother who is like

15 a father to him, is indeed born a curlew when dismissed from hell.

16 a worm; for begetting offspring of her, let him become an insect living within wood. And a Candála for the same sin is born a hog, a small worm, a diver.†

17 "A man ungrateful, base among men, who returns evil for good, when released from hell is born a small worm, an in18 sect, a bird, a scorpion also, and a fish, a crow, a tortoise,

18 sect, a bird, a scorpt then a pukkasa.

19 "For slaying an unarmed man, a man is born an ass. The murderer of a woman also and a child-slayer are born worms." But for stealing victuals a man is born a fly.

20 "There is moreover a difference among victuals, listen thereto. For taking rice-food, he is born a cat, when quit Masha (see note § above) is a variety of this. (Hooker, vol. II, p. 208; Roste, p. 556).

* Kan-ka. This must mean a bird of prey. Vaka which is a symmetric has just been mentioned.

† Madga; see note * p. 31.

from helt; but the impression mixed with a discasse he is how a rat; and for taking clarified butter an ickneumon; for saking goat's flesh, a crow, a diver. He who carries away renison a hawk; but when salt is taken away, the offender becomes a water-crow; when cardled milk is taken away, a worm; and for stealing milk he is born a hen-heron; but he who steals oil is born a cockroach; for taking honey is stealing pulse a small house-lizard;

"For stealing distilled spirits let the sinner become a francolin partridge; and for taking iron be born a crow.

a man is born a gad-fly; for taking a cake, an ant; but for

- 26 When brass is carried off, he is born a green pigeon;** when a silver vessel is carried off, a pigeon; but for taking
- 27 a golden vessel, he is born a worm; and for stealing a garment of woven silk he becomes a partialge; †† and when a silk garment is taken away he is born a silk-
  - See note † p. 85
- † Vio'i-kaka. I do not find this in Prof. Monier-Williams' Dictionary. I would suggest that it is a Tern, most probably the Black-bellied Tern, Sterna javanica, which has a black and groy plumage and is found in every river in India. The Terns are commonly called ganga-chil or gang-chil, i. s., the river-kite. (Jerdon, vol. II, pp. 831 and 849.)
- ‡ Baláká. Baláka is the Pond Heron or Paddy-bird, Ardeola leucoptera, the Beng. koach-buk. (Jerdon, vol. 11, p. 751.)
  - § Pipilika: the modern pipirá or piprá denotes the larger species of ants.
- Nishpava; this appears to be a general name for most kinds of pulse.

  Tittiri, the Francelia or Meadow partridge, of which there are two
- species in India, (1) the Black partridge, Francolinus sutgaris (the modern filter or kala-titar) which is found throughout the whole of Northern India, and (2) the Painted partridge, F. pictus (also called kala-titar) which is found in Contral and part of Southern India. (Jerdon, vol. II, pp. 558 and 561).
  - ** Harita : see note ** p. 28.
- †† Krakare. Prof. Monior Williams says this is Perdis sylvatica, but I do wast find any such name in Jordon. It is probably disher the Grey partiringe, Observations practice participation, which is common throughout the greater part of daily, or the Kyah payeridge, O. sylvaris, which is found throughout Behar and Maria, (Jardon, roll II, pp. 519, and 578.)

Charles of bornesses of bornesses close are carried off, the sinner is born a parrow; and the taking a garment of goat's hair or sheep's wool, and a line a: when a cotton thing is taken away he is born a curlett ad the stoaler of a barken thing is born a pond-herou; far Sking paint and potherbs he is born a peacock. The man who wries off a red garment becomes a jivanjiva pheasant; for aking splendid perfumes let him become a musk-rat; and for 31 tisking clothes a haro; for theft of fruit a man becomes a cutnuch; for theft of wood, a wood-insect; and a flower-stealer 32 becomes a poor man; a carriage-stealer lame; and one who takes vegetables becomes a green pigeon; $ and one who takes? water a pied-crested cuckoo || One who takes away land, after going to Raurava and the other very terrible hells. 33 becomes grass, a bush, a creeper, a climbing shrub, a recd and a tree by degrees; and the man afterwards, when his sins 34 have been diminished to insignificance, becomes a worm, an insect, and a grasshopper, a bird, an aquatic animal, a deer; and having attained the condition of kine, and despicable costes such as c'andála and pukkasa, he becomes lame and blind, doaf, leprous, and afflicted with pulmonary consumption; he is seized with discuss affecting the mouth and the eyes and the anus; and he becomes opileptic; he attains also the condition of a sudra. This truly is known to be the course of stealers of cattle and gold.

"And fierce men who steal learning, who full short in their rewards to the gurn; the man who makes another's wife his own wife,—he becomes a cunneh, the foelish man, when escaped from the torments of hell.

"He who makes the Homa oblation in unkindled fire is ;
39 born afflicted with the pains of indigestion, and dyspeptic.

"Abuse of others, the returning evil for good, hurting

· Sárngika. I do not find this word in the dictionary.

+ Jivan-jiva or jiva-jivaka. See note + p. 28.

<sup>1</sup> Ghupa kitaka : or, an armadillo.

# Hárita : see note ** p. 28.

W C'staka : see note † p. 29.

the right of the second, and enterly, paying ( other men's wives, paridy in taking other people's pi and contempt of the gods, dishonesty, fraud toward and avarice, manslaughter, and the continued perfor also of whatever things are forbidden;—one should these to be the after-characteristics of those who are re
from hell.

"Compassion towards all creatures, concord, aid to coord people, truth, speech directed towards the welfare of all creatures, inculcation of the authority of the Veda, veneration of gurns devarshis Siddhas and rishis, association with the good, hospitality, study, friendship,—let the wise man understand these and whatever other things constitute the deeds of truth and righteousness, to be the marks of sinless men who have quitted Svarga.

46 "This I have declared explicitly to thee, O king! concerning men, holy and wicked, who cat the fruits of their own actions. Come then, we go elsewhere. Then hast now seen everything, for then hast seen hell. Come then, let us go elsewhere."

The son spoke.

47 Thereupon the king prepared to follow him; and then a cry went up from all the men that abode in torment, 'Be 48 gracious, O king! stay but a moment, for the air that clings 49 to thy body gladdens our mind, and entirely dispels the burning and the sufferings and pains from our bodies, O tiger-like man! Be gracious, O king!

50 On hearing this their entreaty, the king asked that servant 61 of Yama—"How do I afford gladness to these men? Have I done such a mighty doed of merit in the world of mortals, wherefrom falls this gladdening shower? Declare me that."

Yama's officer spoke.

52

"Inasmuch as thy body was nourished with the food that remained, after the pitris the gods guests and servants seers articled, and since thy mind was attached to them, hence the sir that clings to thy body brings gladness; the torment, O the describe and other sacrifices according to precise hence from seeing thee Yama's engines weapons fires a crows, which cause intense suffering, such as crushing cutting burning and so forth, grow mild, O king! when counteracted by thy majesty."

The king spoke.

56 "Neither in Svarga nor in Brahma-loka do men experience such joy, methinks, as arises from conferring bliss on suffering creatures.
57 creatures.
16, while t am present, torment does not hurt these men, here then, fair Sir, I will remain firm as a mountain."

Yama's officer spoke.

58 "Come. O king; we proceed. Enjoy the delights won by thine own merit, casting aside here the torments of evildors."

The king spoke

- 50 "For that reason* I will not go as long as these are in sore suffering. From my near-presence the denizers of hell grow
- 60 happy. Fie on the sickly protection beggingt life of that man, who shows no favour to one distressed, even though he be a
  - Il resolute foe! Sacrifices, gifts, austerities do not work for the welfare of him, who has no thought for the succour of the
- 62 distressed Whoover boars a cruel mind towards children, the sick and such like, and towards the aged also, I do not
- 63 hold him human; he is touly a Rákshasa. But if these men have pain originating in hell, whother produced by the heat from fire, or produced by overpowering smells, and if they
- 64 have the intense pain arising from hunger and thirst that causes faintness, yet the grant of deliverance to them excels,
- 65 I consider, the joy of Svarga. If many sufferers shall obtain happiness, while I undergo pain, should I not in truth embrace it? Go thou not therefore long."

&quot; For turnet read asmet, (from bence)?

<sup>4.</sup> For farandrihinam read faronarthenum (from arthund), since ifrenum in monter?

Tama's officer spoke.

Here have both Dharms and Indra arrived to lead these havey. Thou must certainly depart from us: go therefore; O king;"

Dharma spoke.

"Fittingly worshipped by thee, I lead thee to Svarga; mount this heavenly chariot and linger not; let us go."

The king spoke.

"Men in thousands, O Dharma! suffer pain here in hell; and being in affliction they cry to me to save them; hence I depart not."

Indra spoke.

69 "These evil-doers have come to hell in consequence of their own deeds; thou also, O king, must go to Svarga in consequence of thy meritorious deed."

The king spoke.

70 "If thou dost know, thou, O Dharma, or thou, O Indra, S'ac'i's lord, how great indeed is my authority, then deign* to speak aright."

Dharma spoke.

71 "Just as drops of water in the sea, or as stars in the sky,
72 or as showers of rain, as the sands in the Ganges—just as these drops of water and other things are innumerable, O Mahá-rájá! even so thy merit is in truth beyond reckoning.

78 In thy evincing now this compassion here in the hells, the reckoning of that merit of thine has verily amounted to a hundred thousand. Then go, O king! enjoy then the abode of the immortals; let these also consume away in hell the sin arising from their own actions!"

The king spoke.

"How shall men attain their desire in things connected with me, if in my presence these people gain no prosperity.
Hence, whatever good deeds I possess, O lord of the thirty gode! by means thereof let the singlers who are undergoing tormant be delivered from hell!"

For arhathah read arhatha !

Indra spoke

Thus hast thou, O king! gained a more exalted status

The son spoke.

Then fell there a shower of flowers upon that king, and Hari making him mount the heavenly chariot led him to the heaven-world. Both I and the others, who were there, were released from the torments; thereafter we entered the other earthly existences, as determined by the results of our own actions.

Thus these hells have been reckoned up, O brahman! And for what particular sin to what particular kind of creature at man descends, it has all been recounted to thee in detail, as I saw it of vore, having gained the accurate knowledge that springs from previous experience. What else do I tell thee next, noble sir?

CANTO XVI.

Anasúyá's gain of a boon.

The father asks Jada for instruction on yoya or religious devotion—Jada begins a leng exposition, which starts with a story of Anasyyá—A certain brohman was rursed by Mandawya at night that he should die at suncise, and his devoted wife restrained the sun from riving—All activity exaced, and the gods in aburn besought Atri's wife Anasyyá—All her exhortation the wife relents, the sun rises, and the brithman dies, but is restored to life by Anasyyá—Anasyyá obtaine from the youls the born that Brahma, Vishau and Siva should be born her sons, and that she should attain yoga.

The father spoke.

Thou hast declared to me. O son, the established nature of mundane existence which should be shunned exceedingly, susture which is immutable like the rope and buckst at a well.

I have thus then learnt it in its entirety such as it is. Say.

what must I do in this thus-ordained mundane eristence?

abandoning thy condition as a house-holder become a diatinguished hermit. Following that rocation according to precept, forsaking thy fire and possessions, directing thy soul towards the Supreme Soul, indifferent in regard to the various opposites, relinquishing thy property, become a mendicant, acting only every other meal, subdued in soul, unwearied, grown intent on religious devotion, withdrawn from contact with external things. Thereafter thou shalt attain to that religious devotion,—which is the cure for connexion with pain, the cause of final emancipation from existence, incomparable, unutterable, devoid of worldly attachments; through connexion with that devotion thou wilt never again have union with living beings.

The father spoke.

- 7 My son, tell me next of yoga, or religious devotion, the cause of final emancipation from existence; by which I may escape such suffering as this, when I am again born among
- 8 living beings. Since I am intent on attachments, and my squl does not by reason of the bonds of mundane existence attain to religious devotion, being itself even devoid of religious
- 9 devotion,‡ speak now of that religious devotion. Sprinkle with the water of thy words, which are cool with the water of the knowledge of Brahma, me whose body and mind are disordered with pain through the heat of the sun of
  - mundane existence. Re-vivify with the draught of the nectar of thy words me, who am bitten by the black serpent of igno-
- 11 rance, who am in anguish from its venom, and dead. Hasting with the keys of the knowledge of approved goodness, liberate me, who am galled by the chains of selfishness in the matter of son, wife, home and land.

+ Yoga.

· Pleasure and pain, &c.

I Or "devoid of means;" there seems to be a pun on the word your.

The son spoke.

Listen, dear father! how of yore the wise Dattatreys, when duly questioned, expounded the system of religious devotion at length to Alarka.

The father spoke.

13 Whose son was Dattatreya? Again, how did he discourse about religious meditation? And who was the distinguished.

Alarka, who enquired concerning religious meditation?

The son spoke.

14 There was a certain Kausika brahman in the town Pratishthana; he by reason of sins committed in other births was.

15 diseased with leprosy. His wife used to honour him her husband, thus diseased, as a god, by anointing his fact, knead-

16 ing his limbs, bathing, clothing, and feeding him, and by cleansing the flow of mucus, blood efecters, and with atten-

17 dance in private, and with affectionate conversation. Though ! always exceedingly venerated by that modest lady, he being harsh continually menaced her by reason of his excessively.

18 flory temper. Nevertheless his wife, bowing before him, used to esteem him a divinity; a nevertheless she used to esteem him, who was extremely loathful, as superior to all.

Being also of a constantly reaming disposition, the brahman ordered his wife- "Do thou bring me to her dwelling. Procure for me that coartezan whom I saw hving in her house in the high-way, O religious one; she indeed dwells in my heart. I saw the maiden at samuse, and here is night come upon us. She does not depart from my heart, ever since I saw her. If she, lovely in every limb, with large hips and swelling breasts and slender body does not embrace me, then thou wilt indeed behold me die. Beautiful is love among mankind; and she is courted by many; and I am unable to go; it appears perplexing to me."

Then having heard that speech of her hasband who was sick with love, she his consort, sprung of a high family, very

10

20

* For Americkya road Alarkaya, see Canto XXXVI.

† For daratam read dairata n.

wirehous faishful to her husband, gathered a compact resinue. and took abundance of money, and bearing her husband on 26 ther shoulder, moved on, slow in her gait, along the high road, in the cloud-covered night, while the sky was revealed by the fitful lightning; for the brahman lady was desirous of doing her husband pleasure. And on the road, the brahman, while borne on his wife's shoulder, through fear of thieves in the darkness pushed .28 away Mandavya, who was no thief and who was afflicted with grievous pain, being impaled on a stake. Enraged at the brush with a foot, Mandavya addressed him-"lle, who 29 has with his foot pushed me away who am thus exceedingly afflicted, he sinful in soul, base among men, has gotten a miserable condition. At sunrise, helpless, he shall be bereft 30 of life assuredly at the sight of the san indeed he shall perish." Thereupon his wife hearing that most crael curse, 81 exclaimed distressed-"The sun verily shall not arise!" Then the sun failed to rise, and there was continual night 32 for many lengths of day. Thereupon the gods grew afraid, fearing "How indeed should not all this universe pass into dissolution, when the Vedas are not uttered, and when it is deprived of oblations with fire and of the Svadha and Svaha? 34 Without the ordinance of day and night, there is an end of months and seasons: and again from the cessation of these south and north are not known in the sun's half yearly course.

And without knowledge of the balf yearly course where would be time, such as the year? Without the year no other knowledge of time exists. By reason of the utterance of that 36 devoted wife, the sun rises not: without the sun's rising, hathing giving of gifts and the other actions can not indeed 37 exist: nor indeed does the fire spread, and sacrifices are seen to cease; nor indeed do we get satisfaction without the homa sacritice. Mortals satisfy us with the appropriate shares of 88 the sacrifices: we favour mortals with rain for the perfecting of their grain and other crops. When plants have ripened, mortals sacrifice to us with sacrifices; worshipped in 10 their sacrifices do., we bestow on them their desires. For ascend; for we rain with showers of water, men with showers

35

- 41 of clarified butter. And evil-minded men, who do not give us the periodical sacrifices,* being greedy cat themselves our
- 42 share of the sacrifice. We defile the water, the sun, fire and the winds, and the earth for the destruction of those mis-
- 43 chievous sinners. Through partaking of bad water &c., very dire portents work towards the death of those doers of evil
- doeds. But to those high-souled men, who after delighting us consume the remainder themselves, let us allot the blissful
- 45 worlds. Therefore all this universal of a truth does not exist, unless these things increase and endure. How indeed may the days be 1th 4f"—so conversed the gods with one another.
- 46 Having heard peech of these assembled gods who were fearful of the descriction of the sacrifices, the god Brahma
- 47 spoke, "Majesty is subdued by majesty indeed, and austorities also by austerities. O ye immortals! Hearken therefore.
- 48 to my advice. Through the might of the faithful wife the sun does not rise, and from his not rising loss befulls mortals
- 49 and you. Hence do ye, through desire that the sun should rise, propitiate Atri's taithful wife Annsúyá who is rich in austorities."

The son spoke.

50 She, propitiated by them when they resorted to her, said.
"Let your wish be asked for." The gods petitioned for day, saying "Let it be as before!"

Arasúyá spoko.

- 51 "The might of a faithful wife may not be lost in any wise. Honce while honouring that good lady, I will liberate the day,
- 52 O ye gods! that day and night may again exist, and that that good lady's own husband shall not perish."

The son spoke.

58 Thus having addressed the gods, she the beautiful went to he tample, and being asked by that lady regarding the weller and righteousness of her husband, spoke.

· Nitya-naimittiki ; see Canto XXX.

Anasúyá spoke.

"Perchance thou rejoicest, O blessed lady, at the sight of thy husband's countenance! Perchance too thou esteemest thy husband far above all the gods! Through obedience indeed to my husband I have gained a great reward; through the obtainment of the results of every wish obstacles have been removed. Five debts a man must ever discharge, O virtuous lady. Thus, he must amass wealth according to the daties of his own caste: and he must next apply the wealth gained to a fitting object according to the p ote: he should always live full of compassion, observing candour, austerities and liberality: and he must daily orm the ceremonies 58 prescribed by the S'astras and free . .. unger and enmity, 59 with faith preceding, according to his ability. A man with great pain gradually obtains the worlds specially allotted to his own caste, such as that of the Praja-patis and other worlds. O virtuous lady. So women by obedience to their husbands obtain half of the entire merit painfully earned by their husbands. There is no separate sacrifice for women, nor śráddha, nor fasting: for by obedience to their husbands indeed they reach these desired worlds. Therefore, O virtuous and exolted lady, let thy mind over be turned towards obedience to thy husband, since a husband is a wife's supreme 63 bliss. Whatever worship the husband may offer by right ceremonics to the gods, and whatever to the pitris and guests. even one half of that does the wife, whose mind is centred on him alone, enjoy by very obedience to her husband."

The son spoke.

7

Having heard that her speech, the lady saluted Atri's wife Anasty's respectfully in return, and replied thus to her—Happy am I, favoured am I, and regarded by the gods am I, since then, O lady blessed by nature, again increasest my faith. I know this—none among women has a condition equal with her husband, and love for him tends to her benefit provide and the next; through her husband wi both here and after death, O illustrious lady, a woman gall happiness; for a husband is a woman's deity. Do then being such a woman, O exalted lady, tell me who have reached thy temple, what I, a noble woman, must do, or what my noble kusband must do, O beauteous one!"

Amanya spoke.

a in distress have approached me :

ne day and night, the virtnous acts;

nave been discarded in consequence of of for the natural uninterrupted con-

89 "Indra and they are search prescribed for 70 thy speech. To tinuance of day

night: I am come for that object, and my speech. Through the absence of: do thou listen to day there is the absence of all sacrificial coromonies; through the absence of there the gods do not get their nourishment, 72 O ascetic lady. Through the destruction of day also all work is cut short; from the destruction thereof the world will perish through drought. Therefore if then desirest to deliver this world from calamity, he gracious, O virtuous huly, to the worlds; let the sun ran his course as before."

The brahman lady spoke.

"Mandavya exceedingly furious, O illustrious lady, has 74 cursed my lord, saying 'at sunrise thou shalt meet thy doom!'"

Anasúyá spoke.

"If, however, it pleases thee, O lady, then at thy word I 75 will make thee even a new husband, in form the same as before.

For I must in every way propitiate the majesty of faithful. 76 wives, O high-born lady-thus I do thee bonour."

· The son spoke.

On her saying 'be it so!' the ascetic lady Anastys then. 77 summoned the sun, raising up the arghys oblation, at midnight on the tenth night. Then the adorable sun, in and 78 pearance ruddy as the full-blown lotus flower, with wide disc, rose aloft above the mighty mountain. Forthwith indent

4. For drydyd read drynyd ?

band was bereft of life and fell on a the cought him as he fell:

Ansstya spoke:

Be not defected; O lady; behold my power. Thou hast succeeded through thy obedience to thy husband. 81 What further need hast thou of austerities? Since I have nowhere seen another man equal to at / husband, in form, in disposition, in intellect, w tess of speech and ús bráhman, freed 82 other adornments, in very true from sickness, young again, obtain company with his 88 wife for a hundred autumns. S. oe no other deity the equal of thy husband, in very truth this bráhman regain his life in sound health. Since . effort is constantly directed to propitiate thy husband by deed mind and word,

The son spoke.

let this dvija then come to life."

L. Y

4

Then the brahman arose, free from illness, young again, 85 with his own lustre illuminating the dwelling, as it were an 86: over-youthful god. Then there fell a shower of flowers, accompanied with the strains of heavenly instruments and other musical instruments. And the gods were delighted and rad said to Anasúyá.

The gods spoke.

, : : 87 "Choose a boon, O blessed lady. Inasmuch as thou hast accomplished a great matter for the gods, therefore the gods 46 will grant thee a boon, O ascetic lady."

Anasúyá spoke.

"If ye gods headed by Brahms, being favourable, will grant me a boon, and if ye deem me worthy of a boon, then let Brahmá, Vishnu, and Siva become sons to me, and let me in company with my husband attain religious devotion, to withe end that I may be delivered from affliction."

990 16 "Be it so," exclaimed Brahma, Vishou, Siva and the other gods to her; and they departed, duly honouring the ascetic

For maniferent tava f

CANTO KVIL

The Birth of Dattatreya.

The Prajá-pati Atri begot three sons by his wife Anishida, namely, Soma, Dattátreya, and Dureisas, who were incornations of portions of Brahmá, Vishnu and Siva respectively—Their offices are described—Dattatreya, assembling young Munis about himself, tested their loyalty, by living immersed in a lake and by recelling in sensual pleasures.

The son spoke.

- Then after many days' time the adorable Airi, the second son of Brahmá, looked upon his wife Anasúyá. Her, bathéd after menstruation, very lovely in body, seductive and perfect in form, free from blame, the love-possessed Muni enjoyed mentally.
- 3 But while he contemplated her, a powerful wind through and above brought the change that was produced in her.
- 4 The ten regions of the sky seized the white-instred form of Brahma, as it fell all around, in the form of Soma, charac-
- 5 terized by passion. That mental Some was begotten in her as the son of the prajá-pati Atri, the life and possessor of
- 6 every excellence. Magnanimous Vishnu being pleased bogot of her Dattatreya, the brahman, in whom goodness predomi-
- 7 nated, by production from his own body. Dattatreys was he called; he sucked Anasúyá's breast: he was Vishņu indoed
- 8 incarnate; he was Atri's second son. He issued from his mother's womb seven days afterwards, being enraged on seeing that the haughty king of the Haihayas was near and
- 9 was offending Atri, being angry he at once desired to burn up the Haihaya. Filled with indignation at the long pains and toil of his residence in the womb, a portion of Siva
- 10 was born as Durvásas, in whom darkness predominated.

  Thus three zons were born of her, being portions of Brahmá, Siva and Vishnu.
- Brahma became Soms, Vishuu was born as Dattatreys, Sive was born as Durvasas, through the boon granted by the
- 12 gods. The praje-pati Soma, ever causing crespers and media

ainal plants and mankind to grow with his cool rays, abides 18 in Svange. Dattetreys protects offspring from destruction by the malignant Daityes: and Vishnu's portion must also be In known as the benefactor of the docile. Durvaess, the adorhis hirthless god, destroys the scorner; assuming a formidable body, he is haughty in look mind and speech. The adorable 24. prajá-pati, the son of Atri again created the Soma plant.* Dattatraya also, being Vishuu, enjoyed objects of sense while 16 engaged in profound meditation. Durvasas, deeming his father and mother to be the chiefest object of devotion, assuming the form known as 'frantic,' roamed about the earth. Surrounded by the sons of Munis, the lordly yogi Dattátreya also, desirous of obtaining exemption from all attachments, long immersed himself in a lake. Nevertheless those youths, resorting to the bank of the lake, did not forsake him, who was magnanimous and exceedingly benign. When after a hundred heavenly years were ended, all those youthful Munis, through affection for him, still forsook not the bank of the lake, the Muni, taking his noble wife clothed in heavenly raiment, beautiful and plump in form, arose from the water, thinking, "If these sons of Munis shall forsake me because of the presence of a woman, then I will remain free from all attachments." When nevertheless the sons of the Munis did not forsake him, he next drank intoxicating liquors in company with his wife. Thereupon they did not forsake him, though he was engressed in drinking spirituous liquor in company with his wife, and though he was rendered impure by addiction to singing, musical instruments and such like, and also by intercourse with his wife; deeming that the highsouled Muni when with her was detached from religious rites. The lord of yogis, although drinking spirituous liquor, incurred no fault. Dwelling like Materiavan within the abodes of g'andálas, drinking strong drink he, skilled in yoga, the lord

The text appears to be corrupt. Another reading has been suggested by Bake Hard Mohan, Vidyshkoshan, the pandft of the Bengel Asiatic Society, trom a Man strak putral for atrik punel i this is preferable and I been adopt-if rouse, attended by his wife, performed ansterities he maditated on by yogis who longed for deliverance ful mundane existence.

CANTO XVIII.

Garga's speech.

Arjung the son of Krita-virya, on succeeding to his kingdom. resolves to rule worthily - His minister Garga advises him to propitiate the Muni Dattatreya .-- And varrates how, when the Daityas and Danavas had conquered the gods, the gods by Vrihuspair's counsel propitiated Dattátreya, who, being an incarnation of Vishnu, was enjoying himself with Lakshmi; and how, when the derions penetrated to Dattitreya's hermitage and seized Lakshmi, they were destroyed by Dattatreya.

The son spoke.

1

Once upon a time Arjuna, the son of Krita-virya, when Krita-virya had departed to heaven, being invited by the 2 ministers and family priest and by the citizens to be in-. augurated as king, spoke thus -

"It is not I will wield regal sway, which surpasses hell, O ministers, if I leave that foolishly unaccomplished, for the sake 3 of which taxes are levied. Merchants, giving the twelfth part of their wares to the king, travel on the road protected from robbers by the watchmen. And the herdsmen and husbandmon giving the sixth part of the ghee, buttermilk and other pro-

5 duce, enjoy the rest. If the merchants gave a larger portion than that out of all their wares and other property, then that would fend to the destruction of the sacrifices and pions works of the extertionate king who took it. If people who follow that and other livelihoods are protected by others."

hell is enrely the lot of a king who takes the sixth part as his revenue. This has been decreed by men of old as the permanent income of a king. When a king fails to afford protection 8 from thioves, that is the same as thoft; and it would be she in a king. Therefore if, by performing austerities, he has grand power to protect the earth. Therefore I indeed will be a weapon-bearer in the earth, worthy of honour, endowed with prosperity; I will not make myself a participator in sin."

The son spoke.

- 10 Understanding that his resolve, standing among the ministers spoke the leading Muni, Garga by name, mighty in intellect, advanced in age.
- "If thus thou desirest to act, rightly to govern the kingdom, then hearken to my speech and act, O royal scion!
- 12 Propitiate, O king, Dattátreya, the illustrious, who made his abode once in a bucket, who protects the three worlds,
- 18 who is busied in religious devotion, who is illustrious, who looks impartially everywhere, who is a portion of Vishnu, the
- 14 upholder of the world, incarnate on earth. By propitiating him the thousand-eyed Indra gained his abode, which had been seized by the evil-minded Daityas, and slew the sous of Diti."

Arjana spoke.

"How did the gods propitiate majestic Dattatreya: And how did Indra regain his godhead, of which he had been deprived by the Daityas?"

Garga spoke.

- 16 "There was a very tierce contest between the gods and Dánavas. The tord of the Daityas was Jambha, and the leader
- 17 of the gods was Sac'i's sponse. And while they fought a heavenly year clapsed. Then the gods were worsted, the
- 18 Daityas were victorious. The gods led by Vipra-c'itti were vanquished by the Danavas: they strove to flee, being dis-
- 19 pirited at the victory of their enemies. Desirous of compassing the slaughter of the army of Daityas, accompanied by the Bálikhilyas* and Rishis, they approached Vrihaspati and
- 20 took counsel. Vrihaspati said, 'Deign to gratify with your faith Dattatreya, Atri's high-souled son, the secetic, who is
- 21 . occupied in improper practices. He the boon-giver will grant *Read 'Balu-khilyas'? These are divine personages of the size of the

GARGA'S SPYNOS.

gon a boon for the destruction of the Daityas; then, O gos shall ye and your friends slay the Daityas and Danavas.

"Thus exhorted the gods then went to Dattátroya's hermitage, and they beheld the high-souled Muni, attended by Lakshmi, hymned by Gandharyas, and engressed in quaffing spirituous liquor. Approaching they expressed in words their salutations to him, which were the means of accomplishing their objects. And the heaven-dwellers lauded him; they offered him food, viands, garlands and other presents; when he stood, they stood near; when he moved, they moved; when he reposed on his seat, they worshipped him with heads he reposed on his seat, they worshipped him with heads down-bent. Dattatreya addressed the prostrate gods, 'What desire ye of me, that ye do me this obeisance i'

"The gods spoke

26 'The Dánavas, headed by Jambha, have attacked and seized upon the earth the atmosphere and the third world. O tiger-like Muni. and our shares of the sacrifices entirely. Employ thou thy wit to their destruction and our deliverance, O sin-less one! Through thy favour do we desire to regain the three worlds which they now possess.'

" Dattátreya spoke.

'I am drinking strong drink, I have remnants of food in my mouth, nor have I subdued my senses. How is it, O gods, ye seek for victory over your enemics even from me?'

" The gods spoke.

'Thou art sinless, O lord of the world; no stain hast thou, into whose heart, purified by the ablution of learning, has entered the light of knowledge.'

" Daitatreya spoke,

30 'True is this, O gods! all learning have I, who am impartial in view: but by reason of association with this woman I

31 am now impure after eating. For commerce with women when continually pursued tends to depravity.'

"Thus addressed, the gods then spoke again.

"The gods spoke

This woman, O sinless brahman! is the mother of the world; she is not deprayed, even like the sun's halo of rays, which touches the dvija and the c'andala alike.'

Garga spoke.

33 "Thus accosted by the gods, Dattátreya then with a smile spoke thus to all the thirty gods ;- 'If this be your opinion, 34 then summon all the Asuras to battle, O most virtuous gods 35 and bring them here before my view-delay ye not-in order that the glory of their strength may be consumed by the fire of my glance, and that they may all perish from my sight.'

36 "The valiant Daityas, summoned to battle by the gods in compliance with that his advice, advanced with fury against 37 the troops of the gods. The gods being slaughtered by the Daityas were quickly demoralised by fear; they fled in a body, seeking protection, to Dattátceya's hermitage. Even there the Daityas ponetrated, driving forward the heavendwellers, and saw the high-souled mighty Datistreya; and scated at his left side his wife, Lakshmi, loved by all the worlds, beauteous, her shape most graceful, her countenance like the moon, her eyes Instrons as the blue water-lily,* her hips large and breasts full, uttering melodious speech, adorned with every womanly virtue. Seeing her before them, the Daityas, seized with longing, could not bear the intense love with fortitude; and pined in mind to carry her off. Desisting from the gods, but desirous of seizing the lady, they were shattered in vigour, being bewitched by that sin. Then compact together they spoke-' If only this jewel of womankind in the three worlds might be our prize, successful then should we all be-this is our engrossing thought. We are resolved therefore, let us all, foes of the gods, raise her up, place her in the palki, and bear her to our abode."

"Thereupon possessed with longing and thus mutually exhorted, afflicted by love, the united Daityas and Dánavas raised up his virtuous wife, mounted her in the palki, and placing the palki on their heads set off for their own houses.

. Nilotpale, the blue water-life, see note 1 page 20.

GERCA'S RPSECH.

47 Thereon Dattatreya smiling spoke thus to the gods—'Bravo is ye prosper! Here is Lakshmi borne on the heads of the Daityas. She has passed beyond the seven stations, she will reach another, a new one.

" The gods spoke.

48 'Say, O lord of the world, in what stations has she her abode; and what result of a man's does she bestow or destroy?

" Datrátreya spoke.

- When stationed on the foot of men, Lakshmi bestows a habitation; and when stationed on the thigh, clothing and manifold wealth; and when taking her position in the pudenda, a wife; whon resting in the bosom, she grants offspring; when stationed in the heart, she fulfils the thoughts of men Lakshmi, is the best fortune of fortunate men. When resting on the nack, she adorrs the neck with loved relatives and wives, and close contact with those who are absent. When abiding in the countenance, the sca-born goddess bestows beauty fushemed according to her word, real command also, and poetic site. When required on the head, she forsakes the man and thence reserts to mother abode. And
  - she for sakes the note and themes resort to another about. And here, mounted on their head, she will now desert those Daityas. Therefore seize your arms and sky these fees of the gods; now fear them greatly: I have rendered them impotent; and through touching another's wife their merit is consumed, their might is broken

Garga spoke.

- Thereupon those enemies of the rods, being akin by divers weapons and their heads being assoiled by Lakshmi, perished thus have we heard. And lakshmi, flying up, re-roled the
- great Muni Dattatreya, being hymned by all the gods who for were alled with joy at the slaughter of the Daityas. Thereupon the gods, prostrating themselves before the wise Dattatreys, gained as before the uppermost heaven, being freed from
- 58 affliction. Likewise do thou also, O king! if thou wishest to obtain matchless sovereignty according to thy desire, straight way propitiate him."

CANTO XIX.

The Episode of Dattatreya.

King Arjuna, taking Garga's advice, propitiates Dattátreya, who grants him the boon that he should reign righteously, prosperously and gloriously—Arjuna is then installed in his kingdom, and his reign is described—The blessedness of worshipping Vishnu, who is Dattátreya, expounded—The story of Alarku is then begun.

The son spoke.

- Having heard the Rishi speak thus, king Arjana, Kritavirya's son, proceeded to Dattátreya's hermitage and wor-
- 2 shipped him with faith; by kneading his feet and other services, and by offering honoy and other delicacies, and by hunging garlands, sandal, and other perfumes, water, fruit &c.;
- 8 also with preparations of rice, and by removing the Richi's fragments of food. Pleased therewith the Muni addressed the
- king in the very same way, as he had formerly addressed the gods.
  - "Ever indeed am I an object of repreach for my enjoyment of spirituous liquor and other bodily pleasures, and an object of repreach for this enjoyment in that I have my wife here by my side." Deign thou not thus to obstruct me
- b wife here by my side.* Deign than not thus to obstruct me who am unable to benefit thee; O conciliate one who is able."
- 6 Thus the Muni addressed him; and Arjuna Kartavirya, recalling that speech of Garga's, replied then, bowing before him.

Arjuna spoke.

- "Why dost thou beguile me, my lord, resorting to thy illusory devices. Sinless thou art, and this brahman lady is the path of all existence."
- Thus invoked, the benign bráhman answered him, the illustrious Kártavírya, the subduer of the earth.
  - 9 "Choose thou a boon; since thou hast declared my secret,
    I have felt thereby intense gratification in theo to-day, O
  - 10 king. And the men who shall worship me with perfumes, garlands and such like, with offerings also of meat and strong

The text appears obscure.

- 11 and with sweetmeats accompanied with clarified butter, 11 and who shall worship me and Lakshmi with songs also and the worship of brahmans, and with lute, flute, conchs and other
- 12 gladsome musical instruments;—to them I will give suprems gratification, children, wives, wealth and other blessings, and I
- 13 will ward off the violent blows of scorners. Do thou then choose the choice boon that thy mind desires: my face is very gracious to thee through thy declaration of my secret name."

Kártavírya spoko.

- 14 "If my lord thou art gracious, then grant mo supremo prosperity, whereby I may protect my people and may not incur
- 15 iniquity. I desire to have knowledge in the customs of others, irresestibility in fight, and the desterity of a thousand arms.
- 16 May my paths be unimpeded on hill, in air, in water, and on land, and in all the hells! And may my death come from a
- 17 superior man! And let me have moreover a guide to the right path when I stray from the path; and may my guests* be worthy of praise in the imperishable bestowal of wealth!
- 18 And let there be freedom from impoverishment in my country with repeated recollection of mo! May my faith in thee be ever in truth anwayering?"

Datistreya speke.

19 "Thou shalt receive all those boons in the matters that thou hast specified; and through my favour thou shalt become a universal monarch"

Jada spoke.

- 20 Thereon Arjuna prostrated himself before Dattitreyn. And having convened his subjects, he duly received his inaugura-
- 21 tion. Then he the Huibaya, established in his kingdom, having received supreme presperity from Dattatroya, owning
- 22 exceeding power, made proclamation; Henceforth whoever besides me shall lay hold of a weapon. I shall put him to death
- 23 as a robber or as one bent on injuring others.' After this order had been issued, there was no man that bere arms in

· For 'tithayah read tithayah, days ?

24 that country, except that valient tiger-warrior. He it was who was the guardian of the villages, and he the guardian of the cattle. He it was who was the guardian of the 25 fields and the protector of the dvijas. He also was the guardian of ascetics, and the guardian of caravans; the guardian of those who were sinking amid the fears of robbers,

26 rogues, fire, arms and so forth, as in the sea, and of those who were involved in other calamities; he was the destroyer of hostile warriors. He it was who was ever remembered as the upholder of mankind. And there was exemption from impoverishment, while he ruled as king. He offered many sacrifices, complete with gitts and fees. He also practised austerities. He performed exploits in battles.

Having seen his prosperity and exceeding honour, the Muni Angirus spoke.

29 "Assuredly kings will not follow in Kártavírya's steps. either with sacrifices, alms-giving, or austerities, or with high exploits in battle."

30 On the very day when the king received prosperity from 31 Duttatreys, he performed sacrifice to Duttatreys. And there all his subjects having seen the king's supreme prosperity that day offered up sacrifices with devont attention.

32 Such is this magmanimity of the wise Dattátreya, who is Vishua, the gara of all things movable and immov-

33 able, endless, high-souled. In the Purinas are narrated the manifestations of the bearer of the bow Sarnga, who is endless,

34 inscrutable, the bearer of the coneh discus and club. Whatever man penders on his highest form, happy is he, and he

35 may soon pass over mundane existence. 'Ho! I am ever in truth easy of reach by faith even to Vaishnavas,'—how is it that a man should not have recourse to him, whose are these 86 very words? For the destruction of unrighteousness, and for the practice of righteousness, the god, who is without beginning and without end, preserves the stability of nature.

37 Moreover I tell thee of Alarks also, the famous birth.

Bond Alarkam for Anarkam,

THE STORT OF KUVALAY (SVA.

And thus her been related the union between the high-soules. Rajarshi Alarka, who was faithful to his father, and Dattatreya.

CANTO XX.

The Story of Kuvalayásva.

King S'atru-fit's son Rita-dheaja receives into intimate fee adship two Naga princes in the guise of brokmans. They live with him by day, and spend the hights in Rusdiala. They extel him to their father, and relate his story as follows. Rita-dheaja sets out to succour the brokman Gálara against a Daitya Pátita-keia, with the aid of a wondrous horse named Kacalaya.

Jada speke.

- 1 There was formerly a valocius king named Satru-jit, in whose sacrifices Indra was pleased by receiving the soma.
- 2 juice. His son was a valuant destroyer of his fees: the poer of Vrihaspati, Indra and the Asvins in intellect, provess and
- 3 beauty. The king's son was continually currounded by young princes, who were his equals in age, rateflect, virtue, prowess
- 4 and behaviour. He was sometimes resolved on investigating the whole Sastra literature; at other times engressed* with
- 5 poetry, dialogue, singing and the drama. Moreover he enjoyed himself both with gambling pastimes, and in the discipling of all kinds of weapons. he was intent on the study of elephants,
- 6 horses, and chariots suitable for war.f. The king's son enjoyed himself in company with the young princes, being
- 7 absorbed in pleasure by day and night alike. But while they sported there, numbers of young brahmans, young princes and young variyas of the same age came to enjoy themselves affectionately.
- 8 Now after a time two young Nagas, the sons of Advatara,

. For sambharach read sambiarah?

† The text appears corrupt, for yogyán yuddha-read yuddha-niyogya- f

<sup>1</sup> A Nága prince.

- visited the surface of the earth from the Naga-world. Disguised in form as brahmans, youthful, handsome, those two, in company with the young princes and the other dvijas,
- 10 remained there linked in friendship, occupied with various amusements. And all those young princes and the young
- bráhmans and vaisyas, and those two young Nága princes engaged in bathing, kneading the limbs &c., adorned themselves with garments and perfumes, and occupied themselves
- 12 with the business of kings.* As day after day went by, the two young Nagas enjoyed themselves, being bound by affection
- 18 for the king's son. And the king's son received the highest pleasure from those two, by various amusements, and by jests,
- 14 conversation, &c. Apart from those two he neither atc, nor bathed, nor drank sweet drinks; he did not disport himself, nor take up his weapons to improve his accomplishments.
- 15 And those two, spending the night in Rasátala, transaly occupied in sighing in the absence of that high-souled prince, visited him day after day.
- "With whom do ye both, my sons, find supreme affection in the mortal-world" thus inquired their father of both
- 17 those young Nagas. "Whilst I have seen you both many days here in Patala, I ever behold you both with kindly countenances by day and night"

Jada spoke.

Thus questioned by their father himself, the two illustrious sens of the Nága king falling prostrate, with hands reverently joined, replied.

The sons spoke.

- "It is the son of Satru-jit, dear father, famed by name as Rita-dhvaja, shapely, upright in conduct, a hero, prond, kind
- 20 of speech, no sneaking tale-boarer,; eloquent, learned, friendly, a mine of excellencies, an honourer of the honour
  - worthy, intelligent, modest, adorned with courtesy. Our mind,
  - The text seems incorrect. For sampulfami read sampultdiff
  - + The lower world.
  - 1 Fer anáprishta-katho read anáprishtha-katho.

The father spoke.

"He is the happy son of a holy father, whose excellencies 23 such accomplished persons as yo are thus celebrate even in his absence. There are evil-dispositioned men learned in the 24 Sastras; there are good-dispositioned men who are fools: but I esteem him, my sons, the happier who equally possesses knowledge of Sastras and a good disposition. A father has 25indeed a son in that son, whose friends always declare his friendly qualities, and whose enemies his valour, among the good. Perchance ye have preferred a request to him as a benefactor: he has done something to satisfy your mind, my children. Happy is he! The life of each high-born one has been well lived, when petitioners to hun turn not away, and the petition of his friends is not powerless. In my house what-28 ever gold and other metals, jowels, animals for riding, and scats there are, and whatever else imparts delight; that should be given him without Lesitation. Fie on the life of that man, who, while failing to make a return to beneficent friends, believes that he really lives. The wiso man who, cloud-like, 30 showers benefits on his circle of friends and injury on his foes,-men wish him prosperity."

The sons spoke.

what might any one do for that successful man, whose petitioners are all always horoured in his house with the grant of all their desires. The jewels that are in his house, whonce can we have them in Patala? And whome his animals for riding, his scats, and carriages, ornaments and clothing? The knowledge that he has, is found nowhere else. Even for the wise he is, dear father, the ablest remover of all doubts. One thing he has done, and that in our opinion was impossible of accomplishment, except by Brahma, Vishan, Sive, and the other lords."

* For bhur o loke read bhurarloke?

The father spoke.

- **Nevertheless I wish to hear what was his highest deed, whether it be impossible or possible of accomplishment. Is anything impossible to the wise? Men who have determination attain to the position of the gods, lordship over the immortals, and the position of being worshipped by them, or any other coveted arduous thing. There is nothing unknown, or inaccessible, or unobtainable, either in heaven or here, to strenuous men who have brought their mind, organs
  - and soul under control. An ant by walking travels thousands of yojanas; even Garnda, if he does not move, does not move
- 39 a single foot. Where is the surface of the earth, and where is the site of the polar star? Yet Dhruva the son of king
- 40 Uttána-páda, a denizen of the earth, reached it. Relate then how the good young prince did his feat, that ye may discharge your indebtedness, my sous!"

The sons spoke.

- 41 "The high-souled prince has told us this tent he did before, dear father; that he spent his youth, being noted for his good conduct.
- 42 "But formerly, dear father, a certain brâhman, the wise Gálava, bringing a magnificent steed, approached Satra-jit;
- 43 and replied to the king—'A certain vile Daitya, an evil-doer, O king, springing up, is destroying my hermitage without
- 41 cause day and night, assuming the several forms of a lion, an elephant, and forest-roving beasts, and of other small-bedied.
- 45 animals. When I am absorbed in profound meditation and deep contemplation, and intent on vows of silence, he raises
- 46 obstacles so that my mind wavers. Thou art able instantly to burn him with the fire of thy anger, but not we. Do I desire that austerities arduously acquired should be squar-

· Govinda.

† The text seems incorrect. For tusyisti kartanyam read tasya kritam karifum? And for livared read thearin !

- dered, O king? But one day O king, having perceived the demon, I heaved a sigh, being distressed by him, and exceed
- 46 ingly depressed in mind. Thereupon this horse fell forth with from the sky itself, and a voice from no corporeal being
- 49 exclaimed—hearken to it, O lord of men!—"Unwearied the noble steed can traverse the whole circle of the earth with
- 50 the sun. He has been produced for thee. Nor is his course stayed in Pátála, in the sky or in water; nor does he succomb when moving in every direction, or even among the
- 51 mountains. Since he will traverse the whole circle of the carth nuwcaried, he will become famed in the world under the
- 52 name Kavalaya. And the base sinful Dánava, who day and night torments thee, him shall slay, O bráhman, the king named.
- 53 Satra-jit mounted on this horse; and his son Rita-dhvaja gotting this jewel of a steed shall attain to fame by means of him."
- 54 I now have met with [thee: do thou, O king, ward off that obstructer of my austraites, for a king is interested therein.
- 5.6 Therefore I have told thee, O king, of this goin of a horse: do thou command thy son, so that rightcon-ness may not perish.'
- 56 "At his word the king, righteous in soul, mounting his son Rita-dhvaja, who had performed a solumn ceremony, on that
- 57 year of a horse, sent hier away then with Galava. And the Muni, taking him, departed to his own hermitage-home."

CANTO XXI.

Kucalayásia's marriago with Madhlach.

Rita-dhrups, called also Kuralayáscu, wounds and pursues the Daitya Pátálu-ketu. In the pursuit he falls through a chasm into Pátála and reaches the city Purandura-pura—There he meets Maddilasá, (daughter of the Gundhurva king Viscárasu.) when Pitála-ketu had carried off—He marries her with the help of her componium Kundalá, who then admonishes them on the blessings of marriage—He kills the Daityas who oppose him, and brings her home to his father; who praises and blesses him.

The father spoke.

1 "Relate my sons what the king's son did after he departed in company with Gálava; your story is a surprising one."

The sons spoke.

"The king's son, residing in Gálava's pleasant hermitage,

3 "The base Dánava, infected with frenzy and arrogance, did not know the prince Kuvalayásva who was dwelling in Gálava's hermitage. Then assuming the form of a hog, he approached to outrage the brahman Galava, who was busied in the evening service. On an out-ery by the Muni's disciples, the king's son hastily mounting the horse pursued the boar,

6 shooting arrows at him; and drawing his mighty bow, that was decorated with pretty designs, he struck the boar with an arrow shaped like the half-moon. Wounded by the icon arrow, the wild beast, intent on its own speedy escape, set off for the large forest dense with mountain trees. The horse followed him impetuously, swift as thought, being urged on by the king's son who was obeying his father's command.

After traversing thousands of yojamas with speed the quickto paced boar fell into an open chasm in the earth. Immediately after him, the king's son also, on his horse, fell into the great

11 chasm, which was enveloped in crass darkness. Then the beast was lost to the sight of the king's son therein; and he saw Pátála clearly there, but not that animal.

12 "Next he saw the city called Purandara-pura filled with bundreds of golden palaces, embellished with ramparts.

13 Entering it, he beheld no man there in the city, and as he wandered about he next saw there a woman hastening along.

14 He questioned her, the slender-limbed, 'Why or on whose account are you proceeding?' The noble budy replied not a 15 word and ascended into the palace. And the king's son fastening up his horse on one side followed her indeed, being wide-eyed with amazement but fearless.

"Then he saw reclining on a very spacious couch, all made of gold, a solitary maiden, full of love, as it were Rati;—her face like the clear mean har are hours beautiful large kinned face like the clear moon, her eye-brows beautiful, large-hipped and full-breasted, scarlet-lipped, slender-bodied, her eyes

· Vimba-lipped. The Vimba, Cephalandra indica (Momordica monadel-

- 16 like the blue water-lily, her nails red-tipped, black-complexitions, soft-skinned, her hands and feet copper-coloured; her thighs round and tapering, her teeth beautiful, her looks dark-blue line and strong.
- "On seeing her, lovely in every limb, as it were a creeper on the fody of the god of Love, the king's son thought her the
- 20 deity of Rasátala. And the beanteeus maiden immediately she saw him, with his dark blue way hair, and well-developed thighs shoulders and arms, deemed him the god of Love.
- 21 And she rose up, the noble lady, feeling an agitation in her mind. The slender one was overcome at once by bashfulness,
- 22 astonishment and dejection. 'Who is this that has come?' is he a god, or a Yaksha, or a Gandharva, or a Nága, or a Vidyádhara, or a man accomplished in virtuous deeds and
- 23 love? Thanking thus, and aghing often, she scaled herself on the ground and then the fascinating-eyed lady swooned
- on the ground and then the hascmating-eyed lady swooned 21 away. The king's son, being also smitten by the arrow of
- 25 Love, revived her, saying 'Do not fear.' And then that maiden, whom the high-souled prince saw before, being dis-
- 26 tressed took a fan and fanned her. After reviving her, the maiden, on being questioned by hun, somewhat bashfully made
- 27 known the cause of her triend's fainting. And the noble lady related to the king's son in detail all the cause of the fainting, which occurred at the sight of him; and also her story as the other lady had told it.

"The lady spoke.

- 28 The king of the Gandharvas is named Visvávasu, and this
- 29 is his beautiful-browed daughter called Medálaci. The som of Vajra-ketu, a fierce Dánava, the cleaver of his focs, was
- 30 named Párába-ketu, a dweller within Pátála. He, raising an illusion of darkness, carried off this maiden when she was in her garden, anattended by me, and brought her here, the
- 31 villain On the coming thirteenth day of the lunar factuight, it was forefold, an Asura shall carry her off; but he does not.

phs. Roxb.) bears a bright searlet herry, 2 inches long, and 1 in diameter. It is a climber, common everywhere (Hooker, vol. II p. 621; Roxb. p. 696).

- deserves to hear the Veds. And when the day was over, Surabhi said to the maiden who was ready to kill herself, "This base Dánava shall not get thee. He who shall pierce
- him, when he reaches the world of mortals, with arrows, that one, O noble lady, shall shortly be thy husband." And I am her prudent companion, Kundala by name, the daughter
- of Vindhyaván, and the wife of Pushkara-málin, O warrier.

  35 My husband having been killed by Sumbha, I am wandering, in fulfilment of a vow, from one place of pilgrimage to another
- 36 by a divine course, ready for another world. Pátála-keta, evil-souled, when he had assumed a wild boac's form was pierced by some one with an arrow, to secure the deliverance
- 87 of the Munis. And I having really followed him, have returned in hasto: it is indeed true, the base Dánava has been smitten by some one.
- 38 'And this lady fell into a swoon: hear what is the cause. The maiden is full of affection for thee even at first sight. O
- 39 pride-inspirer! who resemblest the sons of the Devas, distinguished for gracious speech and other virtues. And she is allotted as wife to the other, who has wounded the Dánava.
- 40 For this reason she full into the deep swoon, and all her life the slender-limbed maiden will indeed experience suffering.
  - d On theo is gized her heart, O enamoured here; and she will have no other† husband all her life long. Hence is her suffer-
- ing. Even so was Surabhi's prophecy. But I have come here, my lord, through affection for her, experiencing gracf; for there is in fruth no difference between one's friend's body and
- 43 one's own. If this lovely lady gets an approved here for her husband, then assuredly may I engage in austerities with a
- 44 mind at case. But who art thou? and wherefore hast thou come here, O high-minded here? Art thou a Deva, or Daitya,
- 45 Gandharva, Naga, or Kinnara? For not here can men come, nor is human body such as thine. Declare thou that, even as I have spoken truthfully.'
  - · The Danava.

"Kuvalayásva spoke.

What thou askest me. O lady skilled in holy law, who am and why I have come, hear that, O lady bright of under standing! I tell it thee from the beginning. Son of king Satra-jit, I was despatched by my father, O beauteous one! I reached Gálava's hermitage for the purpose of protecting the Muni. And while I was affording protection to the Munis who observe the holy law, there came one, disgnised in hog-49 like form, to hamper them. Pierced by me with an arrow. shaped like the half-moon, he rushed away with great speed: mounted on horseback I pursued him. Suddenly I fell as in play into a chasm, and my horse also. Thus mounted on 51 horseback, wandering alone in darkness, I met with light, and saw thee lady; and when questioned, thou gavest me no 52 are nor whatever. And following thee I entered this splendid palace. Thus I have related this truly No Deva am I. or Dánava, nor Núga, nor Gandharva or Kinnara, O sweetsmiling one! The Devas and the rest are all objects of veneration to me, O Kundalá. I am a man; thou must not be afraid of this ar any time."

The sons spoke.

54 "Gladdened thereby, the noble maiden, gazing dully through bashfulness on the noble countenance of her friend, uttered no word. And again the friend, being gladdened, answered him, after saying to her, 'Truly has he related it, O maiden obedient to Surabhi's word?

" Kundalá spoke.

O here unvaruished truth is the word then hast spoken; and her heart, perceiving it no otherwise, will gain composure. Surpassing beauty indeed clothes the moon, and light clothes the sun: prosperity attends the happy manfortitude the resolute man, and patience the great man.
Then indeed hast assuredly slain that wicked base Danava; how shall Surubhi, the mother of cattle, speak falsely?
Therefore happy verily is this moiden and blessed with good.

The sons spoke.

- "'I am ready to comply.' thus spoke the king's son to her,
  O father. And she thought of him, the large-thighed* hero, the chief of his race. And be taking fuel and kúsa grass, accepted her immediately, through affection for Madálasá and through respect for Kundalá. Kindling tire, he sacrificed, being conversant with the mantras, and caused the blessed
  - maiden to take part in the marriage ceremony. And as he 88 had come, he departed then, being a wise man, to his own hermitage abode for the purpose of practising austerities.

  - "And the companion said to the maiden 'My wishes are fulfilled, O lovely-faced one. Now that I have seen thee, resplendent in beauty, wedded to this husband, I will perform
- 65 matchless nusterities, with a mind at ease; and, having my sins washed away in the waters of the sacred pilgrimageplaces, I shall not again become such as I am mea."
  - "And then bending courteously she addressed the king's son, being desirous to go, yet shaken in her speech through love for her friend.

" Kundalá spoke.

- 66 'No counsel should be given even by men to such as thou art, O man of boundless understanding! and much less there-
- 67 fore by women; hence I offer thee no counsel. But yet then hast caused me also to confide in thee with a mind drawn by love towards this slender-waisted one; I will remind thee, O
- 68 foe-queller. Verily a husband must over cherish and protect his wife. A wife is her husband's help-meet unto the com-

* For stumburum read comborum, "whose thighs are like the tumba," a kind of long gourd, Lagenaria ratgaris (Cucurbita !agenaria, Roxb.) It appears to be a wild variety. The common plant is the Sanskrit alávu, the modern kadu or 14u. It bears a large, thick, membranous or almost woody fruit, often 14 foot long, usually bottle- or dumb-bell-shaped (Hooker, vol. II, p. 618) Boxb., p. 700).

. . For sakhim, wand sakhil

- wife and husband are controlled by each other, then all the three combine, religion, wealth and love. How without a wife
- does a man attain to religion or wealth or love, my lord? In
- 71 her the three are set. So also without a husband a wife is powerless to fulfil religion and the other duties. This three-
- 72 fold group resides in wedded life. Men cannot perform the worship of the gods, pitris and dependents and of guests, with-
- 73 out a wife, O prince! And riches, although acquired by men, although brought to their own home, waste away without a
- 71 wife, or even where a worthless wife dwells. But there is indeed no love for him without a wife, --this is clearly evident. By community of the wedded pair in their duties he may
- 75 attain to the three duties. A man satisfies the pitris with children; and guests with preparations of food, likewise the immortal gods with worship; as a man he satisfies a victoous
- 76 wife. Moreover for a woman there is no religion, love, wealth or off-spring without a turbund. Hence this three-
- 77 fold group rests upon wedded life. This have I spoken to you both; and I go as I have wished. Prosper thou with her in riches, children, happiness and long life.'

The sons spoke.

- 78 "Having spoken thus, she embraced her friend and bowed to the prince, and she departed by a divine course according to her own purpose.
- 79 "And Satru-jit's son, being desirous to depart from Pátála, mounted her on the horse but was perceived by Dana's off-
- 80 spring. Thereon they suddenly shouled out, 'She is being carried off, she is being carried far away, the pearl among
- 81 maidens, whom Pátála-ketu brought from heaven. Besides he has won the might of the Dánavas, the iron-staff, the sword, the club, the spear, the bow, together with Pátála-ketu.
- 82 'Stand, stand' thus exclaiming, the Dánava chiefs then
- 83 rained* a shower of arrows and spears on the king's son. And Satru-jit's son, excelling in valour, split their weapons with

. For vararshur read cavrishur?

- the surface of Patala was covered with the swords, lances, spears and arrows, which were split by the multitudes of Rita-dhvaja's arrows. Then taking up Tvashtri's weapon
  - Rita-dhvaja's arrows. Then taking up Tvashtri's weapon he hurled it against the Dánavas; thereby all those Dánavas together with Pátála-ketu were turned into heaps of bones
- bursting with the excessive heat from blazing rings of fire, just as the oceans were burnt up when the fire of Kapila fell on them.
- 67 "Then the prince, scated on horseback, after slaying the chiefs of the Asuras, came to his father's city with that pearl
- 88 of women; and prostrating himself he recounted everything to his father, both the visit to Pátála, and the meeting 89 with Knudalá, and the meeting with Madálasá, and the con-
- 89 with Kundala, and the meeting with Madalasa, and the conflict with the Danavas, and their slaughter with the weapon, and the return.
- 90 "His father, having thus heard the exploits of his generfulminded son, was both filled with affection and embracing his
- 91' son spoke thus: 'I have been delivered by thee, O son, worthy, magnanimous, who hast saved from their fears the
- 92 Munis who follow true religion. The fame handed down by my ancestors has been further augmented by me: thou, O
- 93 son, mighty in valour, hast multiplied it. Now he, who does not diminish the glery, wealth or heroism which his father
- 94 has acquired, is known as an ordinary man. But whoever strikes out by his own might fresh heroism still, exceeding his
- 95 father's heroism, the wise call him great among men. Whoever lessens the wealth and heroism and glory acquired by
- 96 his father, the wise call him base among men. I then had accomplished even as thou hast the brahman's deliverance.
  And the visit to Paralla that then madest, and the destruction:
- 97 of the Asuras that thou didst effect, even this, my child, is, in excess, hence then art great among men. Therefore then
- 98 art fortunate, my boy. I indeed in getting thee, such a son as this, excelling in virtues, am to be praised even by righteons men. That man does not, I hold, gain the affec-
- 99 tion of adopted sons, who does not surpass his son in wis-

100 is known in the world through his father! He who attains fame through a son, his birth is the birth of a nobly born man. The fortunate man is known by reason of himself; the 101 ordinary man by reason of his father and grandfather; the base man attains distinction through his mother's relations and his mother. Therefore, my son, prosper than in riches and 102 heroism and in happiness. And never let this daughter of the Gandharva be parted from thee.

"Thus he was addressed by his father kindly again and 103 again in various sort; and after an embrace be was permitted to depart with his wife to his own residence. He lived there 104 joyfully in the society of his wife in his father's city, and also elsewhere in gardens, woods, and mountain-tops. And she, the levely, the beautiful-waisted, having prostrated herself before the feet of her parents-in-haw, thereafter morning by morning enjoyed herself in companionship with him."

Casro XXII

The story of Kucalayas a (continued): Maddlasd's death.

Pátida-keta's brother Tábi-ketn, in the grise of a Muni dwelling on the bank of the Yamunet, indines Kacalogason to grated his humaitage, on the prefect that he had certain corrementes to perform in the water - Diseppearing within the water begans to the patitive and reports that Kacalogicia had died in instite with the Daityas. Maddlash dise through grief and the king and green after their himentations, and perform the prince's obsequies. Tábi-ketn then returns to the hormitage and releages the prince.

The sons spoke

Many days afterwards the king again addressed his son, Mounting this horse go quickly to resent the brishmans.

and patrol the earth, morning by morning, day by day, for the brahmans' freedom from molestation must always be sought after. There are evil-behaved Danavas in hundreds.

perfence no obstacle from them. Then the king's son did as he was directed by his father. After traversing the whole earth, the king's son did obeisance to his father's feet in the forenoon, as each day came round; and then during the rest of the day he enjoyed himself with her, the slender-waisted one.

"One day, however, while moving about, he saw Pátála-ketu's younger brother Tála-ketu, who had fixed his hermitage on the bank of the Yamuná. The wily Dánaya had assumed a Muni's shape. Bearing the previous enmity in mind, he accosted the king's son—'O royal prince! I accost thee, do thou then accomplish my request if thou art willing: nor must thou refuse my petition, thou that art true to thy promise!

9 I will offer a sacrifice to Dharma, and the oblations also must be made. The funeral piles must be put up there, since

10 they have not yet ascended into the air. Hence give me, O here! this thy own ornament that is about thy neek

11 for gold, and guard thon my hermitage, until I praiso within the water the god Varuna, the lord of marine animals, with the mantras prescribed by the Vedas for Varuna's

12 worship, which cause creatures to thrive, and in hasto return.' To him as he spoke thus the prince did obeisance

13 and then gave his neck-ornament, and replied to him, 'Go sir! with a mind at ease; I will stay in this very spot near thy hermitage according to thy command, Sir! until thy

14 coming again. No man shall cause thee molestation here while I stay. And do thou in perfect contidence, without hurry, O brahman, accomplish thy purpose.'

"Being thus addressed by him, he then plunged into the water in the river, while the prince guarded the other's magicalsed hermitage. And Tála-ketu went from that river to the prince's town, and spoke thus in the presence of Madálasá and other persons.

"Tála-ketu spoke.

17 'The hero, Kuvalayáva, while guarding the ascetics close to my hermitage, fighting with a certain wicked Daitya i might, was pierced in the breast with a spear

19 wicked Drive who resorted to magic. While drive gave me this neck-ornament; and sudra ascetics gave he

20 to the fire in the wood. And the frightened horse which uttered distressed neighings, with tearful eyes, was led of 21 by that cruel Danava. This beheld I, malicious, evil-done.

Whatever should forthwith be done in this matter, let it be done without delay. And take this neck-ornament as a consolation to your hearts, for we ascetics may not have anything to do with gold

The sons spoke.

23 "Having so spoken, he left it on the ground and departed as he had come. And these people afflicted with grief, fell."

24 down, ill with fainting. Immediately recovering conscious ness all those royal handmaids, and the queens and the king

25 lamented sorely distressed. But Madålaså seeing that his neck ornament, and hearing that her husband was slain, quickly yielded up her dear life.

26 Thereon a great cry arese in the houses of the citizens, 27 even as there was in the king's own house. And the king's beholding Madálasá bereft of her husband and dead, made answer to all the people, having recovered his composite 28 after due reflection. 'Ye should not weep, nor I, I perceive.

when one considers the fleetingness of even all relations, 29 Why do I bewail my son? Why do I bewail my daughter-in-law? I think after due reflection, that neither should be 30 bewailed, since events happen as they are fated. Why should my son, who in obsdience to me has met death when engaged in guarding the dvijas according to my command:

31 be bewaited by the intelligent? Assuredly if my son has quitted his body on account of those dvijas, will not that body?

32 to which he resorts, cause him to rise higher? And how is the possible that this high-born lady, thus faithful to her husband, should be bewailed? For women have no deity besides a husband.

33 band. For she would have to be thus bewaited by us, and have relatives, and other compassionate persons, if she were eparated from her husband. But this noble lady, who on bearing of the death of her husband has immediately followed her husband, should not for this reason be bewailed by 25 the wise. Those women should be bewailed, who are separated from their husbands; those should not be hewailed who have died with them: but this grateful wife has not expe-36 rienced separation from her husband. Verily what woman in both the worlds would think her hasband human, who gives her all happinesses both in this world and the next? Neither should be be bewailed, nor yet this lady, nor I, nor his mother. We were all rescued by him who cesigns his life for the sake of the brilamans. For my high-souled son, by 38 relinquishing his body which was half consumed, has freed himself from his debt to the brahmans, to me, to religion.

39 Though losing his life in war, he did not surrender his mother's honour, the spotless fame of my family, or his own heroism.'

"Then Kuvalayásva's mother, having heard of her son's 40 death, looked upon her husband and, immediately after her husband, spoke similarly.

" The mother spoke.

41 'Not such gratification did my mother or my sister get, O king! as I have feld in hearing that my son has been slain

42 while protecting the Muni. Those who die, sighing, in great distress, afflicted with illness, while their relatives lament, -- their mother has brought forth children in vain.

Those who, while fearlessly fighting in battle to guard cattle and dvijas, perish crushed with arrows, they indeed are really men in the world. He who turns not his back on suppliants friends, and enemies, in him his father has a real son, and in him his mother has given birth to a hero. A woman's pain of conception reaches, I think, its success at the time when her son either vanquishes his foes or is slain in battle.'

The sons snoke.

"Then the king bestowed the funeral obsequies on his son

the water to his son.

47 "And Tala-ketu also, having issued from the Yamana, water, spoke this honied speech respectfully to the king, 48 son. 'Depart, O prince; thou hast caused me to be success.'

ful. While thou hast remained stationary here, the long

49 wished-for business, and the sacrificial acts to Varuna the high-scaled lord of the ocean, all that I have completed, as I had desired.

50 "The king's son did him reverence and departed to him father's city, mounting on that steed which sped along like Garuda and the wind."

CANTO XXIII.

Kuralayásva's visit to Pátála.

Kuvalayásia, returning home, lear it what had happened—Homonens his loss, and shearing women lears a cheerful life—The Náyàking Asiatara, hearing this stray engages in anderities and extols Surasrati - Surasrati, propiliated by him, restores him his companion.
Kambala, and gives them both perfect skill in poetry and music—Both propiliate Siea, who at their request gives Asvatora Madálasá as his daughter, restored to life as before—At Asvatara's suggestion, his sons invite Kuvalayasva to their pulace in Pátála and introduce him to their father - Asvatara asks Kuvalayásva to relate his story.

The sons spoke.

- The king's son reaching then his own city in luste, desirons to salute his parents' feet respectfully, and cager to see Mads.
- 2 lasá, beheld somo propte of the city downcast, with joyless' countenances, and then again astonished with joyful faces:
- 3 and other people with wide-open eyes, exclaiming "Hurrah!" harrah!" embracing one another, filled with the atmost
- 4 curious interest. "Long mayest thou live, O most fortunate, prince! Thy adversaries are slain; gladden thy parents' mind and ours also, which is relieved of anxiety.
- 5 Surrounded before and behind by the citizens who ware crying out thus, his joy for hwith aroused, he entered his tions embraced him, and then invoked on him auspicious blessings, saying "Long mayest thou live!" Thereupon having done obcisance, surprised at what this might mean, he questioned his father; and he duly explained it to him.

On hearing that his wife Madalasa, the darling of his heart, was dead, and seeing his parents before him, he fell into the - midst of a sea of shame and grief. He thought, "The maiden, on hearing I was dead, gave up life, the virtuous one: fie on

- 10 me harsh-minded that I am! Malignant am I, worthless am.
  I, that I live most pitiless, when deprived of that decr-eyed
- 11 one who encountered death for my sake!" Again he thought, having firmly composed his mind, banishing hastily the rising distraction, and breathing hard outwards and inwards, feeling undone.
- "If I abandon life because she has died on my account, what benefit shall I confer on her? Yet this would be preise-
- 13 worthy in women's opinion. Or if being downcast 1 weep, repeatedly oxclaiming 'ah! my beloved,' still this would not
- 14 be praiseworthy in us; for we are men assuredly. Frigid with greef, downcast, ungarlanded, uncleaned, I shall then become
- 15 an object of containely to my adversaries. I must cut off my onemics, and obey the king, my father. And how then can I
- 16 resign my life which is dependant on him? But here, I consider, I must renounce pleasure with woman, and yet that renunciation does not tand to benefit the slender-limbed one.
- 17 Nevertheless in every way I must practise harmlessness, which works neither benefit nor injury. This is little for me to do on her account who resigned her life on mine."

The sons spoke.

18 Having thus resolved, Rita-dhvaja then performed the ceremony of offering water, and immediately afterwards performed the obsequies; and he spoke again.

Rita-dhvaja spoke.

.19

20

"If she, Madálasá, the slender-limbed, were not my wife, I would not have another companion in this life. Besides the major eyed daughter of the Gandharva, I will not love that wife, who observed true religiou, whose gait was like the elephant's, I will not assent to any woman—this have I declared in truth."

The sons spoke.

And having renounced, dear father, all the delights of woman, bereft of her, he continued to sport in company with his peers, his equals in age, in the perfection of his good disposition. This was his supreme deed, dear father. Who is able to do that which is exceedingly difficult of accomplishment by the gods, how much more so by others?

Jada spoke.

21 Having heard their speech, their father became dissatisfied; and after reflecting the Nága king addressed his two sons, as if in ridicale

The Naga king Asvatara spoke.

25 "If men, decraing a thing impossible, will put forth no effort 26 in the deed, from the loss of exertion there ensues loss. Let a man undertake a deed, without squandering his own manhood; the accomplishment of a deed depends on fate and on 27 manhood. Therefore I will so strive, my sons, honceforthed the so practice austerities diligently,—that this may in time be accomplished."

Jada spoke.

Having spoken thus, the Naga king went to Plakshavatarana,* the piace of pilgrimage on the Himavat mountain, and practised most arduous austerities. And then he praised the goddess Sarasvati there with his invocations, fixing his mind on her, restricting his food, performing the three prescribed ablutions.†

Asvatura spoke.

- "Desirons of propitiating the respletedent goddess Jagad-dhátrí Sarasvatí, who is sprung from Brahmá, I will praise her, bowing my head before her. Good and bad, O goddess,
  - * Where the R. Surasy to takes its rise.
  - † At morning, noon, and evening.

whatever there be, the cause that confers alike final enancipation and riches,—all that, conjoint and separate; resides in 32 thee, O goddess. Thou, O goddess, art the imperishable and the surreme, wherein everything is comprised they get the

the supreme, wherein everything is comprised; then art the imperishable and the supreme, which are established like the 33 Atom. The imperishable and the supreme is Brahma, and this universe is perishable by nature. Fire resides in wood, 34 and the atoms are of earth. So in thee resides Brahma, and this world in its entirety; in thee is the abode of the sound Om, and whatever is immoveable and moveable. O goddess.

35 In thee reside the three prosedial times,* O goddess, all that exists and does not exist, the three worlds,† the three Vedas, 36 the three sciences, the three fires, the three lights, and the three colours, and the law-book; the three qualities, the three sounds, the three sounds, the three sounds, the three sounds.

37 the three times, and the three states of life, the pitris, day, night and the rest. This trinity of standards is thy form, O

38 goddess Sarasvati! The seven soma-samsthá sacrifices, and the seven havih-samsthá sacrifices, and the seven páka-samsthᇇ sacrifices, which are deemed the earliest by those * Mátrá; short, long, and prolated.

† Loka; earth, atmosphere and the sky.

.‡ Vidya; metaphysics (with logic), the art of government, and the practical arts (?)

§ Pávaka ; gárhapatya, áhavaníya, and dakshina.

Jyotis; fire on the earth, other in the atmosphere, and the sun in the say.

W Varya; or, the three castes.

** Sabda.

++ Asrama; those of the griha-stha, vana-prastha, and bhiksha.

21 The names of these sacrifices are thus given me by the Pandit of the Bengal Asiatic Society. The Some-samsthá are (1) agni-shtoma, (2) atyangi-shtoma, (3) nkthya, (4) shodaśin, (5) atirátra, (6) vájaheya, and (7) áptorysma. The havil-samsthá are (1) agnyádbeya, (2) agni-hotra, (3) daráspúrnamásan, (4) c'áturmásyani, (5) paśu-bandha, (6) sautra-mani, and (7) agrajapeshti. The páka-samathá are giyeu differently by different authors. According to Apastamba they are (1) aupásana-homa, (2) vaisva-deva, (8) párvana, (4) ashtaká, (5) śráddha, (0) sarpa-bali, (7) isána-bali. According sa Bandháyana, (1) huta, (2) prahusa, (3) áhuta, (4) sálagava, (5) bali-

- with the utterance of thy same, O goddess. Undefiniti
- 40 composed of half a measure, supreme, unchanging, imperial able, celestial, devoid of alteration is this thy other suprement
- 41 form which I cannot express. And even the mouth does not declare it, nor the tongue, the copper-coloured lip, or other organs. Even Indra, the Vasus, Brahmé, the Moon and
- 42 Sun, and Light cannot declare thy form, whose dwelling is the universe, which has the form of the universe; which is the rules of the universe, the Supreme Ruler; which is mentionsed in the discussions of the Sankhya and Vedánta philosophies, and firmly established in many Sákhás; which is
- 43 without beginning middle or end; which is good, bad, and neutral; which is but one, is many, and yet is not one; which userness various kinds of existence; which is without name,
- 41 and yet is named after the six games, is named after the classes, and resides in the three games; which is one among many powerful, possesses the neapesty of the Saktis, and is supreme.
- 45 Happiness and unhappiness, having the form of great happiness, appear in the . Thus, O goddess, that which has parts is ervaded by thee, and so also that which has no parts; that which resides in non-duality and that which resides in duality.
- 46 (O bráhman). Things that one permanent, and others that perish; those again that are gross, or those that are subtler than the subtle; those again that are on the earth, or those that are in the atmosphere or elsewhere; they all derive their.
- 47 perceptibility from thee indeed. Everything—both that which is destitute of visible shape, and that which has visible shape; or whatever is severally single in the elements; that which is iharana, (6) pratyavarohana, and (7) ashtaká-honna. According to Gautavag.

(1) ashtaká. (2) parvana, (3) śráddha, (4) śravani, (5) śgranáyani, (6) oʻaitrigand (7) śśvaynji.

*A MS. in the Sangkait College reads detas for ddyd, and nowligne for sandtands; with this reading the first line of the verse would qualify density assurances; if sandtane be taken as an disha form of sandtani. But these verses assure obscure.

tin hierent, on the surface of the cents, in the say at size where; is connected with thee by thy wowels and by thy omsonants!"

Jada spoke.

Thereupon, being praised thus, the goddess Sarasvati, who is Vishnu's tongue, answered the high-souled Nágu Asvatara.

Sarasvatí spoke.

"I grant thee a boon, O Naga king, brother of Kambala; speak therefore: I will give thee what is revolving in thy mind."

Asvatara spoke.

"Give thou me, O goddess, Kambala indeed my former 50 companion, and bestow on us both a conversance with all sounds."

Sarasvatí spoke.

"The seven musical notes,* the seven modes in the musical 51 scale, † O most noble Naga! the seven songs also, ‡ and the Svara, a "musical note." There are 7 scores, viz, shadja, rishabha, gandhara, mashiyama, pano'asno, dhairrta, and sisho'da ; and they are designated by their feitial sounds, sa, ri, ga, ma, pa, dra, and si; but the arrangement varies, and Prof. Monine-Williams in his dictionary places nist Ma first, shadja fourth, and pane and seventh. Those 7 warns compose the 'musical scale," grains (Bong. suplak). The interval between each conscentive pair of notes is divided into several 'lessor notes' called 'ritt'; thus there are 4 between se and ri, 3 between i and ga, 2 between ge and ma, 4 between ma and ya, 4 between pa and dha, 3 between dha and mi, and 2 between mi and se in the higher octave-that is 22 s'rulis in all. The sugras correspond to the 'natural notes,' und the s'rules to the 'sharps and dats' in European masio. (Rajs Souriadro Mohaa Tagore's Sungita-edra-eaugraha, pp. 22-24, where the names of the s'rutis are given; and his Victoria-giti-mala in Bengali, Introduction.)

† Grama-raga. I do not find this in the dictionary. Does it mean the "meries of musical scales" that can be formed by taking each of the notes (evera) as the 'key' note? Thus there would be 7 scales, as there are 7 notes. But Roje S. M. Tagore calls this stars-graps (Beng.), and he says that only 8 such scales were common in early times, vi. , those with shadja, gendhere and machyana as key notes (Victoria giti-mala, Introduction, ditaka. I do not know what the seven songs are.

times, and the three cetaves!—all these thou and slee hals shalt sing, O sinless one! Thou shalt know more through my favour, O Nága king. I have given thee the four kinds of quater-verse, the three sorts of musical tunes, it that three kinds of musical movement, I also the three pauses in * Marc'havá. This seems to be "running up or down the scale;" it is. defined thus--

Kramót svorágági sapidnám drehoš é dzorohagam Máro'hunetyuduats gráma-trays tap sapin sapin é a,

As there are 7 scales obtained by taking any of the 7 notes us the key note, there would be 7 mirchanas; and this applies to the 3 octaves (grand-traya), so that there are 21 mirchanis altogether (Singita-stra-sampula, p. 30, where their names are given). But in his Bengali Treatise Eaja S. M. Tagore explains mirchani to be the "passing ininterraptedly from one note (singit) to another, and in the process counding all the intermediate notes and losser notes (singit)." This corresponds to "slurring." With this meaning the number of passil le mirchanis is almost indefinite.

† Tala, the "division of time in mode." It consists of three things, kdlo, the duration of time, kripd, the dapping of the hands (accentuation), and make, the interval between the clappings. It seems to correspond to the 'bar' and the 'kinds of time ' in European music. European music has only 3 kinds of time Common, Triple and Compound, each with a few subdivisions; but in Hinda music tacre is the athrest variety. I do not know what the 49 talas here meant are; but Raja S. M. Tagore gives two lists of destitate; one enumerating 120, and the other 72.

‡ Grama, the "octave." Hinda mair uses only three octaves, which are called nimna (Beng. valira). mailing (mail val) and we'e'a (tdra).

9 Pada,

I Tala. This seems to refer to the classification of the tillar, viz., building, silanga (or silands or silanga, v. r.) and san-kirna, (Raja S. M. Tagore's' Bangita-sara-sangralm, p. 201); but this classification is also applied to the rigas (see his Victoria-giti-mall, Introduction, p. 9.). The building are plained to be the famous kinds complete in thomselves; the addange are those produced by a mixture of two simple cross; and the sankinga those produced by a mixture of many simple ones.

Theys, "musical speed." The 3 kinds are druta, quick, manhya, mass, and ellambita, slow; the druta being twice as fast as the madhya, and the meddya twice as fast as the vitambita. Lays does not take account of proceeding time. This corresponds to "the movement" in European musical.

inty favour O Naga king, and what lies further. What is contained within this and dependent thereon, measured in vowels and consonants—all that I have given to thee and Kambala. I have not so given it to any other on the earth or in Pátála, O Nága: and ye shall be the teachers of all this in Pátála and in heaven and on carth also, ye two Nágas!"

Jada spoke.

57 Having spoken thus, the lotus-eyed godders Sarasvati, the tongue of all, then disappeared at once from the N\u00edga's view.

58 And then, as it all happened to those two Nágos, there was begotten in both the fullest knowledge in versification, musical time, musical notes, &c.

59 Then the two Nagus, observing musical tone on the latestrings, being desirous of propitating with seven songs the

60 lord who dwells on the peaks of Kailása and Himálaya, the god Siva, who destroyed Káma's body, both exerted thomselves to the utmost, with voice and tone combined, being assidnous morning, might, noon and the two twilights. The bull-bannered god, being long praised by them both, was

62 gratified with their song, and said to both. "Choose ye a boon." Thereon Asvatara with his brother doing reverence

63 made request to Siva, the blue-throated, Uma's lord,-

"If thou, O adorable three-eyed god of the gods, art pleased with us, then grant us this boon according to our desire;

Yati, "a break in the laya" (laya-pracritti-niyama), 'a rest' in music. The 3 kinds are sand, sete-yatd, and go-puc'e'hd. The sand may occur at the beginning, in the middle, or at the end of the laya, and in each of the 3 kinds of laya. The sroto-yatd occurs apparently when the time quickens (accelerando) after the rest, that is when the laya changes from rilambita to madhya, or from inadhya to drata, or from vilambita or madhya to drata. The go-puc'e'hd occurs apparently whom the time becomes slower (rallentendo, madhado) after the rest, that is when the laya changes from drata to madhando) after the rest, that is when the laya changes from drata to madhando from madhya to vilambita.

Todyn. I do not find this word in the dictionary. Does it mean 65 become my daughter of the same age as when she she membering her life as before, endowed with the self-same beauty, as a devotee, and the mother of Yoga; let her be born in my house, O S'iva."

S'iva spoke.

- 66 "As then hast speken, most noble Naga, it shall all happens through my favour, in very truth. Hearken also to this, O:
- 67 Nága. But when the śráddha is reached, then shouldst eat the middle pinda by thyself, most noble Nága, being pure, and
- 68 having thy mind subdued; and then, when that is caton, the happy lady shall rise out of thy middle hood, the same in
- 69 form as when she died. And having pondered on this thy desire, do thou perform the libation to the pitris; immediate-
- 70 ly the, the time-browed, the auspicious, shall rise out of thy breathing middle hood, the same in to m as when she died."
- 71 Having heard this, both then adored S'iva, and returned, full of contentment, to Rasátala. And so the Nága, Kam-
- 72 bala's younger brother, performed the Aráddha, and also duly ate the middle pinda; and, while he pondered on that.
- 73 his desire, the slender-waisted lody was produced* at once, in the selfsame form, out of his breathing middle hood.
- 74 And the Naga told that to no one: he kept her, the lovely teethed one, concealed by his women in the inner apartments.
- 75 And the two sens of the Nága king pursuing pleasure day by day, played; with Rits-dhvaja like the immortals. But
- 76 one day the Naga king, being intoxicated, spoke to his sons; "Why indeed do ye not do as I told you before? The king's
- 77 sou is your benefactor in my opinion; why do ye not conferabenefit on him, the princinspirer? Thereupon they both, being thus admonished by their kindly-affectioned father.
- Went to their friend's city, and enjoyed themselves with the wise prince. Then both, after having held some other
- 79 4k with Kuvalayásva, invited him respectfully to come to teir house. The king's son said to them, "Is not this your date I Whatever is mine riches, convinces parments has that mindeed yours. But whatever ye desire should be given you. riches or jewels, let that be given you, O young dvijas, if ye have friendly regard for me. Am I cheated by such a cruel fate as this, that ye do not evince any sense of ownership in my house? If ye must do me kindness, if I am to receive favour from you, then consider my wealth and home as your own. 184: Whatever is yours is mine, mine is your own. Believe ye this in truth. My life has gone out into you. Never again must ye speak of separate property, O virtuous dvijas: since ye are devoted to my favour, I have adjured you by my beart affectionately."

85

٠,:

Thereupon both the young Nagas, their faces beaming with affection, replied to the king's son, somewhat teigning anger. 86 "Rita dhvaja, without doubt, we must not think in our mind in this matter otherwise than then hast now spoken our high-souled father has himself repeatedly said this-'I wish to see that Kuvalayásva." Thereon Kuvalayásva rising from his sent of honour, prostrated himself on the ground, saying, "Be it as your dear father says."

Knyalayásva spoko.

89 "Happy am I! Most rich in merit am I! Who else is there like me, that your father shews an earnest mind to see me? Rise ye therefore, let us go: not even for a moment do I wish to transgress his command here. I swear by his feet!"

Jada spoke.

91 Having spoken thus the king's son went with them both, and issuing from the city reached the holy river Gomati. 92 They passed through it, the Naga princes and the king's son: and the king's son thought their home lay on the other side 93 of the river. And drawing him thence, they led the prince to Pátála; and in Pátála he beheld them both as young 94. Nagas, lustrous with the gems in their hoods displaying the svastika marks. Caring with eyes wide open the amazoment at them both, who were most handsomely fored, · Rand krijoddyctau for kritodyctau.

the name, peaceful, worthy of honour by the heaven-dwalls

Then the king's son saw charming Patals; which was aderned with Nagas, young adult and old, and also with Naga maidens, who were playing here and there, and who work beautiful ear-rings and nocklaces, as the sky is desked with stars; and elsowhere recomming with drains, small drums.

99 and musical instruments, mingled with the strains of singing, which kept time with the sounds of lates and pipes; filled 100 with handreds of charming houses. the single about on Pattle.

Satru-jit's son the for-queller, walked about accompanied by those two Nages his friends.

101 Then they all entered the Naga king's residence, and they saw the high-souled Naga king scated, clad in heavenly garlands and raiment, adorned with gams and carrings, res.

102 splendent with superb nearl-negligens, heavenly with 102 splendent with superh nearl-necklases, decorated with armlets, blessed with good fortune, on a throne all of gold, the frame of 103 which was overlaid with a multitude of gems coral and lapis lazuli.

They showed the king to him saying "That is our father;" 104 and they introduced him to their father, saying "This is thehere Kuvalayásva." Then Rita-dhvaja bowed at the feet of 105 the Naga king. Raising him ap by force, the Naga king embraced him warmly, and kinsing him on the head he 106 said "Long mayest than live, and destroying all thy foca, be submissive to thy father. My son thy virtues have been

107 mentioned even in thy absence, happy that these art; thy rare virtues have been reported to me by my two sons.

108 Mayest thou indeed prosper thereby in mind, speech, body and behaviour: the life of a virtuous man is praise-worthy; a worthless man although alive is dead. A virtuous man, while accomplishing his own good, brings complete satisfact.

100 tion to his parents, anguish into the hearts of his caomianand confidence among the populace. The gods, the pitches

110 brahmans, friends, suppliants, the maimed and others, and his relatives also desire a long life for the virtuous man.

The He of virtuous men, who eschew abuse, who are compassionate towards those in trouble, who are the refuge of those in calamity, abounds in good fruit."

Jada spoke.

Having spoken thus to that here, the Nága next addressed his two sons thus, being desirous to do honour to Kuva-

112 layaava. "When we have finished our ablutions and all the other proceedings in due order, when we have drunk wine and enjoyed other pleasures, when we have feasted up to our

113 desire, we shall then with joyful minds spend a short time with Kuvalayásva in hearing the story of the success of 114 his heart's festival" And atru-jit's son assented in silence to that speech. Accordingly the lofty-minded king of the Nagas did as he had proposed.

115 The great king of the Nágas, true to his word, assembling with his own sons and the king's son, filled with joy, feasted on foods and wines, up to fitting bounds, self-powersed and enjoying pleasure.

CANTO XXIV.

The story of Kuralayásra (continued).

The Recovery of Madálusá.

The Naga king Asvalara asks Kuvalayásva what gift he can confer on him—Kuvalayásva replies he needs nothing, and is sufficiently gratified by the king's favour—The king urges him and at his sons' suggestion the prince asks to see Madálusá even in illusion—The king brings her in as an illusion, and afterwards restores her to Kuvalayásva.

Jada spoke.

His two sons and the king's son respectfully attended the high souled king of the Nagas, after he had banquetted. The high-souled Naga manifested kindly regard towards his sons' friend with suitable conversation, and said, "Declare, Sir, pleasure I must do thee who hast entered my house:

father. Whether cilver or gold, raiment, carriages, or sense, or whatever thou dost highly appreciate that is hard to be got—ask that of me."

Knyalayásva spoke.

5 "Through thy favour, illustrious Sir! gold and other wealth are in my father's house; I have no need of any such thing 6 at all now. While my father rules this could be such thing at all now. While my father rules this earth for thousands of years and then also rulest Patsia, my mind is not expectant in solicitation. They are both possessed of Svarga and are very rich in merit, who from their youth possess, in their father's lifetime, a mero particle* of wealth amidst his krores of wealth, friends equally-educated, and a body free from sickness. My father; holds the wealth; have I

9 not youth? When wealth is wanting, men's minds become prone to petitions. When I have it in full measure, how shall

10 ray tongue make petition? Those who need not think whether they have any riche, at home or not, happy are they, sheltered in the shadow of the tree of their father's arm.

11 But those, who even from childhood losing their father have had the care of a family, they have in my opinion, through the rain of their taste for happiness, been tricked by

12 the Creator. We therefore through thy favour always give willingly to supplicants the heards of money, gens and other

13 wealth left by our fathers I have everything then here, since I have touched thy feet with my crest-jewel, since I have touched thy body."

Jada spoke.

Being answered thus in a modest appeach, the noble Nága replied kindly to the young prince, the benefactor of his sons.

The Nága spoke.

"If it be not thy mind to receive of me gems, gold or other gift; whatever else may please thy mind, mention then it. I will give it thee."

Wealth as small as the point of a blade of grass.

CANTO MANY

Kuvalayásva spoke.

- 16 "My lord, through thy favour, I whom thou dost ask have everything at home: it has been gained especially through
- 17 sight of thee. And herein I am successful, and my life has been rewarded, that I a mortal have embraced thy body who
- 18 art divine; that the dust of thy feet has found a seat on my head. What indeed have I not gained thereby, O Naga
- 19 king? But if thou needs must give me the boon that I desire, then let not the faculty of working righteonsness
- 20 depart from my heart. Gold, goms, jewels and such like, carriages, houses, seats, women, food and drink, and children,
- 21 and tasteful garlands and ointments,—both these various objects of desire, and also vocal and instrumental music and whatever other ransic there be—all this I hold to be the fruit
- 22 of the tree of good works. Therefore a man must start from the root thereof; be must exert himself, while ruling his spirit; nothing in the world is hard of attainment to those who adhere to good works."

Aśvatara spoko.

23 "So shall thy mind be, O wise man, relying on rightconsness; and truly all this is the frait of rightcoasness as thou 24 hast said. Nevertheless thou must certainly take, now that then hast entered my house, what then thinkest hard to be gained in the human world."

Jada spoke.

25 Having heard this his speech, the young prince then 26 looked at the faces of the Nága king's sons. Thereupon both those heroes prostrating themselves told their father clearly all the young prince's thoughts.

The sons spoke.

- 27 "When this prince's beloved wife heard that he was slain, she forsook her dear life, being deceived by a certain cruel,
- 28 bad-minded Danava, who shewed his enmity. She was the
- 29 daughter of the Gandharva king; she was named Madélasé.
- . Then he, mindful of the past, made this vow, dear father,
- 30 'No other shall be my wife save Madalasa.' This bero Rita-

MEDICAL IN SECURITY TO REVALLATION

dhvafa longs, dear father, to behold her, lovely himbed in this may be done, let it be done."

Advatara spoke.

31 "Such magical power as that belongs to one who is exempt from such gross elements. How can this be except as a dression or as an illusion proceeding from Sambara?"

Jada spoke.

32 Then S'atru-jit's son prostrated binnell before the highsculed Naga king and replied, being touched with affection. 33 and modesty. "If they showt me now, dear father, Madalass even in illusion, I hold that then hast done me the greatest.

Asvalara spoke.

31 "Look then here then, my sen, if then wouldest see the illusion I must show thee fevene; a visitor at one's house, though a child, is master."

Jada spoke.

35 The Naire king led in Manilasa who was concealed in the house, and next be attend once gablerish dustinetly in order 36 to bewilder them. And then he showed the young prince the beautions lady, saying, "Is she or is he not, O prince, thy wife Madalasa's"

Jada spoke.

37 Then, seeing the slender one, he lose his reticence that very moment: h: moved towards her, uttering the word "Beloved!" And the Naga Advature hasting held him off.

Assetara spoke.

- 88 "It is illusion, my son' touch her not! I fold thee so at first. The illusion quickly vanishes when touched or otherwise meddled with."
- Thereupon he fell to the ground, overwhelmed by a faint; and exclaiming "Ah Beleved!" he thought of his noble wife. "Alas for the love of this ling towards my steadfast mind, whereby I have been thus overthrown without the favour."

weapons of foes. She was shown as an illusion, though it was clearly no illusion at all by reason of the action of air, water and fire, earth and ether."

Jada spoke.

Then the Nága reviving Kuvalayásva, related to him the whole story of her recovery from death and all else that had happened. Thereat rejoicing be took again his leved one, and after doing cheisance to the Nága departed in great splendour, mounted on the horse, to his own city, having attained* the object of his thoughts.

CANTO XXV.

The story of Kuvalayásva and Madálasa (cont nucl).

Kuvalayásva, returning home, lives in perfect happiness with Mod llasd—He succeeds has father Satru-jit—A son is born to there, Vi-heánta—Madálasá peatiles to the infant.

Jada spoke.

1 Reaching then his city he narrated the whole story fully to his parents, how he had regained his slender-limbed one who

2 had died. And the benutiful, slender-limbed lady bowed at the feet of her father and mother-in-law, and did honour as

3 before to her kindred with obeisance, embraces and such

4 greetings, according to propriety, and their ages. Then the citizens hold a great festival there in the city.

And Rita-dhvaja long enjoyed himself with his beautifulwaisted wife, both among mountain torrents, and on river and-banks, and amid pleasant woods, and in groves. She also, longing to consume her merit by the delights of love, enjoyed herself with him, her greatly-beloved, in pleasant places.

A long time afterwards the king Satru-jit, having ruled the carth worthily, underwent the law of Death. Then the citi-

· Read abhyupetap for abhyupetam?

none thangurated as king his high-souled son Rita-days

While he duly protected his subjects as if they were his own sons, Madálasá gave birth to her first-born son. The same of the same that clever child the name Vi-kránta. The retainers were pleased thereat and Madálasá laughed. Madálasá spoke to her infant boy in the way of prattle, as he lay on his back crying not numelodiously.

11 "Perfect art thon, darling, nor has thy name been given; thee now in mere famy. This very body of thun is composed of the five elements, not indeed for this reason dost thou ory."

12 —wherefore then ? Nor indeed does your highness (this title; is thy birth-right) cry because then art a king's son. Doubterful are the various good and bad qualities, that are connected a 13 with the elements, in all thy organs. Since in a man here the elements, extremely weak, increase by the means of the elements, rainely, by means of the food and water and other matrix given, of what hast them no gain, of what hast.

14 thou no loss? Do not grow infaranted at this thy bodies which is already decaying, and in that thy body is given then by good and had decas; the bodies is fastened on there by persons infaranted with pride and other pass

15 sins. Do those greatly extrem each aggregate of cloments—some ere aggregate as a dear father, some other as a child, some other as a mother, some other as a loved wife, some other

16 as thy own property, some other as not thy own. A man' beguited in mind thinks that evils tend to assuage evils, that enjoyments tend to happiness. Again the answise man, greatly beguited in mind, thinks that these very evils are pleas.

17 sures. Laughter, gazing at the bones,† a pair of excessively bright mocking eyes, from plamp dead in the broasts and olsowhere, in a woman—that is hove's abode; is not woman.

• Ullapana: not in the dictionary. Ullapa is said to mean "calling out to a load voice," change of voice in grief, sicknows, &c.;" but to such measing is admissible here.

† Asthi-mandariana; this soums meaningless. Akshi-mandariana sasang.

18 hell? The carriage rests on the earth; and the ...dy is scated in the carriage; and even in the body there is another scated, the soul. There is not the same perception of ownership in one's body, as there is this excessive infatuation with it."

CANTO XXVI.

The story of Kuvalayásva (continued).

The Education of his Sons.

Two other sone are hern, Subáhu and Satru-mardana—A fourth son is born whom Madálusá sumes Alarka—She criticizes these names—The king objects to her way of educating them, and reselves them to be brought up as hishatriuss—She pratiles to Alarka.

Jada spoke.

- 1 Now the queen trained up that son, as he grew day by day,
- 2 to unselfish thought by talking and other meass. As he regularly gained strength, as he gained his father's intelligence, even so he acquired knowledge of himself through his
- 3 mother's tack. So the youth, instructed by her from his birth, having understanding and being unselfish, did not turn his mind towards family life.
- A second son was born to her. His father named him.
- 5 When he said "This is Su-bahu," Madálasai laughed. Him also when a child she spoke to with prattle and other talk the same as before, and thus he, having a good intellect, acquired knowledge from his childhood.
- When the king named the third-born son Satru-mardana, she the beautiful-browed laughed again very long thoreat. The slender-limbed mother similarly instructed him also from
- 7 The slender-limbed mother similarly instructed him also from childhood. Devoid of desire he performed ceromonies, but not anything beneficial.
- 8 Now the king, when desirous of naming the fourth son, saw Maddlash, well-behayed as she was, laughing slightly: the king, somewhat eagerly corious, spoke to her as laughing.

The king spoke.

- 9 "Tell me the cause of your laughter, at the very time when the name is being given. Vi-kranta, Su-hahu and the other
- Satur-mardana,—the names given by me are I think fine suited to the kshatriya kindred, and indicative of heroism
- and majesty. If these are not good, lady,-if you think this in your mind,—then do thou give a name to this my fourth "חניא.

Madálasá spoke.

- "I must obey thy command, Mahá-rájá, as thôn rellest may: 12 so I will give a name to thy fourth son. "Alarka ! Learned" 13 in religion he shall acquire fame in the world, and this thy: compost son shall have understanding."
- On hearing that name given the son by the mother, the 14 Fing, lengthing at 'Abarka' as inappropriate, said-

The king spoke.

"This makes that there has given to my son, beauteous 15 lady, -why hast thou given such on mappropriate one? What is its meaning. O Modálaca ??

Madálasí spoke.

- "This is my fancy, Mahá-rájá; I bavo giren it as being 16 practical. So do thou asten, O king, to the meaninglessness 17
- of the names given by thee. Since wise men speak of a pervading soul; and 'kranti' is described as the course which passes
- 18 from one place to another place; since the soul is all-pervading in that it is ubiquotons and does not move about; therefore this appellation Vi kranta, 'passed beyond,' appears
- to me meaningless. The appellation Su-bihu, 'fine acmed' given to they second son, that too is meaningless because the
- soul is incorporeal, O king. The name that thou hash given the third son, Ari-mardana, 'foe-crusher,' I think that too the
- inappropriate; and listen to the reason as regards it. there is only one soul in all bodies, who then, O king, in regarded as its enemy in this world, or who as its friend?

Creatures are crushed by creatures; how can the incorporate real be crushed? This fancy is meaningless because of the separate existence of anger and the other passions. If a bad name is fixed upon because of mutual dealing, why dost thou think there is no meaning in the name Alarka?"

Jada spoke.

Being thus excellently addressed by the queen, the king, having great understanding, assented to his loved wife who spoke correctly. And the fine-browed lady spoke to that son, just as to the elder sons, what would arouse the intellect.

The king said to her. "Why dost than deal thus, O foolish one, with the temperament of my child, by giving him a mischiovous education as them didst before to my other sens. If then shouldest do what pleases me, if my word should be accepted, then restrain this son within the path of activity. So the path of action will not lead to utter destruction, O lady; and so the pinda offering to the pitris will not cease, O virtuous one. The pitris dwell in the Deva-loka, they are also been as brutes, they become men likewise, and they reside within the

20 class of elements. By offering the pinds and water a man, busied in the ceremonics, ever nourishes them, O fine-blowed
 31 one, both the righteons and the unrighteons, these worn out with hunger, those harassed by thirst; he nowishes the gods with hunger, those barnssed by thirst; he newishes the gods likewise and guests. The gods, mankind, the pitris, departed spirits, goblins, and gubyakas, birds, worms and insects live upon man indeed. Therefore, O slender-limbed, cause my son 83 to sequire thoroughly the whole duty of kshatriyas, as regards this life and life in the next world."

The queen Madálasá, being thus admonished by her husband, apoke to her son Alarka, with prattling words. "Thrive my son! rejoice my husband's mind with thy deeds, in order to benefit friends and destroy enemics. Happy art thou, my son, who alone, with never an enemy, wilt long protect the earth: from protecting it mayest thou have full enjoyment of happiness, and from rightcousness thou shalt bethin the fruit, immortality. Mayest thou delight the bethining at the holy festivals! Mayest thou fulfil the longing among thy kinsmen! Mayest thou think kindly in thy heart for another! Mayest thou restrain thy mind from the wives.

· Alerka, a furious day, or a fabulous kee with eight legs.

THE EDUCATION OF ALAREA.

37 of others! Please continually the gods with numerous sacrifices, and the dvijas who resect to ther with wealth. And thea shall long satisf, women with unparalleled affections, and

38 thy foes with buttles, O hero! As a child gladden the mind of thy kinsmen; and as a boy the mind of thy teacher by observance of his commands; as a young man gladden the mind of women who are the ornament of high families; as an old are the mind of the mi

9 man the what of the hermits in the forest. Exercising thy sovercignty mayest thou gladden thy friends! Guarding the good, mayest thou offer up sacrifices, durling! Destroying the wicked and thy encure in buttle, mayest thou most thy death, my child, on behalf of cartle and britimans!"

CASTO XXVII

The Education of the Sous Continued).

Maddinsa instructs Aboka in a king's during - Engineing especially the necessity for soly-control, perdonce and malacer rure of the laws.

dada spoke.

- Now being talked to in this way by he mother every day, the child Alarke grew in age and miell gence. Then this son of Rita-dhyaja, on reaching boyhead, received investitura with the sacred thread, and being intelligent did obcisance to his mother and said. What I ought to do now for harminess.
- 3 his mother and said, "What I ought to do now for happiness in this world and the next world, tell all that to me who am bowing respectfully before thre?"

Madálasá spoke.

- 4 "My child, a king inaugurated in his knowdom must in the first place conciliate his -ubject, without obstructing his own.
- 5 daty. Eschewing the seven varia which are radically injustions, he must guard himself from his adversaries without day parting from good counsel. Just as a man mosts destant tion in eight ways from a fine-wheeled chariot, so undoubtedly does even a king without departing from good counsel.

7 And let him recognise the bad and good ministers through his enemies' faults; and he must strenuously trace out his

8 enemy's spies by spies. But a king must not confide in friends, acquaintances, or relatives; let a king trust even in a nunfriendly nerson if so obliged by his affairs. A king an unfriendly person, if so obliged by his affairs. A king must himself be conversant with the stationary, prosperous and deteriorating conditions of state policy, be familiar with the merits of the six measures of military policy,* and not be enslaved by desire.

"A king must first subdue himself, and his ministers, then his dependants, and atterwards his crizens; then let him,

11 fight against his enomics. But he who, without having indeed conquered these, desires to conquer his adversaries, he, with his own self unsubdued and with unsubdued ministers, t

12 is killed by his enomics' party. A king must therefore, my son, first conquer desire and the other pressons; for when they are conquered, victory is his assuredly; vanquished by

13 thom, a king perishes. Desire, and anger, and covetousness, intoxication and pride, joy also, and enemies—these in truth

14 tend to destroy kings. Let him restrain himself, recollecting how Pandu himself was killed when engreesed in love;

15 and how Authrada; killed his own son through anger; and how Aila§ was killed through covetousness; how Vena; was killed by dvijas through intoxication; how Anayns son Bali

16 was killed through pride; Puranjaya through joy. Recollecting how, when these were conquered, high-souled Marutta vanquished all, let a king cast out these his own faults.

Viz., sandhi, peace; rigraha, war; ydne, marching; deane, encamping; deaidht-bhára, dividing his forces; and saméraya, alliance.

+ Fur 'jitátmá jitámályah rend 'jitátmájitámályah ?

I Son of Hiranya-katipu.

· L Pururavas.

A son of Anga.

. She was his mother.

bee, of the deer, serpent and peacock, of the goose, cook and 18 the red goat. A king should act like an insect against an opponent; and a king should carry out the ways of the anter

19 a fitting time. A king should tarry out the ways of the moon and the sun, ought to know for the sake of good, policy the behaviour of sparks of the and of the seeds of the 20 seemul tree.* And a king ought to gather wisdom from a courtezan, the lotus flower,† and a grasshopper, a dochare, and the breast of pregnant women, and also from a woman of the cow-herd easte.

21 "A king should assume the five forms of Indra, the San, Yama and the Moon, and also of the Wind in the work of 22 government. Just as India marishes the people on the earth's with showers of water for four months, so should a king.

23 mourish there with largesses. Just as the Sun draws up the a water with his rays for eight months, so should a king collect

24 the tolls and other does by truly subtle means. Just as Yamie' restrictes friend and toe when the time arrives, so a king countd be imparted towards friend and for, towards the.

25 vicious and the victious. Just as by gazing on the full, Moon, a man grows affectionate, ..., where the people are all praceful, that is the practice to should adopt from the moon.

26 Just as the Wind moves mysterious among all creatures, so should a king move among the citizens, ministers and others, and among his relatives by the agency of spaces.

The king, my child, goes to Svarga, whose mind is attracted neither by coverossness, nor by love, nor by riches, as

28 by other notices. The king gots to Svarga, who keeps within their duty criting feedsh men, who are sweeping from 29 their duty. He, in whose kingdom the duties of the four classes and the four periods of a brahman's life do not fail into desuctude has, my child, eternal happiness after death:

30 and in a future state. A king's highest duty, and that which men of their own laws, since it is disturbed by evil-minded men. By protecting or catures indeed a king reaches success; he who duly protects gains by his efforts a portion of righteousness."

<sup>8</sup> S'áimail; see note 9 p. 82. The pode contain a quantity of silky cotton which is blown about, when the pode butat.

† Nelumbium speciosum ; see note § p. 29.

CANTO XXVIII.

The Education of the Sens (continued).

Madálasá's Exhortation.

Maddlash enunciates to Alarka the special duties of the four castes - and of the four periods of a brahman's life—and the duties common to those four castes and periods, which must be strongously natintained.

Jada spoke.

1 Having listened to that his mother's exhortation, Alarka also further questioned his mother both about the duties of the four classes, and about the duties appertaining to the four periods of a bráhman's life.

Alarka spoke.

2 "Thou hast expounded, gracious lady, this the duty relating to the system of kingly government. I wish to hear that duty which concerns the four classes and the four periods of a brithman's life."

Madálasá spoke.

- 3 "A brahman's duty is held to be threefold--liberality, study, sacrifice. There is no other fourth duty. His duty is regard-
- 4 less of his position. Irreproachable sacrificial and educational occupations, and the acceptance of gifts from the purified—this is fitly preclaimed his threefold means of livelihood
- 5 Liberality, study, sacrifice—this is declared to be the threefold duty of a kshatriya also: protection of the earth, and subsistence by weapons are his means of livelihood. Liberality, study, sacrifice,—that indeed is the threefold duty of a vaisya when the method of livelihood. Liberality, and saurifice, obdience to dvijas, I have declared to be the threefold duty of the tidra also; and his means of livelihood are a handicraft, obedience likewise to dvijas, nourishing them, buying and selling. These are said to be the duties of the four classes.

"Hear also the connexions among the four periods of a brake own class gains perfect felicity; he goes to hell after death of the has served what is forbidden. And as long indeed a dvija is not invested with the sacred thread, so long, my son, he acts, speaks and cats marestrainedly.

11 "When duly invested with the sacred thread, he becomes a bechma-c'árie ir his garu's hoase, and he should dwell there.

12 I relate his duty; hear it of me. Private study, stien- dance on fire, bathing, and wandering about for alms, and always eating that food after informing his gura and obtain-13 ing permission from him. He hould be deligent in the guru's business: there should be thorough evolving of his affection; and when ammoned by him, he should read intently, his mind.

14 withdrawn from everything else. After acquiring one, two or , all the Vedas from his gard's month, he is addhorized to give the

15 gura his fee with words of enlegy. But let him enter on the griba stha period whon decitous of the period of family life; or, by his own wish, on the vare-practice period and on the 16 fourth period. Or let the dvija await his decease there in the guru's house, obedient to the guru's son if the guru he

17 dead, or to the guru's disciple, if there he no son. Obedient, from solf-concert, 'n' him pass through the period of a brahma-c'árin.

"Next when he has desired therefrom, through desire for 18 a griba-stha's status, let him then rightly marry a with sprung from the family of a different. Rishi, his equal, from sickness, not deformed, for the sake of a griba-side. 19 status. And having gained money by his own toil let him duly.

Alexandra. His family and here should not be descended from the same those who resert to him, his dependants and children, and his female relatives, and the afflicted, the blind, and the outcast, the birds and the cattle, to the utmost of his power with gifts of food. This is the duty of a griha-stha; sexual intercourse also at the proper season: but he should not, to the utmost of his power, neglect the performance of the tive sacrifices. And let the man himself, being zealons to the best of his power, together with his dependants, eat the remains of the food consumed by the pitris, the gods, the guests and paternal kinsmen.

"Now I have declared this griha-stha period distinctly. I describe to thee the duty of the vana-prastha: be it heard.

24 Having soon the succession of his offspring, and the stoop of his body, let the wise man enter upon the vana-prasthe period,

25 for the purpose of purifying his soul. In it there is the enjoyment of the forest, and attraction by penances, sleeping on the ground, sacred study, ceremonics for the pitris

26 gods and guests, the home oblation, the three daily ablations,† the wearing matted bair and a bark dress, and diligence in meditation anceasingly, the use of forest unguents.

27 This is the vana-prastha period, for the purification of sin, and beneficial to the soul. But after that comes another, the last, period of the bhikshu.

28 "But hear from me the nature of the fourth period, which with its peculiar duties has been described my darling by

29 high-souled men conversant with its duties. Renunciation of every association, sacred study, abstinence from anger, control over the senses, no long dwelling in one habitation, so abstaining from undertakings, and eating food obtained by begging once a day, also desire for the awakening of know-

31 ledge of the soul, and gazing at the soul. Now I have acquainted thee with this duty in the fourth period.

"Hear from me the compon duty of the other classes and of <sup>4</sup> For palavas road c'a palime ? ..

At dawn moon, and samet

🕏 For yah svardharmo 'sya rend sva-dharmo yasya l

- 32 the periods of life. Truthfulness, purity and harmlessness, freedom from envy, and patience, mercy, generosity, and contentment is the eighth virtue.
- 33 "These duties have been succinctly described to thee concerning the classes and the periods of life; and a man should
- 34 stand wholly within these his own peculiar duties. And the man, who ever suppling his own duty named according to his own class or period of life, should behave otherwise,
- 35 should be panished by the king. And the king who overlooks men, who after forsaking their own duties commit sin,
- 36 loses ms pious acts. Therefore a king must vigorously punish all the classes that blacke contents to their special duties, and he must keep their within their own occupations.

CANTO XXIX.

Modélast's Exhartation (continued).

Mod Anxierplaies to Alacka the position of a griduesthat—and personific as a core, the Veder, poses acts, the words of the good and the words end is radia, vashaf and leads. She describes the half offering, and wearget oblation. The do less of a gribuestha to guests—the kriddhat—and further luture to guests. She prominers a bleering on the gribuestha state—and queens a song by Atri on it

Alarka spoke

And what men must do who are engaged in the grina-sthat period: and what these mest contined in the absence of action, and what increases by action, and what is beneficial to men; and what a good man should avoid at home, and how things are done--declare that accurately to me who ask."

Madálasá spoke.

- 3 "My child a man on assuming the gride-sthe status, thereby nonrines all this earth and conquers the worlds he longs for."
- 4 The tris, the Munic, the gods, living things, and mankind,

. * For akirpyanyan read akirpunyan ?

and worms, insects, and flying creatures, birds, cattle, and 5 Asuras subsist upon the griha-stha, and derive satisfaction from him; and gaze indeed at his countenance, wondering, 'Will he give us anything?'

"The support of everything is this cow, my child, which consists of the three Vedas, in which the universe is established, and which is believed to be the cause of the universe. Her back is the Rig-Veda; her loins the Yajur-Veda; her face and neck the Sama-Veda; and her horns are pious acts; her

8 hair the excellent words of the good; her ordere and urine are tranquillity and prosperity; she is supported on feet which are the four classes; she is the sustemance of the worlds; being

9 imperishable she does not wane. The word sváhá,* and the word svadhá,† and the word vashat, my son, and the other

10 word hanta are her! four teats. The gods drink of the feat which is the word sváhá; and the pitris of that consisting of swadha; and the Manis of that which is the word 11 washat; the gods, living things and Asaras, and mankind drink constantly of the teat which is the word hanta.

Thus this cow consisting of the three Vedas, my child, fattens

12 them. And the man, who grievously sinning causes their destruction, sinks into the hell Tamas, the hell Andha-

13 tamism and the hell Tamism. And the man, who gives this cow drink with his own children and with the immortals and other objects of worship at the proper time, attains Svarga.

"Thorefore, my son, a man must nourish the gods, risbis, and pitris and men and living things daily, even as his own

15 body. Therefore having bathed and become clean he should, composed in mind, delight the gods, rishis and pitris, and the 16 praji-pati also with water at the proper time. And a man** having worshipped the gods with the fragrant flowers of the great-flowered jasmine, should next delight Agni; and the 17 bali offering should also be made. Let him cast the bali

The oblation to the gods.

The oblation to the pitris.

T Read taryas for tanya.

Durkness.

Complete darkness.

T Deep gloom.

<sup>**</sup> Read manavan for manavan.

officting to Maken and the Vitra-dovas Inside the being

16: to Dhanvantari to the north-east; let him offer the helf

19 wards to Veruna, and northwards to Soma. And let him also give the beli to Dhátri and Vidhátri at the house-door, and let him give it to Aryaman outside and all around the houses.

20 Let him offer the ball to night-walking goblins in the air, and let him scatter it to the pitres standing with his face south-

21 ward. Then the griha-stha, being intent and having his mind well composed, should take the water and east it, as a wise

22 man, into those places for those several deities, that they may ruse out their months.

"Having thus performed in his house the family-ball, the 23 pure griba-sthe should perform the utsarge chinton respectfully for the nonrishment of living things. And let him scatter it on the ground both for the dogs, and low-casts men 24 and the birds; for certainly this offering to the Visya-devas is declared to be one for exercing and morning.

"And then he, as a wise man, having rinsed out his month, 25 should look towards the door the righth part of a muharta, whether a guest is to be seen. He should honour the guest, who has arrived there, with rice and other food and with.

water and with fragrant flowers and other presents, seconding to his power. He should not treat as a guest a friend, nor a 27 fello "-villager, nor one who bears the name of an unknown

a brothman no has arrived, hungry, wearied, suppliesting, indigent, a grost; he should be henoured by the wise according to their power. A learned man should not inquire his lineage or conduct, nor his private study; he should esteets him, whether handsome or unhandsome in appearance, as a carla-pati. For since he stays but a transitory time, he is therefore called an a-tithi, 'a guest.' When he is satisfied, the thin atha is released from the debt which arises from hospitation. The guilty man, who without giving to the guest him.

31 said east, he incurs only sin and feeds on orders in a nother life.

The great transferring his misdeeds to that man, from which house he terms back with tiroless hopes, and taking that man's marit, goes off. Moreover a man should honour a gnest result according to his power with gifts of water and vegetables, or with just what he is himself eating.

"And he should daily perform the śráddha with rice and other food and with water with regard to the pitris and bráhmans; or he should feed a bráhman. Taking up an agra* of the rice, he should present it to a bráhmau: and he should give an alms to wandering bráhmans who ask. The alms should be the size of a monthful. the agra four mouthfuls.

36. Bráhmans call the agra four times a hanta-kára.† But without giving food, or a hantakára, an agra or an alras,

37 according to his substance, he must not himself cat. And he should cat, after he has done reverence to guests, friends, 38 paternal kinsmen, relatives, and petitioners, the maimed, and children and old men and the sick.

"If a man consumed with hunger, or another who is destitute 39 wants food, he should be fed by a horseholder who has adequate; substance. Whetever kinsman is dispirated when he 40 reaches a prosperous kinsman, the latter gets the sin that has been done by the dispirited man. And the precept must be observed at evening, and he should do reverence to the guest

41 who has arrived there after sunset, accordingly to his ability, with a bed; a seat and food.

"Thus a weight is placed on the shoulder of one who undertakes family life. Vidhatri, and the goals, and the pitris, the great Rishis, all shower bliss on m, and so also do guests and relatives: and the herds of cartle and the flocks of birds, and the minute insects the exist besides, are satisfied.

And Atri himself used to sing songs on this subject, noble one! Hear those, O noble one! that appertain to the gribe sthat period— 'Having done reverence to the gods, and the pitris.

45 and guests, relatives likewise, and female relations, and gurus also, the grina-sthe who has substance should scatter

A measure.

+ A formula of salutation, or an offering to a guest.

Ardend semarthe for somarthof sand birds: for he should certainly perform this offering to the Vitva-devas evening and day. And he should not himself out ficah, rice and vegetables and whetever may have been prepared in the house, which he may not scatter according to the precept."

CANDO XXX.

Maddlesa's Exhartation (continued).

Maiblash explains to Marks the correspondents he performed by a grib to be, which are of three kinds, continual, economial and periodical -5% explains the seasies of friddin, which is colorated for men and secreen.

Ma Mará spoko

- 1 "Now what the griba-stha's ceremonics are, the continual, and the occasional, and the periodical, listen thereto, my son.
- 2 The continual are comprised in the five solvitices, these that I beyonde cribed to the enand the occasional are the others, such as the ectors are on the birth of a son, and so forth. The periodical trace recognisable by the learned as
- forth. The periodicalt sectorogains due by the learned as the sperifices at the new bechanges, the schild a and others.
- "Here! I will fell the of the occasional studdlin celebration, to the hirth-commony that anough by a common similarly by that should be done at marriages and on other occasions.
  This the Mandi-mukha pitris, must be worshipped;
  that should give the pipeles mixed with curds and contained to should give the pipeles mixed with curds and contained to the should give the pipeles mixed with curds and contained to the should give the pipeles mixed with curds and contained to the should give the pipeles mixed with composed as:

  The oblation. Some new like it with the offer-
- Abdin-yaf a false singer (n. deve-yajyo, pitr-yajyo, menushyu-yajyo, aud
- * Read tota ... wittikam for nitya naimittika.
  - I and atra for intra?
- 5 Nine pitris, vis. the six parents, grandparents at 1 prest-grandparents on the paternal side, and the grandfather, great-grandfather and great-grandgrandfather on the maternal side.

dvijes must be arranged in pairs, and must be worshipped in dextral circumambulation. This is the occasional ceremony during growth, and the other is the funeral obsequies.

"And the sraddha for a single deceased person should be 8 performed on the day of the death; listen to that. And it should be performed omitting the offering to the gods, and 9 with a single vessel. And the oblations with-fire* should not be made in the fire without the ceremonies. And he should 10 give one pinds to the deceased person near the fragments of food, and sesamum-seed and water on the right, accompanying them with the recollection of that person's name. 'May he 11 be exempt from decay,' let the celebrant say, and 'may enjoyment be his,' let the others delighted say, at the place where the brahmans are dismissed. Men must do this every month 12 for a year. Now at the expiration of the year, or whenever the ceremony is performed by men, the śráddha for deceased sapindas must be performed for him also: so the rule is stated; and that must be without the offering to the gods, and accompanied with a single argha offcring in a single vessel. And that ceremony must not be performed there in 14 the fire without offering the oblations-with-fire: and on the right there, he should feed the single dvijas.

"And there is another distinction, consisting in an extra 15 ceremony every month; do thou listen attentive to me, as I tell thee of it, while it is being described. He should fill four vessels there with sesamum-seed, perfume and vater, three for the pitris, one for the deceased person, my sou.
And he should scatter the arghya-oblation in the three vessels, and in the deceased's vessel,† uttering the words 'Ye samáná' ýc., he should perform the rest as before.

This sraddha for a single deceased person is ordained precisely the same for women also. The sraddha for deceased sapindas does not exist for them, if they have no son. The staddha for stingle deceased person must be performed

" But if there are no some the sapindas; if they are weak 20 ing, the sahodakas, and those who may be the mother sapindas and those who may be the mother's sahodakas should duly perform this caremony for a man who has no 21 son, and for one who has begotten only a daughter. The daughters and their children should in this way perform the ceremony for the maternal grandfather. But those who are designated as the sons of two such persons should worship: 22 their maternal and paternal grandfathers fittingly with the occasional áráddhas.

"When all these relatives are wanting, the women should ; perform the ceremony without the mantras for their husbands; when they too are wanting, the king should cause the ceremony to be performed by a member of his own family, and the cremation and all the other ceremonies to be performed 24 properly by men of that caste; for the king indeed in kingman to all the classes.

'Thus these co 'mail and occasional ceremonies have been ? 25 described to thee, my child. Hear the other perodical ceremony appertamong to the śraddha. The new moon is just the cause there, and the time is the moon's waning: the fixed time indicates the constancy of that geremony."

CANTO XXXI.

Description of the Paraga Smith.

Maddlasd montions the saven supinda ancestors, and the largebhulas, and the temoter accestors-She explains here the relebrant of the tradicha norrishes them all-Shu enumerates the times for the trailities, and the persons who should and who should not be invited to #-Bhe doom les how the bruilitha should be performed.

Madálast spoke.

After the performance of the sraddha to decreased sapindar. he who is the father's great-grandfather passes to the class

The maninodekas.

those who feed on the lept, beying lost his stars in the pinds offered to the pitris. He, who is the fourth there-above among those who feed on the lepa bestowed by the deceased's son, ceases to eat thereof and obtains the satisfaction that is freed from the relationship.

The father, and grandfather, and also the great-grandfather—these truly must be known as the three males who are related by the pinda.† And those who are related by the lepa are said to be the three others reckoning upwards from the grandfather's grandfather: and the celebrant is the seventh among them. Such have Munis declared this seven-ancestral relationship to be, reckoning from the celebrant upwards. And there-above are those beyond participation in the lepa.

TH'

"Next are classed all the other ancesters, both those who dwell in Naraka, and those who have become animals, and those who reside within living creatures and other things.

7 "By what soveral means the celebrant, while performing the śráddha rightly, nourishes all those ancestors, hear that, my child.

8 "Now truly those ancestors who have become pisac'as obtain satisfaction from the food that men scatter on the ground.

9 Those ancestors, my son, who have become trees, receive satisfaction from the water that drips from the bathing garment

10 on the ground. But the drops of water, that fall from the limbs on the ground, minister nourishment to those ancestors in

11 the family who have attained divinity. And when the pindus are taken up, the particles of food that full on the earth,—those ancestors in the family who have become animals

12 gain nourishment therefrom. The children moreover in the family who, being capable of performing religious ceremonies but not having undergont the purificatory rites, are burnt on their death, they in their distress absist on the 13 scattering of the food and the water used in sco. ...g. And

* The wipings of the hands after offering the funeral oblitions to the three

+ Supliplan.

dies mouth after meals, and that which is used by flow and an emission and the which is used by flow and apprinking the fact,—the other accessors likewise gain anticles.

Is tion indeed therefrom. So whatever water and food is scattered by the celebrant and by those dvijas, whether it be

15 unsullied or fragmentary, that, my child, in the family of those who duly perform the áráddhas, neurishes the other ancestors who have been born among the several cross-

10 tions. With the érâddhas, which more perform with all-gotten wealth, are satisfied these uncestors who have been born as c'applilus, pukkadas and other men of degraded castes.

17 "Thus many here derive nourishment, my child, through their relations who perform the fridding, by means of the 18 casting away of food and drops of water. Therefore a man should perform the éraddha in faith according to rule even with vegetables: no one perishes in the family of one who performs the áraddha.

19 "I will mertion the periodic times for it, and learn of me by what rule men perform it.

20 "The scaletha must necessarily be performed on the night of the new moon, at the moon's warning every mouth, and on the nighth days" also.

21 "Learn of me the voluntary seasons. On the arrival of a distinguished brahman, on an eclipse of the sun or moon, at the solutioe, at the equinox, at the san's passave from one sign.

22 into another, and on the occasion of a portent,† my son, on acquiring property worth, of a śráddha, and on acong a bad droam, and at occultations of the constellation or planet nader which one is born, one should perform the bráddha according to one's inclination.

48 "A distinguished brahman learned in the Veda, a yogi, some who knows the Veda, one who has mastered the Jyeshthe-simin, one who has thrice kindled the fire Nac'iketa, one who knows the three varses which begun with *madin. 'I one

. a Of three months.

A line symblectic word symbolic. This word has several other mountage, which are admissible.

<sup>1.</sup> No. Y. L. 90. 6-8.

who knows the tri-suparna' hymns, one who knows the six Vedángas, a daughter's son, a Ritvij priest, a daughter's husband, and a sister's son, and a father in law also, and one who band, and a sister's son, and a father in law also, and one who is skilled in the business of the five sacred fires, and one who

25 is eminent in austerities, a maternal uncle, and one who is anterior to one's parents, a disciple, a relative by marriage, and a kinsman—these brahmans are all worthy of invitation to a śráddha.

26 "A religious student who has been incontinent, and a sick man, and one who has a limb superfluous or deficient, the son of a widow remarried, and a one-eyed man, an adulterine son,

27 and a widow's bastard, my son, a traitor to his friends, one who has bad nails, an impotent man, a man with brown teeth, a brahman negligent of his duties, a man cursed by his father,

B a slanderer, a vendor of soma juice, one who has deflowered his daughter, a medical man, and one who has discarded his garn and father, a hired teacher, a friend,* and 29 the husband of a previously-married woman, one who discards the Vedas, and one who abandons the sacred fire, a man who has been corrupted by the husband of a low caste woman, and others who habitually practise improper acts,

—all these persons are verily to be shapped in ceremonies to the pitris, (O brahmans.)

"The celebrant should invite the above-mentioned bráhmans on the duy before, to the function performed in honour of the gods and pitris, and should fetch them also.

30

31 "And both he, who shall perform a áráddha that ought to be performed by those self-controlling men, and he, who indulges in sexual intercourse after having offered the śráddha and eaten the feed,—the ancestors of these two men verily

32 lie down in that semen a month. Moreover he who eats at a śraddha and he who goes to a śráddha after intercourse with 33 a woman,—the ancestors of those two men feed on semen and urine for that month. Therefore a wise man must first issue before the day arrives must be shunned.

* Bhritakidhyapako mitrah. This seems strange.

+ For vriehalf-path-deshtas read crishalf-deshtd-path, one who has matried a low-caste woman or a desowered girl?

THE RITULE OF THE MACORA.

"With his mind controlled he should feast those who so have come seeking for alms, or ascetics who control thanks selves at the proper times, after first propitiating them with prestrations and other reversital acts. Just as the time 36 of the waving moon is dearer to the patrix than that of the waving moon, so the atternoon pleases the pitrix more than waving moon, so the atternoor pleases the pitris more than the foreneous. One should do reservence to these dvijas, who I have arrived at his noise, with a welcome, and with the 37 have arrived at his house, with a welcome; and with the payetrs in hand is sheald reat those, who have rinsed out them nearths, on seats. In the case of the purps the number of enumeral should be uneven, and in the case of the Gods?

38 search of searching to the electronistance, of the elebrant, there should be one brithman for the price and one for the tiods.

In this manner for the material anestors the number of brithman for the material anestors the number of brithman for the material and the high because the materials.

59 for the Visconderon may be identical in the eith of the pitple and internal masses of but some there in a desire that they should be distinct. He should plue the buildmans intended for the Gode with in infaces toward the east, and those for 40 the patrix towers to north, The errencing due to the material ancestors to been contarty expounded by the wise.

Let the intelligent many range kinks grass for a sear, and 41 worshipping with the arghys and other offerings, giving threes pure and such like, and obtaining permission from them, that the was dyra perform the invocation to the gods.

42 according to the reserve. And have a also given the arghya offering to all the deirnes with barley and water, and having duty given perfune, garanda, water and became accompanied

43 with a lamp, for him both perform the whole of the dextrate circumambalation for the pitris; and having given a double quantity of darbha crass, and having obtained permution

. For devai read force.

† The text is very cosonre, and seems corrupt. For this translation I am indebted to Bahn Harimohan Vidyábhashan, the l'andis of the Bengal Ariatic Society.

When the intelligent men perform the invecation to the pitris, prefacing it with the mantras. And let him also perform the dextral circumambulation and give the arghya 45 offering and barley and money and sesamum seed, intent on pleasing the pitris. Then permitted by the dvijas who 46 say. 'Perform the ceremonies in the fire!' let him offer rice · . - unmixed with condiments or salt according to rule. The first gite consists in uttering 'Svaha' to fire, the bearer of 47 oblations to the pitris; and let the next be 'Sváhá!' to Some who is esteemed by the pitrie; and the third offering is 48 'Svaha!' to Yama, the lord of the departed. And let him put the remains of the offering into the vessels of the dvijas; and taking hold of the vessels let him give the rice according 49 to rule. He should say affably "Ho, do ye enjoy yourselves happily "* and then they also should eat happily, with their 50 minds attentive thereon and observing silence. And a man should leisurely give them whatever food they like best, displaying no wrath and alluring them appropriately. And let him after the mantras which vanquish the Ráksheses, and lef him strew the ground with sesamum seed and with white * mustard: for the fråddha possesses abundant devices for protection. And let the man, permitted by the design who say 52 "Ye are satisfied and we are satisfied by those who are nourished and satisfied," scatter food overywhere on the ground. Similarly then having obtained permission, let him; with voice body and mind controlled, give the drijus severally watert to riuse out their mouths. Then, my son, let him 54 with his left hand put the pindas with rice and sesamum-seed on the darbha grass, wear the remains of the food, for the pitris. Let him composedly also give them water with the part of the haudi sacred to the pitris, since O prince! he 56 celebrates the sacrifice with faith for the pitris. Similarly he should, after giving the pindas on behalf of the maternal grandfathers according w rule, then give water for rinsing

· For yatha sukham read yatha-sukham?

Wor epak road apak.

<sup>2</sup> Pitri-tirths, the part between the forefinger and thumb.

ACTUAL Expedient with, weath portable fitting them "May Swadhá be fortunate!" and let him cause the who being satisfied say "Be it so " to pronounce the Taile devika mantras. Let him say "May they be pleased!" It to you. O Visve devas." And on those brahmans, saying, "Be 59 so!" he should request their benedictions. He should dismiss them, addressing them pleasantly and prostrating himself faith; and he should attend them as far as the door, and

60 should return, a gladdened man. Then he should perform the continual ceremony, and should also feed guests. And some very good men wish for a continual ceremony to the 61 pitris, and others do not wish it for the pitris. He should perform the remainder as the first part: some think 'not with a separate cooking vessel,' some prefer it repeated exactly.

62 in the same order.* Then the colobrant should cat that rice in company with his servants and others.

Thus should the man skilled in religious law perform com-68 posedly the staddha to the pitris, or so as satisfaction accrated to the brahmans. There are three pure things in a araddham

64 sesamum-seed, recrificial grass, and the sesamum-plant; and they say there, (O princely brahman,) are to be avoided;

65 anger, journeying, haste. A silver vessel is also commended.; at śráddhas, my son. Now silver is for use, for looking at and for giving away; for when the offering to the pitris is milked out in a silver cessel, the pitris give car to the earth; hence the pitris desire silver, which increases their affection.

* The text seems obscure.

† Danhitram, see note 1, p. 84.

t Tila.

I The text seems incorrect.

CANTO XXXII.

The ordinance of the Sraddha.

Maddlasd explains what kinds of food please the pitris at kraddhus, and for what periods—what kinds are to be avoided—what sites should be avoided for the ceremony—what men and animals should be excluded—and what defilements must be avoided—Yogis must have priority at the śráddha—ancient sougs are to be easy—and what benefits accrue from the performance.

Madálasá spoke.

- Noxt hear, my sen, with faith this* that I say,—what is to be avoided in order to please the pitris, or what conducts to their pleasure.
- 2 The pitris are satisfied with clarified butter and rice for a month. The paternal grandfathers receive satisfaction with
- 5 fish-ment for two months. Venison should be known to satisfy the pitris for three months, and the flesh of hures
- 4 nourishes the pitris for four months; birds' flesh satisfies them for five months; bog's flesh for six months; goat's flesh for
- 5 seven months; and flesh of the black antelopet for eight months; flesh of the ruru deer gives them satisfaction for man months, without doubt; flesh of the gayall gives them
- 6 satisfaction for ten months. Moreover sheep's flesh satisfies the pitris for cleven months; and milk of kine or anything
- 7 made of milk satisfies them a year. Flesh of the rhinoceros, flesh of the red-goat, the dark tulsi plant, and honey, and
- 8 flesh of the rhinoceros and whatever else is given by members
  - * For iman read slam.
  - + For aineyam read aineyam.
  - I For juvasydnishum road gacagamisham?
  - For drahhram road aur ibhram.
  - Kala-saka : Ocymum sanctum, Roxb. I do not find it in Hooker,
  - T Daubitra; but the rhivecores is already mentioned.

of their ever family, and surmeric and some jules, and see the performed at Gaya without doubt yield the pictics.

9 less satisfaction. Syamaka grain and raja-tyamakat grain and likewise small-grained rice, wild rice, and parallel grain, these among grain tend to satisfy the pitris.

Barley, vribi rice , and sesamum-seed, and wheat, gram, gram

11 the finest pulse, ‡‡ markataka§§ seed, rája-másha||| pulse, and anu¶¶ grain should be eschewed at a áráddha. Vipráshika****

12 seed and lentils†† are forbidden in a śráddha. Garlic‡‡‡ and red garlic,§§§ onions,|||||| carrots,¶¶¶ asparagus,**** and

13 whatever other vegetables are shunned on account of their tasts

* This according to Roxburgh is Panieum framentaceum, the Beng. sydmd, but he says the Bong. sydmd also denotes P. colonum.

† Perhaps this may be Panicum hispidulum, which Rexburgh says is called Beng. bara-turis d.

1 Prasatika.

§ Nivara.

The ass, or rainy season crop?

¶ M riga; see aste $5, p. 84.

Priyangu, Pansaum stalicam, (Roxh. p. 101.)

†† Kovidára, Banhinia variegata; seu note ||, p. 27.

II Nishpáva ; sec note 'l, p. 86.

§§ Markapika , this does not seem to be known.

[13] Rája-másha. Prof. Morier-Williams says this is Vigna cationg (Doliches cationg, Linn and Roxb.). (Hooker, vol. II, p. 205).

¶¶ Panicum malincoum, Roxb., the modern chind.

*** Vipráshika; not given in the Dictionary.

††† Masúra. Prof. Monier-Williams says this is either Errum hiroutum or Cicer less (Boab. p. 567). The former is the modern mastr chand, and the latter mastr. Hooker appears to combine both in Vicia hiroutu, which seems to be the common Lentil (Hooker, vol II, pp. 177 and 179).

III Lainna.

. §§§ Grinjana.

Palápdu.

¶¶ Pinda-múlaka.

eses Karambha, neut. Prof. Monier-Williams does not give the acut, has says karambha, fem., is Asparague rucemosus, which is also called fath-matit. (Roxb. p. 291; not in Hocker).

Agentalist before the state of The mad seddish juices I and things that are madifically salt whose should be indeed avoided in a śráddha. And whatever has been obtained by talk or through bribes or other improper means is not commended, nor what has been acquired from an outcaste; 150 and wealth that has been obtained unlawfully as the purchase-price of a bride is forbidden in this ceremony. And water that is bad-smelling and frothy, and very scanty, and 16 water that cattle would disdain, and what has been taken by night, and what has been left after every one has cooked, , and what is unfit for drinking in a tank-that water should 17 be avoided always in the ceremony to the pitris. All milk from deer, sheep, camels, and from animals that have uncloven hoofs, from buffaloes, and from the yak, and cow's 18 milk that is not more than ten days old, § and what has been brought to a person who has asked for it on account of 19 the pitris, such milk must be always avoided by the good in the staddha ceremony.

And in this ceremony ground must be avoided that is swarming with insects, that is rough, and that has been 20 scorched by fire, and that is hot with the words of enemies and wicked men, and that is foul-smelling.

Men who disgrace their family or who injure their family by 21 separating themselves from the śráddha, naked men and criminals may destroy the ecremony to the pitris with their glance;

a onnuch, and a man repudiated by his relations, a cock, and 22 the village bog, and a dog, each rains śráddhas by his look, and so also do Rákshasas.

Hence let a man offer the ceremony being well secluded, and Gándháriká; not in the Dictionary. Professor Monier-Williams says gándhári denotes Helysurum alhagi (Roxb., p. 574), and the Prickly Nightshade (which appears to be Solunum Jacquini, Roxb., p. 191); but neither seems appropriate. The text as it stands seems corrupt. For gándhárikám road gandholikum, which might mean "dry gings"?

&quot; † Alabu; see note * page 118.

I Nirytes; or 'guma'

A-nirdata. This seems strange.

arten berre Registropio del Idlodia.

be secured in the ground with sesamum seed. Thus may safety be secured in the triddhs even for both, my child.

What has been touched by a corpse or by a recently-24 delivered woman,* and by those who have been long ill, by outcastes, and by fifthy pursons, does not nonrish the pitris.

And the celebrant must moreover avoid the sight of a woman who is in her courses; and he must shun sitting together with bald-pated men and drunken men at a śráddha, out of respect.

And whatever is infested with hair-lice and whatever has 26 been gazed at by dogs, and whatever is putrid and state, and the bringal,† and ferments,‡ and whatever it is been faunced by the wind from clothing, are indeed to be avoided at a fridding.

Whatever, in the shape of articles of food possessed by thee, is given with supreme faith to the pitris according to their name and family, that becomes food for them. Hence a man of faith, who desires the pitris sat efaction, must place the best that inclusing the vessel and according to rule at a ceremony to the pitris.

And the years must always be fed by a wise men at a scriddin; for the pitris are puttons of religious devotion; so hence one should ever worship them. Now if a yegi is fed first, he can save the person for whom the sacrifice is effected and those who feast, just as a book saves in value, better than

31 At this recovery also songs in bonour of the pittis are song by those who recite the Vedu, songs which were § foreserly song

32 by the pitris to king Puréravas. "When will any one of us have a son, the chief among his race, who, eating the remains of 33 food left by the yogis, will offer the pinda on earth? Or will offer the pinda, boffalo-boof, the chrifted butter, or the vegetathousands of brahmans.

For lava-sidaka-samsprishtam road sátaká-lama-samspro htom?

† Vártáki, the brinjal, Solanum melongems, Roxh., the modern begun. Prot. Monier-Williams calls it the ogg-plant. It is a well-known and favoarite vogotable. I do not find it in Hooker.

<sup>1</sup> For abhishacins read abhishacis?

&amp; For dein road dean.

Let him duly offer the śráddha on the thirteeuth day and 85 when the moon is in the asterism Maghá, and milk mixed with housy and clarified butter during the winter half of the year.

Let a man therefore, my son, worship his own pitris in faith, 36 hoping to gain all his wishes and his own deliverance from evil. Meu's pitris, when delighted with śráddhas, please the Vasus, the Rudras and the Adityas, the constellations, the The pitris, when delighted with planets and the stare.

śráddhas, bestow long life, wisdom, wealth, knowledge, Svarga, final emancipation from existence, and joys and sovereignty.

I have declared to thee, my sou, the friddha ceremony as it has been expounded; hear, my child, the praise of the Voluntary Sráddhas according to the various days on which they are performed.

39

CANTO XXXIII.

The benefits to be obtained from the Voluntary Sraddhas.

Madálará explains the benefits to be obtained from performing the śraddba voluntarily with a view to the benefits -on the various days of the lunar fortnight-and when the moon is in the different asterisms.

Madálasá spoke.

- The first day of the lunar fortnight, if the śráddha be per-1 formed on it, is auspicious for the acquisition of wealth; the
  - . There are many plants of this name.

+ For assuramabe read assuramabai?

- Asbryum in the text, but it seems incorrect. Read deuryam or asuram from asura? Asura is in the dictionary, but not deurya.
  - § Picháya-varjya, hornless.

Kimpa Sraddha.

second bestows men; and the third seeks for booms; and

2 fourth destroys enemies; in the fifth a man acquires for tune; in the sixth he may become worthy of worship: in the seventh he acquires chieftainship; in the eighth the highest

3 prosperity; in the ninth he gains women; in the tenth perfect gratification of his wishes. So let him, assiduous in

4 the ceremonies, gain all the Vectas in the eleventh. And in the twelfth the worshipper of the pitris gains continual victories, offspring, mental vigour, cattle, prosperity, indepen-

5 dence and perfect nonrishment. The man of intense faith, who performs the świddles on the thirteenth day, gains length

6 of life and sovereignty undoubtedly. Since one is successful in śráddlas by means of choice food, he, whose ancestors died or were shain with weapons in their youth, should, if he wishes for their pleasure, perform the ceremony on the fourteenth day. The pure man, who performs the Sráddha diligently on 8 the night of the new amon, obtains all his wishes and attains Svarga everlostingly.

By worshapping the pitris when the moon is in the asterism.

9 Kritikh, a man obtains Svarga. A man who wishes for offspring may obtain it when the moon is in the asterism. Rohmi; and he may gain vigous when she is in the Sammya signs of the Zodiae; and he may set in valous when she is in the asterism. Archiv; and lands and other possessions when the she is in Progressions and goat is breathy always warshipping.

10 she is in Punar-vasa; and noarishment by always worshipping when she is in Pushya; and noble sons when she is in A-sleshá; and pre-eminence among his relations when she is in Maghá;

11 and good fortune when she is in Phalgani + And the man of liberal disposition obtains offspring when she is in Uttará Phalgani. A man who offers éráddinas when she is in Hasta.

12 verily attains excellence. And so a man of goodly form may obtain offspring when she is in Citra. So it bestows success

13 in trade; Višákhá gives philoprogenitiveness. Men who perform the śráddha when the moon is in Aparádhá attain imperial rule; and when she is in Jyeshthá lordship; and when she is

* They are Taurus, Cancer, Virgo, Scorpio, and Capricornus.

† For phalguni read phalyuni.

- 14 Male period maid. The state of tame comer from performing the triddle with the in Kahadha; and freedom from grief in Uttara Ashadha. And one gains bright worlds by performing it when she is in Sravana; and immense wealth 15 when she is in Dhanishtha. One may acquire intimate knowledge of the Vedas when she is in Abhi-jit; and success in medicine when she is in Sata-bhishuj; goats and sheep by performing the ceremony in Bhadra; and amorous dalliance in the latter part of Bhadra. And one who regions the scale
- 16 in the latter part of Bhádra. And one who performs the srád-dha when she is in Revatí acquires the baser no tals; and when she is in Bharaní full length of life.

Hence a man who is skilled in true knowledge should perform the voluntary śráddhas at these seasons.

CANTO XXXIV.

Alarka's Education—The exposition of Virtuous Custom.*

Maddlash mentions the benefits of the observance of Virtums Custom—which consists in the pursuit of righteenesses, wealth and love—Sho mentions a large number of general rules regarding religious worship, eating social behavious, private actions, and marriage—She gives general rules regarding the sacrifices, and describes the partions of the hand to be used therein—and mentions how one's residence should be closen.

Madálasá spoke.

- 1 "Thus, my son, should the gods and pitris he worshipped by a householder with the oblations to the gods and the oblations to the pitris; and with food should guests and kiusmen.
- 2 living creatures, all dependants, cattle, birds and ants, beggars and other petitioners be worshipped by the dweller in a
- 3 house, who observes the good customs and performs the domestic sacrifices, my child. He incurs sin if he neglects the periodic ceremonies."

4 "Thou hast declared to me, mother, the threefold ceremonics to be observed by men, the perpetual, the occasional, and the periodic." I wish to hear, O lady who gladdenest thy family, about Virtuous Custom by practising which a man gains happiness in the next world and in this."

Madálasá spoke.

- 6 "A householder must ever unintain Virtuous Custom thoroughly: for one who has lost Virtuous custom has no happi-
- 7 ness here or in the next world. Sacrifice, alms-giving and austerities do not tend to the welfare of a man here, who
- babitually transgresses Virtuous custom. For a man who follows bad custom does not find long-life here. One must carrestly follow Virtuous custom, Virtuous custom destroys what is inauspicious.
- "I will expend to thee my son, the nature of that virtuous cusiom. Here it from me with single mind, and even so mintain it.
- 10 6 A householder who performs the done stic sacrifices must strive to accomplish the three fold objects of life; in full success therein lies the householder's own success here and in the
- 11 next world. With a quarter of his Wealth let him, master of himself, lay up a store for the next world; and with half let him support himself and perform the periodic scaddhas;
- 12 and treating a quarter as his capital, he should increase it, by exerting houself on his own account. Thus, my son, Wealth
- 13 ought to be fruitful according to Virtuous custom. Similarly a wise man must practise Righteousness in order to withstand sin, and so also the third, Lovo, yields truit here indeed on ac-
- 11 count of the next world. And the third, Love, is not impeded through fear of diminution. Love also is said to be two-fold.
- 15 from its not being opposed by this three-fold class. Let a man consider all these successive correlations.
- "Hear from me those opposite correlations, such as Right-16 consness, &c. Rightconsne's aims at a succession of right-
  - * Nitya, naimittika, and nitya-naimittika
  - † Dharma, Láma and artha.

equaness.* Righteonshess is not destructive to one's own Wealth. And Love is diverse from both; and those two again are diverse from it.

- "At the Brahma moment a man should think of and ponder over Rightcousness and Wealth, after rising up and rinsing out his mouth, standing towards the cast, self-restrained,
- 18 pure: let him worship the twilight with the constellations in the east, the twilight with the sun in the west, as is right: he should not neglect it even when free from adversity.
- "He should eschew conversation with the wicked, falsehood, and harsh speech, evil books, evil words and the honney of evil, my son.
- 20 "Evening and morning, with soul restrained he should offer the home oblation.
  - "He should not gaze up at the celoof the san at saurise or at sunset.
- 21 "He should look in a mirror in order to dress his bair; he should wash his teeth; and delight the gods in the very foremoon.
- 22 "He should not defecute or void urine in a path leading to the villages, to temples, to places of pilgrinnage or to the fields, nor on caltivated ground, nor in a cattle-pen.
- 23 "Re should not gaze at another's wife asked. He should not look at his own ordere. He should avoid seeing, touching and talking with a woman in her-courses.
- 24 "He should not void urine, or defecate, or engage in sexual intercourse in water.
- 25 "He should not step on ordere, urine, hair, ashes or potsherds: and a wise man should not step on husks, charcoal, bones or decayed things, or on tope, clothing, &c., whether on a road, or on the earth.
- 26 "Moreover a householder should do reverence to the pitris, gods and mankind, and to living creatures, according to his
  - 7 capability, and afterwards eat himself. And a man should always eat his food, facing the east or the north, with his mouth well rinsed out, restraining his speech, pure, with his mind intent on his food and with his face between his knees.

* Qr, brings wealth as a consequence of righteousness.

28 "An intelligent man should not divulge another's fault ex-

"Food should be avoided in which salt is visible, and which is very hot.

29 "A man of self-control should not defecate nor void urine while walking or standing.

"And he should not cat anything at all while rinsing out;

30 his month. While he has remains of food in his mouth, he should not carry on any conversation and he should cease his reading, and he should not touch a cow, a brahman, fire, or his own head:

31 "Nov should be look at the sun or the moon or the constellations with passionate desire."

"And he should avoid a broken seat and bed and cup.

"He should offer a seat to gurus, accompanying the offer with rising up and other respectful acts; and he should salute them respectfully and converse with them agreeably; and he should follow them. He should not speak about them adversely.

"And when end in a single garment he should not eat nor engage in the worship of the gods.

34 "An intelligent man should not carry dvijas, nor should he void urine in fire, nor should be ever bathe or sloop naked.

35 "And he should not scratch his head with both hands; nor 36 should men wash their heads frequently without cause. And when his head is we red he should not touch his body with oil at all.

"And he should couse a stown reading, when every one is abstaining from reading.

"He should rever void urine against a brahman, the wind, cattle or the sau; facing north by day, and facing south by night, he should do his voidance of urine and faces during illness; whenever he desires.

* Kámatás.

+ For abadhárha read ábádhásu.

"He should not talk of his gurn's evil-doing, and he should appease him when angry. He should not listen to abuse when others utter it.

"And he should yield the path to brahmans, to the king, and to one who is ill with pain, to his superior in learning, to a prognant woman, to a man labouring under a burden, to a younger man, to the dumb, blind and deaf, to a drunken man, 41 and to a mad man, to a prostitute, to an enemy, to a child and to an outcaste.

"An intelligent man should respectfully circumambulate a temple, and a fig-tree standing on a sacred spot, and a place where four roads meet, his superior in learning, a gura and a god.

"He should not carry shoes, clothes, garlands &c. that others are carrying 43 "He should avoid the second thread, an ornament, and the water-pot on the fourteenth, eighth and lifteenth days of the 44 moon and at its four changes. He should also eschew rubbing his body with oil, and sexual intercourse with his wife, on those days.

"And a wise man should never stand with his foot or his log 45 extended: nor should be throw out both his feet; nor should be press one foot on the other.

46 "He should eschew deadly attacks, abuse and calumny. A clever man should not display deceit, self-conceit, or sharpness. He should not disprace with ridicule fools, insome per-

47 sons, or those is calamity, the deformed, or magicians, or those who have limbs deficient or supe gons.

"He should not inflict punis — ent on another in order to instruct a son or disciple.

48 "Likewise the wise man should not draw his seat towards him and sit down.

"He should not prepare a cake, khichree or flesh for himself.

49 He must have his food evening and morning, after doing wverence to his guests.

"Facing eastwards or northwards, restraining his voire, he 50, should always wash his teeth, my child.

"He should eschew the prohibited vegetables."

WORLL AND BOOMS MAKING

"A man should certainly not sleep with his head to the north, nor with his head to the west; he should sleep, placing his head to the north east or cast.

"He should not bathe in perfumed water, nor at night; bathaing except by day is declared to be most potent for calamity."

nor when he has not bathed, should he wipe his limbs with a 53 cloth or with his hands. Nor should be shake his hair, nor 53 cloth or with his hands. Nor should be shake his hair, nor should be shake his clothes.* Nor should an intelligent man, when he has not bathed, ever apply unguents.

54 "Nor should be wear red clothing, nor even variegated or black clothing; nor should be make a complete change of bis

55 clothing or in his ornaments. And transparent; raiment; should be avoided, and also whatever is very much damaged, and uhatever is infested with her, or has been trampled on,

56 or has been looked at by dogs, and has been ticked or thrown down, or has been beforded by the extraction of pus.

"He should never cat flesh from the back, or flesh unfit for 57 the gods and pitris, or prohibited flesh, my son, or things which are visibly salt. Food that is long state or that is not 58 fresh must be avoided, my royal son, because of the changes that occur in flow, vegetables, sugarence and milk; and meat long state must be avoided, because of the change! that occurs in it.

59 "He should avoid lying down at surrise and sunset.

"Not when unbathed, nor when reposing, nor while thinking

60 of other things, nor when sitting on his bed or on the earth, nor when making a sound, § nor when clad in a single garment,

61 nor when speaking, nor without giving to spectators, but when bathed a man should ent evening and morning according to rule.

62 "A wise man should not resort to other men's wives. Adultery destroys the religious acts and the life of man. Nothing

· For vásusi read vásámsi?

+ For vidatan read vitadam? I do not find cidata in the dictionary.

I For vikárámíc a rend vikárác c'u !

For fubdarat rend inbdayan?

"Let him perform the worship of the gods, and the cere monies to fire, and the respectful salutation to his guru, and also the ceremony of eating his food, after duly rinsing out his mouth. Facing eastwards or northwards he should reverently rinse out his mouth, my son, with frothless, inodorous, pure and hely water. He should avoid the five earths from beneath water, from a habitation, from an ant-hill, from ground infested with mice, and where purificatory actions &c. have been carried ou. After washing his hands and feet and sprinkling water on them he should, with his face between his knees, 67 and composed mind, riuse out his mouth. He should drink water three or four times after twice wiping the sides of his

68 mouth, the spectures of the body, and his head. After duly rinsing out his mouth with water, being pure, he should perform the ceremony to the gods, the rishis, and the pitris di-

69 ligently. A man should always perform the veremonies, preserving a composed mind. A wise man should rinse out his mouth, after he has sneezed, or spitten out, or donned his

70 raiment. After a succese, and licking, and a vomit, and spitting &c., he should rinse out his month, touch a cow's back, and

71 look at the sun; and he should hold up his right ear, since this is in his power; in the absence of the former, he should 72 do the latter; if the former be wanting, it is desirable to do the latter.

"He should not grash his teeth, nor beat his own body.

73 "He should also avoid sleep, reading and food at both twilights; and sexual intercourse and setting out on a journey at the evening twilight.

74 "In the fore noon, dear son, he should in faith perform his worship to the gods, and at noon to men, and in the afternoon

75 to the pitris. And with head bathed, he should perform the ceremonies to the gods or the pitris. And he should frim his beard facing castwards or northwards.

76 "He should eachew a maiden although well-born, if she is deformed, or sickly, or disfigured, or tawny-coloured, or talkative,

SOCIAL AND HORAL MAXIMS.

- 77 or contaminated by everybody. And one who is free from deformity, who has a beautiful nose, and is marked with all the auspicious marks—such a maiden as that should a main.
  - 78 always marry who desires welfare. He should marry one who is in the seventh or fifth degree distant from his parents: he should guard his wife, and he should shun jealousy, by day, in sleep and in sexual intercourse.
  - 79 "He should avoid a deed that causes pair* to others, and the infliction of pain on living creatures.
  - "A woman, during menstruction, should be avoided by all 80 the castes for four nights. We should avoid just the liftle night of the moon in order to avoid the hirth of females: then let him approach his wife on the sixth right, that night is the
  - 51 best among the even nights, my son. Sons are begetten on the even nights, daughters on the odd nights: therefore a wise man who wishes for a son should always collabit with his
  - 82 wife on the even nights. Lawless men robabit with their wives i. the morning, and connels at evening
  - "After daving, and vomiting and sexual intercourse, my 83 son, the wise man should resort to the place where bodies are burnt; and should bath; keeping his clothes on.
  - "One should not revite or radicule the gods, the Vedes, 84 or dvijas, good, truthful or magnatimous men, a garu, or devoted and virtuous wives, or persons who are sacrificing or 55 performing austerities, my son. One should never listen to
  - those unmannerly persons who do such things.
    - "One should not mount on a high led or seat, nor on a low one.
  - "One should neither dress unbecomingly, nor speak unbecomingly. One should be chief in pure white raiment, and adorned with white flowers.
  - 87 "Neither with the haughty, nor with the insone, nor with fools, nor yet with the unmannerly should a wise man form friendship; nor yet with those of had disposition, nor yet with
  - 88 those who are corrupted with thieving and other vices, nor yet
    - " Upa-tapaka ; not in the dictionary .
    - † Kata-bhumi.

with spend-thrifts, nor with the covetous, nor yet with enemies, nor with prostitutes, nor with inferiors, nor with the husbands of prostitutes. He should never make friendship with the mighty, nor with inferiors, nor with reprobates, nor with the ever-timid, nor yet with fatalists. He should contract friendship with good men, with those who always observe Virtuous custom, with the wise, with the honest, with the powerful, with those who are resolute in action.

91 "In company with one's friends, the mituated, the king, Snataka brahmans, and one's father-in-law, one should do reverence to the Ritvij priest, and the five other venerable persons and to guests. One should do reverence, my son, to dvijas, who have dwelt for a year, with an offering of honey and milk according to one's ability and with there ity at fitting them even though always scoided by the a.
93 times. And the brahman who desires bliss should observe their governance, and if intelligent he should not o nivadict.

94 "Having performed the household wo, ship properly in the fitting place and in due order. In should next worship the fire
95 and effect it the oblations in due order. He should make the tirst offering to Brahmá, and then to to the prajá-pari, and the
(4) The best in the prajá-pari, and the 36 third to the Guhyas, and the next to KaSyapa. Then leaving offered to Anamati* be should next offer the household ball and the constant oblations, that I have already explained to 97 thee, according to the retual. Next he should make the offering to the Viśva-devas, then the offerings to all creatures, and separately to the gods according to place and apportionment.

98 And he should make the three oblations to Parjuaya, the Dharitris, and to Manaka, t and to Váyu in every direction.

99 to the cast and other regions of the sky in due order, and to Brahmá, to the Air and to the Sun in order, and to the Visca-

100 decas and to all beings; and then he should offer to the Dawn, and to Siva northwards; and southwards to the pitris, 101 exclaiming 'Syadhá, reverence!' Having done it on the right and to the post west, saying, 'O Yakahma,' this is the thee!' he should, if he wishes, offer the remains of the food 102 and the water from the vessel according to the rule. These taking up the first part of the food, he should offer it with the benediction Hanta to the brahman according to the rule and justice.

* The fifteenth day of the moon's age, personified.

† This is said to Arum Indicum, the Bong, with-bod's, the stems and tubers of which are generally eaten (Roxb., p. 625)

"He should perform the ceremonies to the gods and other objects of worship, with each one's special portion of the hand according to rule; and he should perform the ceremony of riusing out the mouth with the portion of the hand sacred to Brahms.

104 This is called the portion of the hand sacred to Brahms for the purpose of rinsing out the mouth, viz., a line drawn to the

105 left of the thumb of the right hand. The pitris' portion of the hand is said to be the part between the forefinger and the thumb; by that he should offer the water and other obla-

106 tions to the pitris, except in the naudi-mukha éráddha. Andthe gods' portion of the hand is at the tips of the fingers; the ritual of ceremonies to the gods should be performed therewith. The prajá-pati's portion of the hand is at the root of the little finger, his ceremony must be performed; therewith.

107 Thus always with these portions of the hand sacred to the gods and pitris, he should always perform the ceremonies.

108 never with any other portion of the hand. It is proper always to rinse out the month with the portion of the hand sacred to Brahmá; and to offer the oblation to the pitris with the portion of the hand sacred to the pitris; and that to the gods with the portion of the hand sacred to the gods; and the offering to the praja-pati with his own portion of the hand.

109 A wise man should perform the cake and water ceremony to the nandi-naukha ancestors, and whatever is officed to the praja-pati, with the partial of the hand sacred to the prajapati.

"A sensible man should not carry water and fire at the same, time; nor should be thrust out both his feet towards gura and the gods.

Pulmonary disease.

+ Read káryam for kávam ?

Le should not look at a heifer sucking.

He should not drink water with the hands joined together.

- "At all periods of personal purification whether important
- 112 or unimportant, he should not delay for the sake of purifica-
  - "He should not blow the fire with his mouth.
- "One ought not to take up one's abode, my son, where
- 118 four things do not exist, viz., a person who pays debts, and a physician, a bráhman learned in the Vedas, and a river full of water. Where there is a king who has vanquished his
- 114 foes, who is powerful, and who is devoted to righteousness, there should a wise man always dwell: whence can come happiness, when the king is worthless? Where the king is
- 115 unassailable, where the earth is prolific, where the citizens are well governed and always practise justice, where folk are
- 116 charitable, there does residence bestow happiness. In a country where the husbandmen are rot generally gluttonous, and where all medicinal herbs are procarative there should a
- 117 sensible man dwell. One ought not, my son, to dwell there, where these three things are constant, a person desirous of conquering, and a former enemy, and folk who are always
- 118 holding festival. A wise man should always dwell among good-tempered neighbours.
  - "Thue, my son have I, thy well-wisher, expounded this to thee."

CANTO XXXV.

The education of Alarka (continued).

An exposition of things permitted and forbidden.

Maddlasa describes what food may be eaten and what nothow various things are to be reansed when impure, and what things are always pure-how one who has contracted impurity should purify himself—what actions and conduct one should avoidShe invists on the necessity of maintining the daily mentions what holidays are allowed the various vastes—She describes certain post-funeral ceremonies—and purification after deaths and births.

Madálasá spoke.

Next do thou hearken to the remedial measures for things forbidden and permitted. Rice should be eaten that has been

2 kept awhile, mixed with oil, and long stored; and wheat, barley, and butter-milk and preparations thereof unmixed with oil. The hare, the tortoise, the go-samp,* the porcupine.

3 and the rhinoceros, my son,—these indeed may be caten; and the domestic pig and lowl should be eschewed. The remains of food at a standard after the pitus and gods and other secipients have been satisfied may be eaten at the desire of the 4 brábmans. A man who cats flesh that has been killed for the purpose of medicine is not defiled.

5 Shells, stones, gold, and silver, ropes, and gorments, and vegetables, roots and fruits, and wicker-work vessels and lea-

6 ther, and gens, diamonds and corel, and pearls, and mon's bodies are best cleansed with water; just as iron things with

7 water, and stone by scrubbing. Only vessels are cleaned with warm water, and winnowing baskets, grain and antelope-akins,

8 and the pestle and mortar for husking rice, and thick cloths, and a store by sprinkling; and all kinds of bark-made things

9 are best cleansed with water and earth. Grass, wood and medicinal herbs are best cleansed by sprinkling; and all

10 woollen things and hair have coremonal purity. White mustard is cleansed with oily sediment or the sediment from sessmum seed. Things that are injured are always cleansed

11 with water, my son. So also cotton things are cleaned with water and ashes. Timber, ivory, bone and horn are best 12 cleaned by scraping Earthen pots are purified ceromonially by re-burning.

Pure are alms, a workman's hand, weres for sale, and a

Godhá, the Go-sámp a very large kind of lizard found in jungle.

weman's face, whatever passes along the high road, what is naknown, what is brought by slaves and other menials, what is admirable for its sound, what is long past, what is screened by many, what is light, what is extremely abundant, what is young, and what is done by the old and the sickly, kitchens when the business in them is ended, women who are suckling 15 children. Pure also are running water, and odourless bubbles.

The ground is cleansed through time, by the rubbing of 16 bodies, and the passage of cattle, by smearing, by digging, by watering, by houses, by sweeping and by worship.

Things infested with hair-lice, or sniffed at by cattle, or infested with flies should be sprinkled with earth water and ashes to be cleansed, my son; things made of adambara wood* with vinegar; tin and lead with salt. Brass things are cleaned with ashes and water; and the over-flows of fluids are pure. A thing soiled by order is cleaned with earth and 19 water and by removing the smell; and other such-like things by removing the colour and smell.

Water is pure that has satisfied eattle, that is in its natural state, that is lying on the earth; and likewise flesh that has been stain by Candálas, Kravyádas and others. And clothes and other things lying on the high-road are said to be made 21 pure by the wind. Dust fire, a horse, a cow, the shade, the rays of the sun and moon, the wind, the earth, drops of water, and mosquitoes and other insects inflict no contamination though they may have been in contact with what is corrupt.

22 A goat and a horse are pure as regards their face; but the face of a cow or calf is not pure when the mother is in malk; a hawk

23 is pure when it knocks fruit down. A sent, a bed, a carriage, boats, and grass on the read--they are purified by the rays of the moon and sun and by the wind, in the same way as articles of trade.

24 After walking along the high road, and after matters of bathing, hunger, drinking, and weariness, one should change

Fdumbara, Ficus plomerata, Roxb.; a large tree, common about villages
 Roxb. p. 646.1

PURIPICATORY AND SANITARY BULES.

- 25 one's clothes and duly rinse out one's mouth. Bad roads, much and water, when one comes into contact with them, are cleaned by leaving them alone; and things made of mud or brick? are cleaned by contact with the wind.
- 26 On taking up a morsel of vice-food that has been damaged through over-maturity, he should discard it, and should rinse out his mouth with water and earth, and should sprinkle the 27 remainder with water. One who has caten had food whether wittingly or unwittingly, should fast for three nights in order to assunge? that fault.
- After touching a menstruous woman, a horse, a jackal, and other ani vals, or a woman recently delevered of a child, or people of low caste, one should bathe for the sake of purification; and so should those who have arried a corpse. After touching ar oily human ione a man becomes clean when he has bathed; after touche, it a dry human bone he becomes clean by riasing out his mostly, or by teaching a cow, or by gazing at the sun. Moreover one should not disregard blood, spittle, and augments for the body.

A wise man sheald never stand in cerdens and other places in the afternoons. Nor should one hold converse with a worsan bated by the populaceous with a widow.

31

One should east remircuts of food, orders arine and the water used for washing the ier, out no the Louse.

- Without taking up the pupils one should not bathe in another man's water; one should bathe in holy ponds, and in the Ganges, it takes and givers.
- 33 After touching or holding conversa with blaspheners of the gods, pitris, and holy sisters, sacrifices, prayers and other sacred objects, one should purity code soil by gazing at the
- 34 sun. And after looking at a men-traous woman, a shiftra, an outcoste, or a dead body, the narighteens, a woman recently delivered of a child, a cumuch, a naked person, and persons.
- 35 of low caste, and on those who give eval children, and

Virathyå; vet ir the dictionary — † For opasava en road apalamäga?
 Islita, briok;

cock, and an outcaste, what is cast away, a C'andála, and those who carry away corpses, is purified by bathing; and so also one who has touched a woman in her courses, and the domestic hog, and even two men who have been contaminated by the impurity of a newly-delivered woman.

38 The base man, both be who daily neglects the continual ceremony, and he who is abundoned by brahmars, is polluted

39 One should never allow the continual ecremony to cease: but if it is neglected, there is a stoppage to the re-birth of his deceased relatives.

40 A brahman should spond ton days, exempt from alms-giving, the Homa sacrifice and other pions acts: and a kshatriya

41 should spend twelve days: and a vaisya half a month, but a sudra should remain a month, exempt from his peculiar occupation: thereafter all should pursue their own occupation, as already expounded.

42 Water ought to be presented to a departed person, after his body has been bount outside by his relatives,* on the first,

43 and fourth, seventh and muth days of the moon. His relatives should gather together the ashes and bones on the fourth day; it is prescribed that after gathering them together, they

44 should touch their limbs with them. But the sahodakas should perform all the ecremonies, after the gathering together of the remains. If the sapindas are touched by them, then both the sapindas and the sahodakas less their purity.

45 If a person dies directly of his own free will, by the sword, by water, by hanging, or by fire, by poison, by a fall, or in any other unnatural way, or by religious fasting to death, or by fasting to death from vindictive motives; or if he

* Gotrika.

t For mritahum rend mri: a.hanis.

For verse 36 of the text read-Annuksham ic'c'hoyd fastra-teyodba-dhana-vahnishu

- d dile is a could; or as a sojourner in a foreign country, or as religious mendicant, purification will be effected at once; and others say the period of impurity is declared to be three days.
- 47 for the sapindas; but if, after the other person is dead, the sapinda also dies, in this case the ceremovies must be performed addring the days called the period of the first impurity.
- 48 This same ordinance is applied also to the impurity caused by the birth of sapindas, among sapindas and properly among
- 49 sahodakas also. When a son is born, the father must bathe with his clothes on. And if, after one child has been born
- 50) there, another should be born, the purification in that case also is prescribed according to the days of the elder-born child.
- When ten or twelve mouths or helf a month have clapsed, it all the castes should duly perform their respective rites and cremonies. Next the ekoldishta shiddha should be performed.
- 5.2 for the departed person. And men of understanding must give gifes to the brahmans; whetever is most desired in the world, and whatever is prized at home, those very things
- in therefore must one who hopes for annurtality give to a brokarm endowed with good qualities; but at the end of the days, after they have reached water, a charlot, a vicapon, a good
- 54 and a rod and after they have performed the ceremonies, they should make the oblations ordared by the laws of their
- 55 respective castes, and perform all pure sets that confer bliss in the next world and in this.

A wise man must study the three Feder, and must be con-

- 56 finially occupied therein; be must consist riches righteously, and strenuously perform exercises; and he must fearlessly do
- 57 whatever does not entail consure on the soul of him who does it, my son, and whatever ought not to be conceated in public. The good man that so does, my child, beings splendour to his home by acquiring rightconsness wealth and love.

The text appears to be corrupt. The emended roading is taken from a private Ms. consulted by the prindit of the Bengal Asiate Society for me, but probydnas'anayor seems preterable.

- · A-lauc'akam; not in the dictionary.
- + For wpaddnom read upadanom?

CANTO XXXVI.

The Story of Madálasá (concluded).

Rita-dhraja Kuvalayáśva on reaching old age resigns his kingdom to his son Alarka, and Madálasú gives him a token-ring---Both depart to the forest to practise austerities.

Jada spoke.

- 1 Being thus instructed by his mother, Rita-dhvaja's sen at-
- 2 tained his youth and duly married a wife, and begat sons, and as a lord offered sacrifices, and always closely observed
- '3 his father's commands. Then after a long time Rita-dhvaja, on reaching extreme old ago, arounted his son in the sovereign-
- 4 ty, and with righteons soul desirons to depart to the torest to practise austerities in company with his wife descended from his throng, a mighty protector, an illustrious king.
- 5 And Madábisá delivered this her last discourse to her son, in order that her son might abandon attachment to sensual pleasures.

Madálasá spoke

- 6 "When intolerable pain, arising from separation from thy dear kinemen, or caused by the opposition of thy enemies, or springing from the destruction of thy wealth or from thy own
- self, may be full thee as then rulest thy kingdom, observing the laws of a honecholder for the householder who depends on selfishness real as unharmness his abode then my son draw
- 8 soltishness makes unhappiness his abode then, my sou, draw forth and read from this ring that I have given thee the writing that is inlaid in delicate letters on the plate."

Jada spoke.

So saying, she gave him a golden ring, and the blessings appropriate for a man who lives the family life. Then Kuvalayásva and his queen Mudálasá, bestowing on their son the kingdom, departed to the forest to practise ansterities.

CANTO XXXVII.

The conversation between the Father and Son (continued). The discrimination of the Soul

Alarka ruled rightcoasty and prosperoesty, but was greatly addicted to pleasure—His brocher Subaha, wishing to correct him, formed an alliance with the king of Káši- Roth ettached Marka to wrest the king-dom from him, and reduced him to great straits—In his distress he laks at Mulitusa's token ring and seeks relief from Dattátreya—He explains to Dattátreya volucient lies his suffering, and launches into a cortophysical disquisition on the coult cle wind, the body, and pleasure and poin

Jada spose

- 1 And Abarka also, righteons in soul, protected justly and like children his glad neople who practised each his own
- 2 basiness Inflicting purishment on the wicked, and worthily an arting presention to the peaceable, he experienced intense delights and he offered great sacrifices.
- 3 And there were born to bro sers, mighty and valiant, righteons in son' magnations, who were adversaries to evil
- 4 conduct. And he amassed wealth by means of eighteonomess, and righteonomess again by means of wealth; and since those two things are not antagonistic, he enjoyed even the pleasures.
- 5 of sense. Thus reany years passed away as if but a single day, while he raied the earth, devoted to righteousness, wealth
- 6 and the gratification of his desires. No feetings of indifference occurred while be enjoyed his loved object of senso; nor again did he grow satiated in amussing righteoneness and wealth.
- 7 His brother Subába, who roamed the forests, heard that he was thus besofted in his attachment to pleasure, and uncon-
- 8 trolled in his senses. The prince, being desirous of admonishing him, pondered long and concluded that an alliance on his part with the king's enemies would be beneficial to the king. Then he cleverly made repeated visits to the king of Kasi, who had numerous armies and chariots, as his protector, in order to regain his kingdom.

10 That king collected together his army against Alarka, and despatched a mossenger to demand that the kingdom should be gived up to Subáhu. Alarka refused, cognizant of his own justice, to give up the kingdom then in obedience to that command, and returned answer to the messenger of the king of 12 Káší; - "Let my elder brother come to me with affection and ask for the kingdom for himself. I will not yield up the 13 smallest bit of territory through fear on an attack." Even wise Subahn made no request then. Supplication is not the duty of kshatriyas, for he was mighty in valour.

14 Then the king of Kaśi accompanied by all his army 15 marched to attack the country of king Alarka. And forthwith forming a close union with the contiguous hings he attacked with some of their many vassals, and veduced him to

16 subjection. And without harassing Alarka's neighbouring kings by molesting their realms, he thus subjugated both the 17 governors of the fortresses and the forest tribes. He reduced into submission some kings by bribes, and some by creating dissension, and others who were well-affected towards. Alarka by conciliation.

Then the king with his small army, harassed by the adversary's host, found his treasury depleted extremely by the fee that blockaded his city. And being thus straitened and with his treasury diminishing daily, he fell into intense dejection and perplexity of mind. After suffering the keenest pain, he then bethought him of the ring, about which his mother Madálasá had formerly spoken to him. Then bathing and purifying himself, he addressed the brahmans, and drawing out 22. the ring saw the motto thereof in clear characters. The king pronounced what his mother had written thereon while the hair of his body was visibly standing erect, and his eyes were expanded with joy:—'Association must be shunued by every soul; if to shun it be impossible, it should be formed with the 24 good, for association with the good is a panacea. Love must be shunned by every soul; if to eschew it be impossible. should be displayed towards the desire for final emancipation from existence, for that desire is a cure therefor.'

CLARL WAS THE BUILDING

Now having exclaimed repeatedly, 'llow can men really 25 attain bliss?', and having decided that it was through the desire for final enuncipation since that desire is appropriate. thereto, the king next pondering upon association with the good, and suffering the most poignant grief, visited illustrions Dattátreya. On meeting him, megnanimous, stainloss 27 and devoid of attachments, he prostrated himself and work 28 shipped him and addressed him with propriety; "O brohman! show me favour, thou who art the refuge of refuge-

-cekers! Remove affliction from me, who am in affliction, and over-addicted to desires."

Datrátreva spoke.

29 "At once indeed do I remove thy affliction, O king. me truly, wherefore hast thou that offliction, O king?"

dada spoke.

Being thus addr sed by that wise Muni, the king pondered :0 over the seat and the nature of his three-fold affliction. The 31 king, being noble in intellect held long and repeated deliberation with his soul, being steadfast the while, and then laughing spoke thus: "It is not myrelf, nor the earth, nor the sca, nor the stars, 32nor the wind, nor the air; but I wish for happiness in bodily concerns. Picasure and prin pass to deficiency or excess in this body composed of five elements; what welfare should

I not get, if such I neight have, in another hedy wherein I should possess a constant and perfect good-disposition and should be raised and depressed through inequalities? Moreover a man of self-denial is perceived by his difference

35 from others. And so does bodily pleasure or pain generate & good disposition in one who looks upon the subtle third por-

36 tion which exists merely a moment? Since pain dwells in the mind, and pleasure again is a mental thing; therefore peither pain nor pleasure belong to the Ego; for the Mind is not the Ego. Inasmuch as neither Self-consciousness,* nor Mind, nor Intellect is the Ego, why then does the in-born pain in something else affect me ? Since the Ego is not the Body, nor the Mind, the Ego is distinct from the Body and the Mind. Therefore let pleasures and pains dwell in the Mind or in the Body; how is the Ego concerned hereat? If my older brother covets the sovereignty over this body, it is an aggrégate of five elements. How then is my Self concerned with the action of the qualities therein? He when scated 40 therein and I are distinct as regards the Body. He who altogether lacks hands and other organs, flesh, bones and head, what connexica, even a slight one, has that man here with elephant; horses, charlots and other treasures? Hence my Self has no foe, it has no pain, it has no pleasure, nor city, nor treasury, nor army composed of horses, exephants, &c., neither has he, nor a third person, nor any one, nor have I arry of these things. For as the air that occapies the orb; of a small water-jar and a pitcher, though one, is perceived in many ways, so Subáhu and the king of Kási and 1, methinks, are perceived among bodies by bodily differences."

For talsangeto read talsangulá?

Cavro XXXVIII

The conversation between the Father and Son (continued).

A series of questions

Dattatraya moralises on the consciensness of Self and its results, under the parable of a tree, and asserts the non-materiality of the Soul-Alarka asks for instruction about Yoga or religious devotion.

Jada spoke.

(.1 Then the king prostrating himself before the magnanimous

* Ahaukara. † Buddhi. I For mandalu read mandalu.

brahman Dattatreya, renewed his speech, bending respec fully before him.

"No whit of affliction have I, O brahman, when I lookies things in a proper frame of mind: those who look on things? amiss are always sunk in a sea of unhappiness. In whatever? 3 thing a man's intellect becomes self-engrossed, he receives woes therefrom and pays them back. There is not so much 4 pain when a cat cuts an unselfish sparrow or mouse, as when it eats a domestic fewl. I then feel neither pain nor pleasure. since I am beyond the material world.* Whoever is subject. to created things by means of created things, is indeed sensi- § tive to pleasure and pain."

Datrátreva spoke,

"It is even so, O tiger-hero! as thou hast just declared. 6 The (hought 'it is mine' is the root of pain; and the thought' "it is naught of mine" is the root of calminess. From my 7 question indeed has this sublime knowledge apring up in three, who hast cost off the convection 'It is mine', as if it were the cotton of the seemal tree "+

И "With the the aght 'it is I' the germ has spring up; with the thought tit is mine,' the germ has grown shoulder-high: and home and lands are its topmost boughs; children and wife and other relations are it young shoots; wealth and 9 corn are its great leaves; it has developed not once only; and merit and demerit are its ontmost flowers; pleasure and pain to are its full-grown fruit. There it tills the path of final emancipation; it cozes out at the commingling of fools; it is rich with festoons of bees which are the desire to be doing: knowledge of what ought to be done is the full-grown tree.

Those who, wenried with the road of worldly existence betake themselves to it: shade are dominated by error, knowledge which is sharpened on the whet-stone of association with the speed, travel along that path. Reaching the cool, dustless, thornless grove of religious knowledge, the wise, ceasing from action, attain supreme emancipation from existence.

12 and happiness; where is their superiority? lint those, who

* Prakriti.

† The capsules when ripe burst, and the silky contor insule is scattered over the ground for many pards around.

ing of the elements and of organs: neither must I declare we are an elementary rudiment, nor that we both have a soul as an eternal organ. Or, whom O king do I see the chief of us two, since the conscious soul* is sublime, and the personal aggregate consists of qualities. Just as mosquitoes, the dumbur trees,† reeds, munia grass.‡ fish and water have separate existences though they dwell together, so is it with the body and the soul, O king."

Alarka spoke.

"Adorable Sir! through thy favour has sublime knowledge of this kind been revealed to me, which causes one to discern

18 the power of the Supreme Intellect; but no stability remains here in my mind which is assailed by objects of sense; nor moreover do I see how I may be delivered from the bonds of

19 Nature, or how I may cease to exist again, or how I may attain in perpetuity to this state of being devoid of qualities and 20 to one-ness with Brahma. Therefore, O brahman, mighty in knowledge! expound religious devotion properly to me, who thus beseech thee, prostrate before thee, for association with the good is beneficial to men."

* Kahetrajna.

† Udumbars, Ficus glomerata, Roxb, the modern dumbur, (p. 646) not in Hoeker.

I Saccharum munja, Roxb. (p. 82).

Yoge.

Yoga, or Religious Devotion.

Dattotreya continues his exhartation—Final emancipation existence is attained through you or religious devotion,—and mores are restraint of the breath, mental abstraction, restraint the senses, and deep meditation. These means are analyzed and explained at length. What eigenstance are inimical to you. The improper performance of your entails hadily adments. However, bodily ailments may be creed. The eight of the proper performance of your.

Daltátreya spoke.

A yogi's removal of ignorance by the attainment of known to die is 'makti'; this is union with Beahma, and separation from the three qualities of Nature. 'Makti,' or final emancipation from existence, concertion religious devotion; and religious devotion comes rightly iron knowledge, O king; knowledge comes through suffering, suffering is the lot of those whose minds are engressed with sell. Hence the man who desires tinal emancipation should strenuously discard every association; when associations drop, the designation it is mine disappears. Freedom from selfishness tends indeed to happiness; the perception of faults cases from passionlessness and passionlessness concernated from knowledge; knowledge

5 is preceded by passionle-suces. That 's once house, where one resides; that is food, by which one lives; that which tends to final emancipation is described as knowledge or ignorance.

6 By consuming merits and deperits, O king, and through not doing voluntarily constant act that ought to be done, through not amassing subsequent acts, and through diminishing acts that have been proviously amassed, the body never again falls into the bods of action

This I have declared to thee, O king I Listen also to the religious devotion from me, by adopting which the religious devotes may attain to an eternal identity with Brakma.

. 8

First indeed the soul must be conquered by soul, wis indeed a hard victory for religious devotees. He should put Torth effort in that victory. Hear from me the means thereto. He should burn up his faults by restraining his breath, and his stains by steady mental abstraction, this sensual enjoyments by restraining his senses, I and his ambridled qualities by. 11 deep meditation. Just as impurities are burnt out of metals when they are melted, so the faults wrought by the organs of 12 sense are burnt out by restraining the breath. The religious devotee should first accomplish the regulation of his breath. Now stopping the inhalation | is designated pranayama, 'restraining the breath.' Pránayáma is of three kinds, which are named the 'slight,' the 'medium' and the 'intense.' 34 I will describe its measure; hear it of me, O Alarka! The 'slight' extends during twelvo mátrás o prosodial inscants, and the 'medium' is double that, and the 'intense' is wellknown as containing thrice that number of instants. time of a matra is that of the winking and opening the eyelids once. The measure of twelve matrix is fixed for the 16 reckoning of the pranayana. With the first he should overcome perspiration, and with the second agitation, and with the third 17 dejection; he should gradually overcome his faults. Now as lions, tigers and elephants, when kindly treated become mild. so the breath falls within the control of the religious devotee. As an elephant-driver brings a rutting elephant under control according to his wish, even so a religious devotee who has the 19 wish brings his breath to perfect control. For as the proud lion when tamed does not attack deer, so the obstructed wind destroys men's guilt but not their body. Therefore the religious devotee while engaged in devotion should pay good heed to the restraining of his breath. Hear its four conditions that bestow the result of final emancipation. They are cessation ** of the consequences of action, Prápávánia. Dhárapá. Pratychire.

A-pans, a meaning not in the dictionary. Thrariya, a meaning not in the dictionary.

. Dhvasti.

he the power of obtaining everything harmony sevenity 1 O king! Hear also their nature as I described order: Where the fruits of good and bad actions die and and the mind attains pellucidity, that is called 'days When the religious devotee himself always continuously resid the desires of this world and of the next world, such as core owness and infatuation, that is 'prapti' everlasting. When the religious devotes possessed of equal power perceives. be the advantage of his knowledge, the past and future remotely concealed meanings of the moon, sun, stars and planets, and gains success, then occurs the condition of pranayama called 26 'samvid.' The state by which his mind, and his five vital airse his organs of sense and the objects of those organs become serene, is called 'prasáda' 27 Hoar also, O king, the characteristics of pranayama, and what kind of scat is enjoined for one who always practises yoga.

28 Adopting the padma half seat, and the svastika sitting posture, he should after the syllable Om! in his heart and, 29 practise his retigious devotion. Sifting evenly on an even, seat, drawing in both his feet, and living fixing his thighs.

30 rightly in front he should cover his routh; he should set.

O rightly in front, he should cover his mouth; he should sit, without touching his private parts with his heels, with his senses under control; he should raise his head slightly;

31 he should not close his teeth together. Cazing at the tip of his own nose and not looking around, the religious devotes should conceal the activity of darkness with passion, and that should concent the activity of darkness with passion, and that 32 of passion with goodness, and taking his stand in unsullied goodness should practise devotion. He should hold in his organs of sense from their objects of sense, and his broath and 33 other faculties and his mind, he should advance to abstraction with a steadfast cohesion. But he who should draw in:

34 his desires, as a tortoise draws in all its limbs, always, delighting in soul and self-collected, sees soul in soul. The

35 wise man after purifying himself externally and internally

Prápti.

I Pranada.

t Bamvid.

Apa-kashara-tra ; not in the dictionary and filling out his holy from the nevel to the neck, should advance to abstruction. A 'dharana,' or steady mental 36 abstraction, is called twelve pranayamas. Two kinds of dháraná are known in religious devotion by devotees who are conversant with the truth. Moreover when a religious dovotee is steeped in devotion and controls his soul, all his faults perish, and he becomes whole; and he sees supreme Brahma and the qualities of Nature separately, the sky and the primordial atoms and the unsullied soul.

.18

89

Thus a religious devotee, who restricts his food and who is intent on restraining his breath, should occupy ground, which has been thoroughly and gradually reclaimed, as it were his house. Unreelaimed ground when it is taken possession of increases faults, diseases and foolishness, therefore he should not occupy unreclaimed ground.

'Pranayama' or restraining the breath is so called from the restriction* placed on the breath; and this is called 'dharana' or mental abstraction, by which the mind is abstracted; since the organs, which are occupied with words and other actions. are restrained by religious devotees by means of devotion, that is called 'pratyábára,' or restraining the senses.

And the means for this is declared by paramarshis who were religious devotees, so that diseases and other faults may not spring up in a religious devotee. Just as the thirsty may 344 drink water gradually by vessels, pipes and other means, so a religious devotee who has overcome his distress may drink air. First in the unvel, and next in the heart, and thirdly in the breast, then in the neck, the month, the tip of the nose, in the eye, eye-brows, and the middle of the head, and in what is 46 there-beyond, is known the highest mental abstraction. By attaining to these ten mental abstractions he reaches equality with the imperishable. Not puffed up, nor hungry, nor wearied, and undisturbed in mind, the yogi should practice ... his yoga respectfully in order to attain final occupation, O king!

sau-rodha; not in the dictionery.

When it is neither very cold nor warm, when the strife, when it is not windy, at those times the accept the deep in meditation should not practice yogs. In a plan where there is a noise, or fire, or water, or where study is getti 49 on, in a decayed cow-shed, at a place where four roads meet amid a collection of dry leaves, in a river, in a burning-ground in a place infested by snakes, in a place of fear, or on the edge. 50 of a well, amid a number of faneral piles or sut-hills-in these places a learned man should avoid practising yoga. there is no appearance of goodness, he should avoid the place 51 and time. These should be no sight of evil during the practice? of yoga; hence he should avoid that. Whoever disrogards these places and in his infatuation practises your, verily his faults tend to his hindrance. Hearken to me in this. Deafness, stupidity, failure of memory, dambness, blindness and feverthose several wills straightway befall him who practises yoga fit. ignorance. If a yogi should have these fault; through inadvertence, 54 vogis should attend to their care in order to destroy them. Hearken to me in this. He should engage in mental abstract tion, after eating rice-gruel, mangled with oil and very warm.

53

55 In the diseases of the contism, flatalence, and enlargement of the abdomen, circulation of the internal or obstructed wind of

56 the body should be regulated by a dist of rice-gracht in tremort a yogi shoold fix his mind on a mountain as it is steady, in dumbness on the faculty of speech, and in deafness on the ear; just as one whose tourne is parched with thirst." should meditate on a mange fruit. It whatever respect the body is disordered in that very respect he should think?

58 steadily of whatever thought may a mady the disorder, such as, a cooling thought amidst heat, and a heating thought amidst cold. He should place a stake on his head and beat wood with wood.

For ne yogam read sa Dojam, be should practice your?

<sup>. $</sup> This is the trenslation of the Paulit of the Bengal Aristic Society : the text seems obscure.

Por kalpe read kampe; so a MN. in the sianskrit College.

Thus must every soul that is wise in yoga compass its preservation, O king, since the body is the means of attaining righteousness, wealth, love and final emancipation from existence. The yogi's knowledge perishes through perplexity at the narration of the marks of the activities, therefore the activities must be hidden. Tranquillity,* perfect health, gentleness, a pleasant odour, scanty exerctions, a fine complexion, benignity, and softness of voice, are indeed the first indications of the activity of yoga. A loving person proclaims one's virtues in one's absence. That creatures do not fear him is the chiefest sign of complete perfection. He who is not injured by excessive cold, heat, or other natural agents, and does not fear other persons, has attained complete perfection.

Caxro XL.

The Yogi's blies.

Datatry a explains to Marka the ailments that beset a yog's soul and mentions their five varieties. He describes the yog's duties, the stages by which final emancipation is attained, the eight premonitory marks of final emancipation, and the results of union with the Supreme Spirit.

Dattátreya spoke.

I will succinctly declare to thee the ailments; that prevail in the soul of a yogi when it is viewed: hearken to me.

He longs for rites performed with a view to future fruition, loffe, set in the dictionary.

† Upa-sarga.

the string, for science, for supernatural power, for the the the states and riches, for heaven, god-head, and supreme the head, for actions that yield copious supplies of clixir vitation for flying on the storm-winds, for sacritice, and the power of inhabiting water and fire, for the fruits of śráddhas that contain every gift, and religious mortifications. Thus he long when mentally ailing by reason of fasting, meritorious acts, and worship of the gods, and by reason of those several

A yogi should strenuously restrain his mind when beset with such thoughts. By making his mind cling to Brahma ha is liberated from ailments. When these ailments are overcomed other ailments still beset a yogi, arising out of goodness, passion and ignorance.

Ailments arising from illusive vision,† from hearing, and, from the deity,‡ and mental abcreation,§ and enthusiasm#—; these five are roots of bitterness which tend to embarass the religious meditations of yogis. The ailment arising from 9 illusive vision is such to a yogi because in it appear Vedic matters, poetic matters, science and the mechanical arts without end. The ailment connected with heaving is so-called.

10 because he perceives the meanings of sounds in all their completeness, and he receives sound from thousands of yojanas.

11 The wise call that ailment one from the deity, as in the case of a madman, when like a god he sees all around and in the eight

12 directions. When the yogi's mind wanders without support through his own fault by reason of his full from all the rules of 13 good custom \(\frac{q}{2}\) - that is well known as mental aberration. When the seething whirl-pool \(\frac{q}{2}\) of knowledge like a whirl-pool of

Read rasdyana-c'ayáh for rasáyana-c'ayah?

† Pratibha. Prof. Momer-Williams gives the meaning "relating to divina. nation," but in this place it seems to relate to vision, as the context shows.

I Daivs.

& Bhrama.

actions.

6

8

Avarta. Deliberation, revolving (in the mind), so Prof. Monier-Williams; but it seems a much stronger word.

F Ko'ára.

** Krarta

Therefore the yogi, having clad himself with a mental white blanket, should cast his mind prone on supreme Brahma, and meditate on him. A yogi should always be intent on religious meditation, he should eat sparingly, he should subdue 16 his senses. The yogi should contemplate in his head the subtle conditions of the seven objects, viz., earth &c. he should contemplate the subtle earth, until he comprehends its 17 subtlety." He deems the earth to be his soul, and he quits its bonds. Moreover be quits the subtle taste in water," and also the form in the fire; and be likewise quits touch in the 18 wind, as he bears the subtle form in mind; and be quits the 19 subtle activity of the sky, and likewise its sound. When he enters with his mind into the mind of all created things, his mind bearing a mental subtle condition of them becomes 20 subtle also. Likewise the man, conversant with religious devotion, on attaining to the intellect of all creatures, gains and relinquishes the most perfect subtlety of intellect. For the man conversant with religious devotion, who relinquishes 21 these seven subtle things after having thoroughly comprehended them, there is no retrogression, O Alarka! The soulcognisant man, after fully seeing the subtlety of these subtle conditions of the seven objects, then utterly abandoning it may proceed to supreme bliss. And towards whatever created 23 thing he evinces feeling, O king! to that very thing he becomes attached, and he porishes. Therefore the corporcal being, who after perceiving the mutually-associated subtle things abandons them, may gain supreme bliss. Having conjoined these very seven subtle things, O king! passionlessness towards created and other things tends to the final emancipation from existence of the man cognisant of the entities.+

* For tat-saukhuam read tut-saukshmam; so a MS. in the Sanskrif College.

# For also road apsu f

I Sad-bhavall

in his soprages affected to perfernee and ota periebee; he again reverts to human nature apart to Brahma. Whatever subtle created thing the your deal after transcending the subtle conditions of these seven object in that very thing be meets his extinction, O king l. E meets his extinction in the bodies of gods or Asuras, or Gundarvas, Nágas, or Rákshusas; nowhere does he gain and attachment.

29 Where minuteness, and lightness, greatness and the power. of obtaining every thing, freedom of will, and lordship, and magical domination and again self-mortification are-one finds: these eight sovereign-like qualities fully indicate union with the Supreme Spirit. J O king. The quality of minuteness is far. subtler than the subtle; lightness means swiftness; greatness consists in being universally reverenced; the power of obtains 32 ing everything, inasmuch as nothing is impossible of obtain. ment by him; freedom of will consists in his power of pervading all things; and lordship insamuch as he is lord; marical,"

33 domination indeed, the yogi's seventh quality consists in his subjugating things: where the wishes are said to remain. stationary, & there | is self-mortification. By these causes of 34 sovereignty I have declared O king! in eight points the indicatory marks of the yogi's final emancipation from existence, and of his sublime union with the Supreme Spirit.

Thenceforth for him there is no birth, nor growth, nor 35 death; he neither decays nor does he alter; neither from Bhur and the other worlds, nor from the family of created beings, does he experience severance, or moisture, or barning 36 or dryness; nor is he captivated by sounds or other sensual impressions; nor do sounds and other impressions exist for

Laghimá.

† Prákámya.

<sup>1</sup> Nir-vána.

But hetter, for appultum read santyakiam? "Where the objects of the wishes are renounced."

I For vatra road tatra !

Sameticaks: a word not in the dictionary.

To as an impure imp of gold, when its impurities are purged away by fire, unites with another lump into one, and undergoes no difference; even so the ascetic, when his faults are burnt out by the fire of religious devotion, unites with Brahma. As fire when thrown into fire may attain sameness; and, bearing the same name and having the same substance may not be perceived by any distinction; even so the yogí, when his stains are burnt away, attains to union with supreme Brahma, and never acquires a separate existence, O king!

As water when thrown into water unites, so the yogi's soul attains to sameness in the Supreme Soul.

CANTO XLL

The Yogi's religious course.

Dattatraya expounds to Alarka how a yogs should live;—from whom he should gather his alms;—what his alms should be;—how he should be at after worshipping the five vital airs;—what his religious obligations are;—and how he attains to final emancipation from existence.

Alarka spoke.

Adorable Sir! I desire to hear thoroughly about a yogi's religious course, since the yogi while pursuing the way to Brahma does not sink into despondency.

Dattátreya spoke.

- Respect and disrespect, which two things cause men pleasure and disress, these are opposites and effect the yogi's final bliss. Respect and disrespect, these two things men indeed describe as poison and ambrosia; of them disrespect is ambrosia, but respect is a diffe poison.
- He should plant his foot after it is purified by his eye; he should drink water that has been purified through cloth; he

Mounted many uposeds, that is sparified with service and to maditate up what is purified by the intellection

The rogi should nowhere become a guest, nor wanted that or sacrifices, pilgrimages to the gods, or feeting nor visit the banker for the sake of any advantage. The should roam about for alms among what is flung away, what is smokeless, where the charcoal is extinguished, area all people who have caten, but not constantly among all three. The yogi should not move about occupied in religious meditation and spoiling the path of the good, so as that fell

8 should despise him or treat him with disrespect. He should seek his alms among house holders, and at the houses of vagrant mendicants: his livelihood is declared to be the base.

9 and first one. Also the ascetic should ever resort to modest faithful, tranquil and high-souled brahman householders who and non-outcasted men. The practice of seeking alms among men of no casto is the last livelihood he should wish for:

Alms consists of rice-grael, t or dilute batter-milk, milk or burley-grael, fruit, roots, or panie se d, grain, oil-cake, and 12 meal. And these are line articles of food, and cause a your to obtain felicity. A mani should employ them with faith and with the most perfect meditation.

13 Having first taken one sip of water, let him remain silent, with mind composed; and then is prescribed the first oblation to the vital air called Praga, I and the second should be to the 14 vital air Apána;** and the next to that called Sam-ána;**

* Yáyávara.

+ For yavajém, rnad yavágús? The dictionary gives this word as fem., and yavágám seems an impossible neater.

I Takram.

¶ Yávaka.

Priyanga, Panicum italicum, (Roxl. p. 101.)

Trans, this has its sent in the lungs, and expresses pre-eminently life; and vitality.

Aplea; the vital air that goes downwards, and out at the axus.

Bain ana; the vital air that circulates about the marel, and is essential to

Source to their galled Carding and the first to the balled water Having performed their oblations separately, while restraining his breath, he should at length eat according to his inclination. He should drink water once again, and after rissing out his mouth, he should touch his heart.

Honesty and sanctity, self-sacrifice, and uncovetousness, and harmlessness are the five principal religious obligations 17 of mendicants. Freedom from anger, reverence towards gurus, purity, abstemiousness in food, and constant study of the 18 Vedas-these are the five well-known observances. He should devote himself to essential knowledge, which can effect his objects; for the multiplicity of knowledge that exists here is 19 a hindrance to religious meditation. He who acts with the thirst, that he ought to know this and he ought to know that. may perhaps never gain that knowledge in thousands of ages. 20 Discarding associations, subduing anger, cating sparingly, and controlling his organs, he should regulate the gates of . his body by the intellect, and apply the understanding to profound contemplation. The yogi who is constantly occu-21 pied with religious meditation should always have due recourse to profound contemplation, in empty places and in 22 caves and in forests. Control over the speech, control over the actions, and control over the mind, are the three controls: he who invariably possesses these controls is a great 'three-28 control' ascetic. Who, O king, is agreeable, and who is disagreeable to him to whom all this universe, both real and

When he whose intellect is purified, to whom clods and gold are alike, and whose mind is thus composed towards all created things, comprehends the supreme eternal and immutable to be the supreme condition he ceases to be born 25 again. The Vedas and all sacrifices and ceremonies are very good; prayer is better than sacrifice; and the path of knowunreal, and composed of good qualities and bad qualities, is composed of the Supreme Soul?

24

Ud-ana; the vital air that rises up the throat and passes into the head. Ty bis, the vital air that pirculates or is diffused through the body.

design then prayer; and protoned soutemplation on associations and feelings is better than knowledge; with the statement of t

CANTO XLIL.

Exposition of the word "Om" with regard to the Law of Religious Previou.

Duttational expounds the composition, meaning and efficacy of the sacred word "Om".—It designates the Supreme Soul Brahma's and thorough comprehension of it and meditation on it bring final absorption into Brahma.

Dattátreya spoke.

- The yogi who lives thus, rightly busied in religious devotion, cannot be turned away even by hundreds of other lives.
  And when he has beheld the Supreme Soul, visible, existing in all forms, whose feet and head and neck the universe composes, the lord and creator of the universe, let him in order to attain thereto utter the one mighty and holy syllable.
  On! Let it be his study as he listens to its true form.
- A and U and M are its three letters; these are its three instants; they are characterized by goodness, passion and
- 5 ignorance. And another, a half instant,* which has its seat on the top of the syllable, is without quality and can be understood by yog's only. It is called goodbari, t as it is to
- 6 be attered in the gandhara note. Peing pronounced to Anasyara, into which the M may be converted?

* A moaning not in the dictionary.

<sup>1</sup> Ree note * page 130.

reaches the head, and it conveys she feeling of acts moving over the body.

As the syllable On being pronounced reaches the head, the yogi who is lost in meditation of On should become united with Brahma, the Supreme Soul. Life is his bow, the soul is his arrow, Brahma is the target sublime. It is to be pierced by the heedful man; he should be united with Brahma, as the arrow becomes embedded in the target.

The syllable Om, consisting of three and a half instants, should be known in its true sense as the three Vedas—the Ric', Sama and Yajus—the three worlds, the three fires, and the three deities Vishuu, Brahma and Siva. And the yogi, who is absorbed in religious meditation thereon, may obtain extinction therein.

Moreover the letter A is designated the bhur-loka, or terrestrial world; and the letter U the bhuvar-loka, or atmospheric world; and the letter M with its masal mark is decided to be the svar-loka, or celestial world. Now the first instant is called the discrete,* and the second the indiscrete, and the third instant is the intellectual faculty if the half instant is the highest abode.‡ In this very order must these stages of religious meditation be known. By uttering the word Om, everything both existent and non-existent may be grasped. Now the first instant is short, the second is long, and the third is prolated, and the half instant is not cognisant to speech.

Such is this word. Brahma is designated the Supreme 15 "Om." The man who truly understands it and further meditates on it, escaping the circle of mundame existence casts off the three-fold bonds, and gains sublime extinction in Brahma, the Supreme Soul. And he who is bound with the unconsumed results of his actions, after experiencing death through ill omens, and recollecting it at the time of his

Vyaktá.

+ C'ic'-c'hakti

I Final emancipation from existence.

drinbjeten.

means of imperfect religious devotion, or again by rereligious devotion, are always to be known the illustration that he does not rink into despondency at the time of departure.

CANTO XIIII.

An account of Ill Omens.

Dattatreya mentions the signs of approaching and impending death, which are partly natural phenomena and partly dreams—also the appropriate seasons for religious devotion—and by various similar and apphthegms indicates how final emansionation from contence is to be attained—Alarka thanks Dattifreya for all the instruction and, going to the king of Kail and Buldhu, relinquishes his kingdom in their jacour.

Dattátreya spoke.

- 1 "Listen Mahárajá; I will declare those ill omens to thee," by considering which the yegi knows his own death.
- 2 "The man who does not see the path of the gods," the polester, the planet Venus, the moon's shadow and the morning
- 3 star,† may not live more than a year. The man, who sees the sun's orb devoid of rays and fire encircled with rays, does.
- 4 not live more than eleven months. He, who in his dreams clearly perceives gold and silver in his vomit and in his urine
- 5 and faces, may live ten months. He who sees departed persons, Pis'ác'as and other demons and the cities of the Gandharvas and golden-coloured balls, lives mine months.
- 6 He who when stout becomes thin, and when thin becomes stout quite unaccountably, and loses his natural functions,
- 7 lives for eight months. He, whose foot becomes cracked at the heel or at the toe in dust and in mud, lives even months.

* Arundhati.

Pera-marga; said to mean the penis or anns.

a valeure, a pipeod, a raren, or a brow, or a havin, or that bird alights on one's head, that indicates a life of mix months. When a man is assailed by flocks of crows or a shower of dust, or when he sees his shadow unnatural, he 10 lives four or five months. When he sees lightning flashing in the south in a cloudless sky, or sees a rainbow at night, 11 his life will last two or three months. He who cannot see his own body in clarified butter, in oil, in a mirror, or in water, or who sees it head-less, does not live more than a month. 12 When the smell from a yogi's body resembles that of a goat or the smell from a corpse, know O king that his life will be 18 half a month. When one's breast and foot dry up immediately after he has bathed, and when water does not 14 quench his thirst as he drinks, he lives ten days. "When the wind as it strikes one cuts one's vitals, and when one feels no delight from the touch of drops of water, 15 his death has arrived. Whoever sits on a bear, a monkey or a carriage, and goes singing towards the south in his sleep, 16 for him death brooks no delay. He whom a woman clad in red or black reiment, and singing and laughing, carries off to 17: the south in his sleep, he will live no longer. He who sees a single powerful naked mendicant laughing and leaping in 18 his sleep may find death impending. The man, who sees himself sank to the crown of his head in a sea of mud in his 19 sleep, dies at once. And he, who sees charcoal amidst the hair of the head, or ashes or a waterless river issuing from a serpent, in his sleep, will after ten days die on the eleventh 20 day. He, who in his sleep s beaten with stones by formidable and hideous black men who raise their weapons aloft, 21 may die at once. He, in front of whom a she-jackel runs howling at sun-rise, whether meeting him or passing him, dies at once. He, whose heart is possessed with hunger immediately after he has eaten, and whose teeth chatter, has 23 without doubt reached the end of his life. He who does not perceive the smell of a lamp, and who is terrified in the day

For samiayam read samiayah?

abother's eyes, lives no longer. He who are seen to bow at midnight and all the planets in the day-the

as a sensible man deem his life consumed away. He was nose becomes crooked, and whose ears bond down or such a 26 and whose left eye waters, has lost his life. When his becomes reddish, or his tongue black, a wise man should

27 know that his death is impending. And one slionld that he, who in his sleep journeys to the south on a camel, at an ass, or a carriage, will die outright. He, who camel hear his own murmuring when he shuts his care, and who cannot see the light with his eyes, lives indeed no long.

9 He over whom a door is closed after he has fallen into a philand who cannot rise up from the hole, in his sleep, his life.

30 ends thereat. Sight Erected upwards and unsteady, and blood-shot and rolling around, and warmth in the mouth, and 31 dryness at the navel prognosticate a new body for men. He who in his sleep may enter the fire, and not come out therefrom, or if he similarly enters water, his life ends thereat.

The man who is attacked by evil spirits at night or by day; without doubt meets death at the end of the seventh night.

33 One should pronounce that death is impending over the man who sees his own clean white clothing red or black.

34 "A revolution in men's natural disposition and a reversal, in their nature proclaim always that Yama and Doath are at 35 hand; as when a man despises and raviles those very personse to whom he has always been well behaved, and whom he has considered most deserving of his reverence; when he does not worship the gods: when he abuses the aged, the garast and brahmans; and when he shows no kind treatment to his nother, father, or sons-in-law, or to yogis skilled in learning or to other high-souled men. But when the time arrives, wise ment must understand that.

"And yogis must always diligently understand at the class."

Mampratishtha; not in the dictionary.

proper san med ill omeda preduce shape reports the subjects.

On king. And the obvious very formidable serial of resasts therefrom must be considered; and having ascertained them.

The should fix that time in his mind, O king. And having ascertained that time accurately, the yogi should resort to a safe place and apply himself to religious devotion, so that that time may not be fruitless to him. And the yogi having beheld the ill omen and ahandoning the fear of death, and having regarded then its nature, as it has come after a long time, should apply himself to religious devotion as an adopt therein in just that part of the day, both in the fore43 noon, and in the after-noon and at mid-day on that day. Or where he has seen that ill omen during a part of the night, there he should engage in religious devotion until that 44 day arrives. Then abandoning all fear, and mastering that time self-controlled, he should stay in that habitation or 45° wherever he feels his soul firm, and engage in religious meditation on the Supreme Soul after overcoming the three qualities: and when his soul grows composed of the Supreme Soul, he should cease even from the use of his mind. Thereupon he attains to that sublime absorption into the Supreme Soul, which is beyond the senses, which transcends the intellect and which is unspeakable.

47 "All this I have declared to thee, Alarka, in its real meaning.

Hearken to me briefly how thou mayest attain to that Brahma.

"The moon-stone does not emit water, if untouched by the rays of the moon; that is a well known simile for a yogi.

49 That the sun-stone as long as it remains untouched by the rays of the sun does not emit fire, is also a simile for a yogí.

50 Ants, rats, ichnenmons, house-lizards, and sparrows inhabit a house like the owner of it, and when it is broken down they fill go elsewhere; but since they feel no such pain at the destruction of that house as the owner feels, O king; that simile points to the yogi's perfect bliss. An unt, though it is compos-of earth with the still minuter point of its mouth: that is a flowers and fruit, being destroyed by cattle, birds, many other creatures, they become perfected. When a you see tender horns of the young rurn deer, which look merely the forehead-mark, growing together with him, he may attain final beatitude. When a you takes a vessel-full of liquid from a mound on the earth, and when he sees the human body towering up high, what has he not learnt? When a yogi has truly understood the effort that a man makes, when all his wealth sufficient for his living has been dug up,

57 has attained success. That is one's house where one dwells, that is food on which one lives; and that is wealth which one prospers; that is happiness when one thinks 'what

58 self-interest have I in this matter.' Just as a man, although the is importanted by his organs, accomplishes his object by their means, so a yog may accomplish his highest aim by means of the intellect and other faculties of other persons."

Jada spoke.

59 Then king Alarka prostrated himself before Atri's son, and bowing courtcoasly and filled with intense joy, spoke thas

Alarka spoke.

60 "O joy! that this most sore dread, which has sprung from, my defeat by my foes, and which has rendered me auxious about my life, has been caused by the gods, O bráhmaa!

61 O joy, that the victorious attack from the immense hostin of the king of Kásí (routed by which I have come here) has 62 brought about for the this meeting with thee! O joy, that my army was weak! O' joy, that my dependants were slain.

63 O joy, that tay treasury became exhausted! O joy that I grew terrified to joy, that thy feet came to my recollection! O joy, that all thy words have found an abode in my 64 mind! O joy, that I have both gained knowledge from meeting with thee, Sir! O joy, that then hast also shows compassion to me, O bráhman!

"Although destitute a man attains success at the cuspic cious rise of the Soul, just as this calamity tends to my beneat."

The shift my meeting with thee. Sublin is my benefactor, said so also is Kati's lard, through both of whom I have come to thy presence, O noble lord of the yogis. Now I have had the stains of ignorance burnt out by the fire of thy favour. I will so strive that I may not become such a vessel of misery. I will quit my position as a householder, which is a forest of trees of pain, on receiving permission from thee, my high-souled instructer in wisdom."

Dattátreya spoko.

69

"Depart O king! fare thee well! As I have declared unto thee, so do thou practise, free from egotism. free from pride, in order to attain to final emancipation from existence."

Jada spoke.

70 Thus addressed he prostrated bimself before that Muni, and hastened to where the king of Kási and his elder brother 71 Subáhu were. Alarka hastening near smilingly addressed the king of Kási, that valiant hero, in the prosence of 72 Subáhu:—"O king of Kási, who desirest my kingdom enjoy than the mighty kingdom even as it pleases thee, or give it to Subáhu!"

The king of Kásí spoke.

"Why, O Alarka! hast thou relinquished the kingdom without a contest? This is not right for a kshatriya; and thou. Sir, knowest the law of the kshatriyas. When his counsellors are vanquished, a king should abandon the fear of death, and fix his arrow aiming at his enomy as his target.

75 Having conquered him, a king should certainly enjoy the choice delights of his desire, and should sacrifice with large sacrifices in order to gain final bliss."

Alarka spoke:

"Hven of this very nature was my mind before, O hero!
"I Now my object is changed, and do thon hear the cause. As this body is an aggregate formed of the elements, so is the heart of men, and so are all the qualities likewise even among that animals. Since this intellectual faculty is single indeed, and there is no other, how then does knowledge create the of transferal questy, of level to and I have gained knowledge from Dattitreya.

king. When one subdues all the senses, and abandous action, and fixes one's mind on Brahma, in 81 victory is the sublimest victory. And since there is nothing else to be accomplished in order to attain that final beautiful therefore restraining his senses he attains final beatitude; then am not thy foe; nor art thou my enemy; Subshu her is not my injurer. I have seen all this as my own soul; then another adversary, O king!"

83 Thus he addressed the king. Then uprose Suhahu delighted, ed, and saluting his brother with the word 'O joy!' upon thus to the king of Kasi.

CANTO XLIV.

Jada's exposition in his conversation with his father (concluded).

Subáhu enplains to the king of Kási that it was to reclaim his brother Alacha to a proper frame of mind, that he had induced the king to conquer Alarka—Subáhu expounds to the king the conditions of attaining final emancipation from acistenee, and both depart—Alarka resigns his kingdom to his son, and betaking himself to the forest attains final bliss.

Horn ends Jada's exposition to his father.

The Birds then conclude by saying that Juda and his futher attained final bliss.

Subáhu spoke.

I "In that I have resorted to thee for refuge, O tiger-king."
I have secured every object. I will depart. Rest thou happy 10

The king of Kási spoke.

"What object hast thou secured, Sir? And what aim hast thou attained? Declare that to me, O Sabahu, for I feel a keen curiosity. Thou didst stir me up, saying 'Course.

great the great kingdom, they belonged to my great greathather and is dominated by Alarka. Thereupon I stacked the kingdom of this thy younger brother, and brought this army for thee. Therefore enjoy it as befits thy race."*

Subáhu spoke.

. "O king of Kásí, hearken, why I made this endeavour, and stirred thee up. Sir, to an unwonted endeavour. This my brother, who understands truth is addicted to unrefined pleasures. My two elder brothers are wise and unbeguiled, because our mother dropped admonition into the ears of both of them and into mine, just as she dropped milk in their mouths and mine during our infancy, O king. Our mother taught those subjects, that men consider should be known, to both of them and to me, but not to him, Alarka, who wished to be illustrious, O king. As merchants, who are travelling for gain, feel a common grief, if one of them 10 perishes, so is it with us, O king. Since he, Alarka, has caught the infatuation of domestic life, and is perishing, O king; since he is related to this my body, and bears the idea 11 of a brother; hence I, concluding that he would obtain the perception of passionlessness through suffering, resorted to thee, 12 Sir, to carry out the undertaking. Therefore he has been brought through distress to passionlessness through instruction, O king; the work has been accomplished; mayest thou 13 fare well. I depart. 'Having dwelt in Madálasá's womb, and having drank of her breast, may he not follow the path that 14 is travelled by the sons of other women, O king!' So I deliberated and I did it all by resorting to thee; and it has been accomplished. I will again depart to seek final beatitude.

"I do not approve of those, O king! who neglect their own family, a kinsman, or a friend, when these are in difficulties; for, though possessed of organs, they are maimed indeed.

* For dhunkshvasva kulocitam read dhunkshra srakulocitam ? * For dhunkshvasva kulocitam read dhunkshra srakulocitam ?

member of his own family, or kinsman, they abouted righteousness, wealth, love and final emancipation and should not be denied them. Through association with O king, I have accomplished this great undertaking.

wayest thou fare! I will depart. Mayest thou participation knowledge, most noble king!"

The king of Kási spoke.

18 "Thou hast done a great benefit to good Alarka; how it is 19 thou dost not turn thy mind to benefit me? Since association of good men with good men yields frait and is not barrien, therefore I have attained the prosperity that is bound up with thy patronage."

Sabáhu spoke.

- 20 The four-feld aims of men are known as rightconsness, wealth, pleasure, and final emancipation from existence. There then hast rightconsness, wealth and pleasure, all of
- 21 them,- the last is wanting. I will succinctly expound it to thee; listen now with singleness of mind thereto; and have my heard and rightly deliborated strive after bliss, O king!
- Thou must have no dealings, O king, with the notion "Mine," nor the notion "I"; for when one considers rightly, righteome-ness has no correlation in the absence of righteomeness.
- 23 When thou hast thought in thy soul, 'I must comprehend of what I am'; when thou hast thought in after nights 'I must'
- 21 consider the external and the internal'; then must discora; him whose beginning, attributes and ending are imperceptible, who is changeless, devoid of intelligence, both perceptible and imperceptible; and thou shalt discern 'Who am I'?'
- 25 When this indeed is discorned thou hast discerned everything.

  To discern the soul in what is not soul, and one's own pro- perty in what is not one's own—this is folly. I as such have passed everywhere, O king, according to the intercourse of the world. I have declared all this that thou hast asked now I depart."
- 27. Having spoken thus to the king of Kasi, the wise Subth

Alarka, also, enthroned his eldest son as king, and abandoning every tie resorted to the forest, for his own perfection. After a long time becoming purged of the contrary qualities and free from all worldly possessions, he attained an unparalleled pitch of religious devotion and gained supreme and final bliss. Perceiving all this universe with its gods, demons and human beings perpetually bound and being bound in the meshes woven of the qualities; being drawn by the causes brought into existence by sons and other children, by nephews and other relations, and by one's own and other people's property, and so forth; oppressed with woe, wearing diverse appearances, wholly enclosed within the mud of ignorance. possessing no deliverer; and perceiving himself wholly passed beyond, the large-minded king sang this song -" Alas, woe is it that I occupied the kingdom formerly! So have I since learnt. There is no happiness superior to religious devotion."

Jada spoke.

Dear father, do thou practise this sublime religious devotion to attain final emancipation from existence; whereby thou shalt attain to that Supreme Soul, in reaching which thou shalt not grieve. Then I also will go. What need have I of sarrifices? what need of prayers? Action in one who has attained success works towards re-absorption into the Supreme Soul. Obtaining permission from thee, I also, free from the contrary qualities, free from worldly possessions, will so strive after final emancipation that I may attain to supreme bliss.

The birds spoke.

Having thus addressed his father, and having obtained permission from him, the wise Jada, abandoning all worldly possessions, departed, O brahman. His father also, who was most large-minded, in the course after becoming a vanaprastha entered on the fourth stage of life. There having met with his son, and having forsaken the bonds formed as and having acquired self-knowledge at the same time.

All this has been declared to thee, O brahman, which Sir, did ask of us—at full length and with truth. Relse dost thou desire to hear?

CANIO XLV.

The Birth of Beatima.

Jaconini thanks the Birds for all the information they have given him, and asks about creation, the world, marked See,— In reply they relate what Wirkandeyn had traight Kreushtaki cogniting all those matters, as follows.

Morkandey) extols this Purana as loving emanated from Brahmá and having been handed down by eminent yishis—Advantom is puid to Brahmá.

The identity of Pradhing and Prakrici is asserted Brahma close existed at first - From him emand. I Pradhiner, which is called the Imperceptible—Out of it is red Mohat (the intellectual principle)—And out of Mahat issued Ahankain (the principle of Individuality) with its three characters, the Ersteing, the Modifying, and the Buerging—The Evolving Ahankain errord, mad, touch, form, tasks and smell, and their corresponding elements, other, air, light, realer and earth—The Modifying Ahankara product the elecen human organis—
The characters of the elements are exported to Mahat and the other principles produced an egg, the composition of which is described—It was animated by Brahmit as the Soul, and it contained the universe, the gods, demans on I manking.

Jaimim spoke.

Yo have well related this to me, O noble brahmans, both activity and inactivity, the two-feld deeds enjoined by the

2 Veda. Ah, through your father's favour, ye have such knowledge as this, by which ye have overcome folly although

3) ye have descended to this animal state. Happy are ye the wise lord Markandeya made you known to me as the discipators of every doubt! For men who wander in this closely througed mundane existence there is available association with such as your honours; not for ascetics. If I after gaining association with you who have perspicacity in knowledge should not succeed in my object, then assuredly* there can be no success for me elsewhere. Both in activity and in inactivity, in knowledge and deed, no one else has, I think, a mind so unsullied as your honours have.

If then your mind, O noble brahmans, is favourable towards me, then deign to expound this completely; How did

If then your mind, O noble bráhmans, is favourable towards me, then deign to expound this completely; How did this universe, both moveable and immoveable, come into existence? And how will it fall into dissolution at the proper time, most excellent bráhmans? And how came the familiest that sprang from the gods, the rishis, the pitris, created things &c.? And how did the Manyantaras occur?

And what was the history of the families of old; and whatever creations and whatever dissolutions of the universe have oc-

coved; and how the ages have been divided; and what the duration of the Manyantaras has been; and how the earth remains stable; and what is the size of the world; and what are the occases, mountains and rivers and forests according to 13 their situation; what is the number of the worlds, the bhurloka, svar-loka &c., including the lower regions, and what is the course of the sun, moon, and other planets, of the stars and 14 heavenly bodies also. I wish to hear of all this which is 14 heavenly bodies also. I wish to hear of all this which is destined to subversion: and what will be the end when this universe is dissolved.

The Birds spoke.

Unparalleled is this loud of questions which thou hast for nyúnam roud nánam. Tor pamiéd roud remiá " ‡ Khûta-samplava.

paked, O brahmon: we will declare it to them?

is here, O Jaimini, as Markandeya exponiuded is formatically and wise Kraushtuki, a young brahman, who is 7 pleted his term of studentship. Kraushtuki asked the souled Markandova, whom the brahmans were waiting more

18 what you have asked, my lord, and we will tell thee what 19 the Muni. Bhrigu's son, told him with affection; listen, brahman, after having paid adoration to the Forefather Brahman, after having paid adoration to the Forefather Brahman, the lord of the universe, when presented over creation, who in the torte of Vishnu present over its uncertaintee, and who in the form of the tornibles. Sixa destroys it at the discription.

Mirkandeya spoke

- 2) Formedy as some as Brahma, whose origin is inserutable, earne into being, this Paring and the Vedas is ond* from his
- 21 months; and many paramershis composed the collections of the Parimas; and the Vedar were divided by them in a
- 12 thousand ways. Rightens up a red showledge, passionless, ness, and some against the four indeed were not perfected.
- 23 without instruction from how, the high could. His seven rai id-bornt pishi ctrat the Veda (from him, and his mind-horn)
- 21 ansuent anguis took the Pucina. C'yavana took it from Blajiga, and he declared it to the brahmans, and this purage
- 2) was repeated by the high-scaled rishis to Daksha, and then Daksha repeated it to me. I will now tell it to thee city de-
- 26 stroys strife and sin. Here all this from me with composure, illustrious Muni, as I forecetly heard it when Datasha related it.
- Having paid adoration to the origin of the limitarse, unborn, changeless, the asylum, the apholder of the moveship and immoveable universe, the someone object. Bealing, the
- 28 and immoveable universe, the supreme object. Brahma, the first male,—the cause which itself unbegettend work in pro-
  - * Anuviolherita, not in the dier. over-
  - † Mánaso
  - 2 Anougasys: not in the descriptivy is the framework of the world, the wise, I will duly tell of the multitude of created things, matchless, great, primeval, formed for special ends, various in shape, possessing characteristics, ascertainable by the five standards of measure, possessing the streams of life, governed by the soul, existent as if perpetual and temporary—listen thereto with sublime composure, illustrions Sir!

Pradhána is the cause, which is designated the Imperceptible, and which the great rishis call the subtle, permanent Prakriti, 33 composed of good and evil. Brahmá at first existed certain, imperishable, undecaying, immeasurable, self-dependent, destitute of odour, form, and taste, devoid of sound and touch, without beginning or end, the origin of the universe, unchanged* by the power of the three qualities, not modern,† 35 unknowable. Subsequent to the dissolution, all this universe was pervaded by him completely.

Then from him, in whom the three qualities existed in equipoise, and in whom the Soul; became prevalent, O Muni; 36 and next from the coming into existence of the qualities which were being created, at the time of creation the first principle Pradhána came into existence. It enveloped Mahate; as the seed is enveloped by its rind, even so Mahat was enveloped by the Imperceptible. It is three-fold, that characterized by goodness, that by passion, and that by ignorance. Then from it was evolved Ahankára, which is three-fold, the Modifying, the Energizing, and the Evolving†† which is characterized by darkness. And it was enveloped by Mahat, just as Mahat was by the Imperceptible.

 Now the Evolving Ahankara, modifying itself, created the b subtle element; of sounds next. From the subtle element

* For -prabhacapyayam rend -prabhacanyayam?

† A-samprata. ‡ Kshetra-jus.

§ The great Intellectual principle. || The principle of Individuality. |

▼ Valkarika. | Taljaea. | †† Bbútádi. | Tan-mátra.

K. Por Jabilan tanmátrakém rond sabila-tanmátrakem?

THE PROCESS OF CHARTES SERVED

- of sound come the Kthor, which has the property of
- now other is the sound-element, and the evolving the sound of the soun
- born next without doubt, the mighty Air is born, its at 42 perty of tench is well known. And the air, medifying itself.
- 42 perty of touch is well known. And the air, modifying itself created the subtle element of form; Light was produced from
- 43 the air; it is said to have the property of form; the air which is the element of touch enveloped the element of form. And light, medifying itself created the soldle element of taxte.
- 44 therefrom indeed water also was produced; it has the property of faste; now the element of form enveloped the water
- 45 which is the element of taste. And the water, modifying itself, evaled the soldhe element of smell; therefrom Solid?
- 46 Mattert is produced, small is well known to be its property; Now in each element residus it, pendiar subtle element; there by its possession of that sultto element is a well-established fact. And hence there elements are uniform, innumech as no
- 47 difference on be predicated. They are all neither calm, nor terrible, nor cease. This is the creation of the elements and the subtle elements from Alankára when it is characterized by duckness.
- 48 From Ahankan in its Mortelying character, which is distinguished by goodness and possesses goodness in excess, the modificatory creation began at once.
- 49 The five organs of the intelled $\xi_4$ and the five organs of action, men call there the energetic 4 organs; they are the fan
- 50 Vaikárika deities. The modf, is the eleventh organ among them. Such are the Vaikárika derties known to be. The
- 51 car, the skin, the pair of eyes, the tongue, and fitthly the nose; men say** these are the organic connected with the inject tellect for the purpose of perceiving sound and the other impressions. The pair of feet the arms the organ of general tion, the pair of hands, and the voice may rank as fifth with:

• For dpo read apo; for the water was enveloped by the light which proceded it; but the change spells the metre.

† Bapghéte.

<sup>1</sup> Madha.

§ Buddki

Taijanu.

S Manas.

<sup>4*</sup> For wakshyate rand gakingter

must in the work for each of these organs respectively.

the has the element of sound only. When the element of touch accrued, Air comes into existence with two properwest; touch is known to be its peculiar property. Moreover, when to form accrued both the properties, sound and touch, then Fire also came into existence with its threet properties; it has sound and touch and form. Sound, and touch and form,-when the element of taste accrued to them, then Water with its four properties came into existence: it is to be known as being characterized by tasto. Sound and touch and form and taste, when smell account, they consolidated with the olement of smell enclosed this Earth; heree earth has five properties; it is seen to be the gross one among created things

Calm and torrible and cross are their distinguishing marks; thereby they are known; they contain one another through their mutual interpenetration. Within the earth is contained all this visible and necessible world family en-And those distinguishing marks are perceptible by the organs of sense, and are recollected by reason of their normanency. They take each successive one the property of its precedure one. These seven principles when un-combin-60, ed are distinct and have various energies: they could not have created mankind, unless they had united. And meeting in ~61 mutual combination, they become mutually dependent; and when they all unite into one, they have the marks of a single complex body.

By reason of their being governed by the Soul and also through the favour of the Imperceptible, Mahat and the other principles, which have different limits, cause an egg to come into existence. There like a bubble on water, the egg gradually increased by means of the things that existed. O Sage most intelligent! In its enlarged state it lay on the water.

* Mátra.

f Gana.

Max delipythe read tristitus

<sup>6</sup> Múdha.

For imam read at my?

Terusha.

THE THE SECTION OF THE RE

The Soul, having increased pants the ere spring

64; kriti, took the name Brahma; it indeed was the porcal being, it indeed is called Purushe. And

65 existed first, the original maker of created beings. - The enclosed all these three worlds with all that they con moveable and immoveable. Meen was been from it with 66 the after-birt's gere born the rountains; the oceans were the fluid contained within that egg which held the great Soul Within that egg was all this world, with the gods and do-more and mankind, and the continents and other lands, the no, atains and oceans, and the throng of luminous worlds.

Then the egg was enveloped by water, air, fire and either and by the evolving Ahankara externally, ten times over by each of then. It was then surrounded; by Mahat which La 69 have mentioned, which had the same magnitude, Mahat together with them all was enveloped by the Innercontible, With the exceedings formed from Prakrity was the?

70 eng enveloped. Unveloping on another the eight Prakritise. evilted. This very Prakeri's parmoret; and that Purusha? is bmited by 0

71 Har thou, a errover, briefly of him who is spoken of he the name Brainer. Just record onck in water, on congruing from it, seems to be born from water, and flings the water ;

away, so Brahasa is both Probrits and the Soul & The Imperceptible is destared to be his sphere of retional hance.

73 Brahmá is cannel Kehet, ipa, the Soul. A man should know all these characteristics of the Soul and its aphere of action.

Such was the creation from Prakrets and it is governed by the Soul the first stugged creation was preceded by non-intelligence, it become normfest like the lightning

Kabutra-ina. I Far to dit the real restition ?

# For fala could never sout sala so I wal-

The computation of Brahma's life.

Markandeya moralizes on Brahmá and Prakriti—and describes Vishou and S'iva as special forms of Brahmá—He explains how human and divine years are reckoned, the duration of the four ages, the Krita, the Treta, the Dvápara and the Kali, und of a Mancantara, and the length of Brahma's day and life.

Kraushtuki spoke.

Adorable Sir! thou hast related to me correctly the genesis of the egg, and thou hast told me of the birth of the mighty Soul Brahmá within the egg of Bruhmá. I wish to hear this from thee, O scion of Bhrigu's race, when things are not created, and nothing exists, everything having been destroyed by Time at the end of the dissolution of the Universe.

Márkandeya spoke.

When all this universe becomes dissolved in Nature,* this dissolution is designated 'natural' to by the wise. When the Imperceptible subsists within itself, and when all modification is suspended, Nature and the Soult subsist with sameness of character. Then both darkness and goodness subsist in equipoise, neither being in excess or in deficiency, and permeated by each other. Just as oil exists in sesamum seeds, or as given in milk, so passion also exists permeant within darkness and goodness.

The day of the Supreme Lord lasts from the birth of Brahma, as long as the two half paras which compose his life, and his night during the dissolution is of the same duration. Now at the dawn of day he awakes, he who is Prakriti. † Prákrita. † Purusha. § Pareia. § The tettracems incorrect; a better reading obtained from a MS. belong. § 6 Saba Magaidra Chandra Basu of Calcutta is utpatter for utpatter, and the reading obtained. See yerse 42.

The same Mile reads to samale samaye instead of tal same samyams; place of all things, whose tool transcess one side works in an inferior way.

The Supremis God, quickly enters into Nature and athe lord of the universe, and agitates them with his

10 supernatural power. Just as love, or a breeze of entering into young women tends to produce agitation does he, who is the embodiment of supernatural power

When Pradhana is agitated, the god Brahma is born and contained within the cavity of the egg, as I have alim

12 told thee. At first he is the agitator; as the hashand Nature, he is the thing to be agitated; and he exists

13 contraction and expansion even in the state of Pradham. is born, though he is the hirth-place of the universe; though devoid of qualities, he possesses the quality of passion; who he assumes the character of Brahma, he engages in creation's

14 In the character of Brahms he ereates mankind; then possessing an excess of goodness, he becomes Vishon said:

protects them righteously; then, with darkness prependents; ting in him, he as Radra dissolves the whole universe with its three worlds, and sleeps. He possesses the three qualities.

16 and yet he is destitute of qualities. Just as he is at first the pervading Soul, then the preserver, and lastly the destroyer, so he takes appellations which designate him as Brahmi,

17 Vishon or Siva. As Brahma he creates the world; and an Rudra he destroys them; and as Vishpo he holds a neutral position. These are the three conditions of the Self-existents

Passion and Brahma; darkness and Rudra; goodness and Vishau the lord of the world: these indeed are the three deities; these indeed are the three qualities. These verify are mutually paired, and are mutually dependant: they are not separated for a moment; they do not formake one another.

· Thus Brahms, the four-faced god of gods, is autorize the universe: assuming the quality of passion, he engages it desamon.

(from 14), one who cuts to pieces, one who destroys.

(trees W) he better; one who brings on the desciat

The earth, yes been in the beginning. One summer is in the full length of life for him, the high souled account to the true Brahmya computation. Hear from me how it reckoned.

A kashtha is said to be composed of fifteen winks of the hyelids; and thirty kashthas make a kala; and thirty such kalas make a muhurta. A day and night among men contain, it has been settled, thirty muhurtas; and with thirty days are reckoned the two lunar fortnights and the month; of six months consists the sun's half-yearly course; the two half-yearly courses on the south and north of the squator compose the year. Such a year is a day and night of the gods; the day thereof is the sun's northern half-yearly course.

Now of twelve thousand divine years consist the four ages named the Krita, the Treta, &c. Hear from me how they are divided.

27. Now the Krita age is said to have contained four thousand years; its commencing twilight was four hundred years, and the closing twilight was of the same duration. The Treta age was three thousand divine years; and three hundred years was its commencing twilight, which was indeed of that duration, and its closing twilight was of the same duration.

The Dvápara age was two thousand years; and its commencing twilight is declared to have been two hundred years, and the closing twilight was two hundred years. The Kali age is a thousand divine years, O brahman; two hundreds of years are called its commencing and closing twilights.

This period of twelve thousand divine years is called a yuga; it has been laid down by the poets; a thousand times this period are called one of Brahma's days.

In one of Brahma's days, O brahman, there may be fourtion Manus. They live according to their portions; that thousand is divided among them. The gods, the seven

That one sigine year = 260 haman years, relation and pass to deschaping sink say by corendy one repetitions of the four ages, with a fraction cost, constitute a manyanters; hear from me its company human years. Thirty full crores reckoned duly, O had and sixty-seven lakks more by reckoning, and twenty wands—this is the period of seconty-one times the four without the excess fraction; this is called a manyands

37. Hear it from me in divine years; eight hundred thousands of years by divine reckening. and fifty-two thousands of years more in addition. A day of Brahms is declared to this period multiplied fourteen times. At its termination

the dissolution is declared by the wise to be the necessary perishable and pass to dissolution; and the Mahar loss to stands, yet the dwellers therein by reason of the heat of the Janu-loka. And Brahmá steeps indeed during the night in the three worlds which have been dissolved into one occur.

41 That night is of exactly the same duration. At its terminals

This line as it stands in the text scenes incorrect. The four ages conlain 12,000 divine years or 4,320,000 human years, and 71 times this period contain 8,52,000 divine years, or 203,720,000 human years. This latter period agrees with the communities in verse 36 (vs., 30,67,30,000 years), toginstead of the former the text gives 8,000 + 52,000, i. e., 60,000 divine years, unless we read fata-sahasria; for varsha-sahasrdai. Futam, however, seems.
wrong as regards both grammur and meaning.

da dydti read dydati ?

The like earth, was born in the beginning. One hundred years is the full length of life for him, the high-souled, according to the true Brahmya computation. Hear from me how it is reckoned.

A kashtha is said to be composed of fifteen winks of the syelids; and thirty kashthas make a kala; and thirty such kalas make a muliurta. A day and night among men contain, it has been settled, thirty muhurtas; and with thirty days are reckoned the two lunar fortnights and the month; of six months consists the sun's half-yearly course; the two half-yearly courses on the south and north of the equator compose the year. Such a year is a day and night of the gods;* the day thereof is the sun's northern helf-yearly course.

Now of twelve thousand divine years consist the four ages named the Krita, the Tretá, &c. Hear trom me how they are divided.

Now the Krita age is said to have contained four thousand years; its commencing twilight was four hundred years, and the closing twilight was of the same duration. The Treta age was three thousand divine years; and three hundred years was its commencing twilight, which was indeed of that duration, and its closing twilight was of the same duration.

29 The Dvápara age was two thousand years; and its commencing twilight is declared to have been two hundred years, and its closing twilight was two hundred years. The Kalı age is a thousand divine years, O brahman; two hundreds of years are called its commencing and closing twilights.

This period of twelve thousand divine years is called a yugu; it has been laid down by the poets; a thousand times this period are called one of Brahma's days.

In one of Brahma's days, O brahman, there may be fourtien Manus. They live according to their portions; that thousand is divided among them. The gods, the seven

* Thus one divine year = 360 human warm

shie, and ladro, blane, and the kings his special with Mann and pass to dissolution with him in regular.

Seventy-one repetitions of the four ages, with a fraction in cesa, constitute a manyantera; hear from me the computation

35 human years. Thirty full crores reckoned duly, O brahmile and sixty-seven lakes more by reckoning, and twenty the sands-this is the period of secondy-one times the four age without the excess fraction; this is called a manyantare

37 Hear it from me in divine years; eight hundred thousands of years by divine reckening." and fifty-two thousands of 38 years more in addition.' A day of Brahms is declared to be this period multiplied fourteen times.† At its formination the dissolution is declared by the wise to be the necessary result. O landman.

39 The Bhar-loka, the Bhuvar-loka and the Svar-loka are perishable and pass; to dissolution; and the Mahar-loka.

40 stands, yet the dwelters therein by reason of the heat go to the Janu-loka. And Brahmá steeps indeed during the night in the three worlds which have been dissolved into one ocean.

4) That night is of exactly the same duration. At its termina-

* This line as it strads in the text reems incorrect. The four ages constain 12,000 divine years or 4,320,00) human years, and 71 times this period contain 8,52,000 divine years, or 205,721,000 human years. This latter period agrees with the enumeration in verse 30 (see, 30,67,20,000 years), but instead of the former the term gives 8,000 + 52,300, s. e., 60,000 divine years, unless we read inta-saharain for purcha saharain. Future, however, seems wrong as regards both granamar and meaning

† This does not agree with verse 31, if we take the words "this period" to refer to verses 35, 36 and 37. In verse 31 one of Brahms's days is said to be 12,000,000 divine years or 4,320,000,000 denan years, but 14 times the period mentioned in the latter verses contain 11,924,000 divine years, or 4,324,080,000 human years. We must bring in here the excess fraction referred to in verse 34, which by calculation is found to be $\frac{1}{2}$; thus 71$ times here years of 12,000 divine years = 857,142? divine years of the many affects.

**Aid 14 times this last period exactly = 12,000,000 divine years of Brahms's day. Similarly with regard to human years.

1: For dydli read dydnti?

The second Parardha which is now passing. O brahman, the first kalpa (or cycle) ordained is this one called the Varaba.

CANTO XLVII.

The Creation from Frakriti and the Vikáras.*

Markandeya continues—After the Padmu Mahe-kalpa Brahmatawoke, and as Narayana raised the earth out of the sea of dissolution and fashioned it in its present shape—Then he created, first, the regetable world—secondly, the animal world—thirdly, the gods—fourthly, mankind—fifthly, Anugruha—and sixthly, the bhilas—Markandeya summaries the nine creations, vis., these six, and the three described in Canto XLV.

Kraushtuki spoke.

Tell me fally how Brahmá, the adorable, the creator, the lord of all creatures, the master, the divine, created all creatures.

Márkaudeya spoke.

- Here I tell thee, O brahman, how the adorable eternal framer of the worlds created all the universe moveable and immoveable.
- At the dissolution which followed the Padmat Maha-kalpa, the lord Brahma awoke after having slept through the night.
  - * The products evolved from Prakriti.
  - † For padminasine read pidmirasine?

The with goodness prodonthating in this in passion by world. And here men utter this were to be who has Brahmá's own form, god of the universe, in might. "Nara means water and hodies"—we have heard it is a name for water; and in it he lies, heach he heard it is a name for water; and in it he lies, hence he called Náráyana.

6 On awaking he knew that the earth had disappeared with in that water, and then become desirons through reflection to delivery the earth therefrom. He assumed as of old in the kalpus and other times, other bodies such as those of a fish, torroise and other animals, and likewise he took the body of a love. The lovel what a compared of the Value and married a boar. The lord who is composed of the Vedas and medifices assumed a beaventy form composed of the Vedas and sacrifices, and entered the water; he reached averywhere and 9 existed everywhere. And the lord of the world raised the carth out of the lower regions, and set if free in the water, while the Soldhas who abode in Janu-loka bent their thought.

on him. The earth floated like as moreone boot on that occan, but does not sink by conson of the amplitude of its size?
 Then he made the earth level and evented the monatains on.

the earth. Cornerly when creation was burnt up by the 12 then world-destroying fire, those mountains on the earth were totally consumed by that fire. The rocks were engulphed in that one ocean, and the water was driven together by the wind; wherever they adhered and remained, there the mount, thins grow into being. Then he divided the earth, adorned

14 with seven defects; and he facknowed the four worlds, the Bhursloka and the others, as before

While he pendered on greative, as of old in the kalpus and other times, he next became manifested as devoid of intelligence, as enveloped in darkness. Darkness, folly, infatuation, 16 gloominess, and blind consciousness—ignorance, composed of these five, became manifested out of the Supreme Soul.

Creation irrational became established in five ways while he was meditating. Externally and internally it was destitute of Tanavah. 4 Sam-ud-dhara; not in the dictionary . 1 &4

Tight is well was concented, it consisted of vegetation; the since vegetation is declared to be "primary," hence this is indeed the Mukhya creation.

thought of creating another yet. While he was meditating on its creation, the animal world, in which the stream of life on its creation, the animal world, in which the stream of life on its creation, the animal world, in which the stream of life on its horizontal, came next into existence. Since its activities are displayed horizontally, hence it* is known as the "tiryaksrotas." Cattle and other quadrupeds are well-known as being of that kind; they are indeed characterized chiefly by ignorance and are unintelligent; and they stray in wrong courses, and in their ignorance are subservient to knowledge; they are self-swayed, and devoted to self; they comprise twentyeight classes. They all possess light* internally, but they are mutually circumscribed.††

Ho thought even that creation was incapable of causation, and while he meditated, another came into existence; now this, the third, was the group of beings in which the stream of life passed upwards; ;; it was characterized chiefly by goodness. Those beings abound in pleasure and affection; they are uncircumscribed outwardly and inwardly; and possess light* externally and internally; they originated from an up-

Being who was satisfied in soul thereat is known as the crea-24 tion of the gods. When that creation come into being, Brahmá was pleased.

ward stream of life. Now that third creation of the Supreme * Prakáša. This is defined by S'ri-dbara Svámí to mean "clear knowledge" (prakrishtam juánam). It had no clear external perception of sound &c., or clear internal feeling of happiness, &c.

† Naga. 1 Mukhya.

For drishtrá sádhakam roud drishtrásádhakam; see the second line of

For se Youd san ?

A-vrita. S'ri-dhara explains this as, "mutually ignorant of their birth, Urdhva-erotes.

Then he meditated further on another creation a 25 be capable of causation and be the highest. While in the ted so, and meditated on truth, the group of beings in the the stream of life passes downwards, and which is small of causation, next became manifest out of the Impersor

26 ble. Since the strates of life in them moved downwards heave they; are "arvák-srotas;" and they possess light copiously; they are characterized chiefly by ignorance and passes. Hence they have abundance of suffering, and are considered.

tinuously engaged in action, and they possess light externally and internally. They are markind and we capable of causation and are capable of causation are Amgrahad was the fifth creation; it is disposed in four ways, by contrariety, and by perfection, by bytranquillity, $\psi^2$ 29 and by satisfaction; blackise. The objects of this creation is necessary this electron to be presented as the present.

The erection of the convinced the gross elements and the gross elements is saided the sixtic they all possess configurations of an array propose amount division; *** and the original of the gress elements are to be known as both impulsive and devoid of propersion.

31 Now the evaluate C 'mater's is to be known as the first by Brahmi's and the vector's of the stransmitters? is called

32 the creation of the whiteless, and the third creation is that of the will area, 'the end if wherepublic by the cones, So was produced the creation from Prekritt wherein Intelligence pre-* Arrák-grotus.

30

† Par sáith d'ah reisd sádhakim 🖡 § Prikán, seo nota * p. 200.

2 Fortanal le

This is the Pratycyc care or one's steaders tion of the Sinkhya philosophy. But Stiddene ever one as an arresting electron of gods (deva enga), who are characterized by her product and agreement. It is hereaforised by ignorance because it is nonised to the isocrame among homovable objects and the noised creation; is is becauterized by goodness, because it harmonizes with and thereo upon the perfection and satisfactor among mankind and the gods, and it is orded Acceptable because it favours (antigrahaka) the several natura dispositions of the send pure.

Viparyaya, ** S.Hibi. †* Scoti 21 Tuchti.

$6 Bhatsdike. In Bhite. C. Pariograms. 37 Samerichham.

111 The products evolves from Prakriti coied. The makhya" resistion was the fourth, the mukhya thisgs to known as immoveable. The fifth was that called "tiryak-srotas" and "tairyag-yonya." Next was the sixth creation, that of the "urdhva-srotas";† it is known as the creation of the gods. Then the creation of the "arvák-srotas" is the seventh; it is that of mankind. The eighth creation is "anugraha"; it is characterized by goodness and ignorance. These last tive creations are known as those which were evolved from the Vikáras,‡ and the first three as those evolved from Prakriti.§ The ninth creation was Prákrita and also Vaikrita; it is known as "Kaumara." Thus these nine creations of the Prajá-pati have been declared.

CANTO XLVIII.

The Course of Creation.

Markandeya relates how Brahma treated the Astras, the gods, the pitris and markind, and the night and day and the two twilights—He mentions the times when those beings are powerful—He relates the occution of the Rakshasas, Yakshas. Serpents, Piśac'as, and Gandhaccas—Next of all beasts, hirds and other animals—Then of carious sarred hymas and metres—Thou of the hightwing, thunder, and other phenomena—And lostly Brahma assigned all things their shapes, pursuits and names.

Kranshtuki spoke.

- O adorable Sir, right well hast thou related the creation briefly to me; tell me, O brahman, fully of the origin of the gods.
  - * For tiryak-srotus vead tiryak-srotus?
  - † For fato 'rddha-srotasán read tathorddhva-srotasán?
- Vaikrita. § Prákrita.

Il This is the creation of Nila-lobita Rudra (see Canto LII) and of Sanat-kumara and the other mind-horn sons of Brahma, the Kumaras. This creation is called prakrita because Rudra sprang into existence by himself, as mentioned in that canto, verse 8. It is also called vaikrita, because the Kumaras were created by Brahma in the form he assumed of a vikara (vikriti-bhata).

Markandeya apoka

Greenies is impregnated with the good and cade previous existence, O brahman; and because of this known lawt, created beings, though they are destroyed in dissolution, are not delivered, from the comequences of actions.

The gods and other divine beings, and stationary things, and 3 the four classes of mankind, O brahman, were produced in his mind when Brahma was ongaged in creation.

Then being desirous of creating the four classes of being in 4 namely, the gods, the Asuras and the patris, and mankind, he infused! himself in the waters. The particle of darkness 5 grew up in excess as the Proja-pati was rapt in meditation. First then out of his buttocks, as he was desirous?

of creating, were produced the Asuras. And then be can 6 aside that body which was composed of the particle of darks ness; that Lody cast aside by him forthwith became Night."

Being desirous of creating, he assumed another body and experienced delight, then were produced from is mouth that mighty lord 8

Gods in whom goodness predominates. And of created beings abundoned that body also when cast aside it became Day wherein goodness predom

Then he took another body which was indeen actorised by the particle of goodness, the Pitris were preduced from: him while he deemed himself to be a pitri. The lord, after a creating the pitris, abandoned that body also, and when abandoned it became the Twilight that intervenes between 11 day and night. Next the lord assumed another body characters. terized by the particle of passion, and then were produced 12 Mankind who spring from the particle of passion. After creating mankind, the lord abandoned that body, and it became the Twilight that ends the night and begins the day.

13 . Thus these bodies of the wise God of gods have become famed as the night and day, and the evening twilight and

7

9

Bar kulala kulalair rond kulaldkulalair.

<sup>1 ()</sup>r, united bimself will. Tor harded read khydiya!

greates, same, the manner tringst the characterised by the parties of darkness, hence it is called Tri-yamika. Hence the gods are powerful by day, but the Asuras by night, and mankind at the coming of the morning twilight, and the pitris at the evening twilight. At these times these classes of beings are undoubtedly powerful and unassailable by their foes; and when they light upon the adverse times they lose their power. The morning twilight, the night, the day, and the evening twilight, these four are indeed the bodies of the lord Brahmá, and they are invested with the three qualities.

Now after creating these four, the Prajá-pati, feeling hunger and thirst, took another body composed of passion and darkness during the night; during its darkness the adorable naborn god created bearded monsters wasted with hunger; and they endeavoured to cut up that body. Some of those monsters, who said "let us preservet it from them," were called Rákshasas in consequence; and those who said "let us devour!" were called Yakshas, from yakshana, 'cating.'§ O brát.

e creator Brahmá saw them, the hair of his head thror is displeasure grow withered and lost its crectibility. 'hrough its downward gliding** it became the Serpents, and from its loss; of crectibility they are known as the Ahis or Snakes. Thereupon in anger at having seen the Serpents, he fashioned beings possessed with anger; §§ they were born as the ficsh-eating demons, tawny-hued and fierce.

That is, "having its course with the three others," from tri and yours [Thom root yd); or, "keeping the three others in check," from tri and yours [from root yam]. The meaning "having three watches" from tri and yours [from root yd] is discarded here.

Hakshama. 1 Khadama.

Yakahana seems a mistake for jakahana

For Neyanta road Heriadu ?

Hemirohanahila. ** Sarpana.

Next while he meditated on the 24 were bern as his offspring. They were form to drank speech in t hence they are known as the

When these eight classes of divine beings were at 25 lord next created other things, birds and cattle. I goats from his mouth; and he created sheep from 26 breast; and Brahma fashioned kine from his belly and & his loins; and from his feet swift horses and asses, and have

27 and deer, camels and mules and other animals of various kinds; plants and fruit-trees were produced from the hair of 28 his body. When he had thus created the cattle and planting the lord performed a sacrifice

From him at the beginning of the kalpa, at the commencement of the Treta Age issued the cow, the goat, mankind, the sheep, the horse, the mule, and the ass (these animals men call domestic cattle), and others (which they call wild animals, 30 hearken to me), namely the beast of prey, the cloves-hoofed beast, the elephant, nonkeys, lifthly birds, sixthly squalid beasts, and seventhly creeping unimals.

front mouth And for the sacrifices he feshioned from hi 31 n of praise. ** the gayatri, and the tric's strophe, the tri-vru h And he the rathantara samans, and the agni-shtoma RES. 32

he tri-shtubb created from his eight mouth the yajur hymns, metre, sacred hymnatt and the lifteen hymna of praise, Land:

his hindmost mouth the saman beam the mechioned from 33 the bribat-saman and the uktha verses. §§ He fa . jayati, and

Tatoh made'l andato 'nyani vayimes mayano 'erejet,

† Pivato vac'am; the de ivation is not apparent. Dhyáyato gám.

I Palavo; hy ancient use for pain.

§ Ajáh for aján, by ancient use; so also arnyo for arin 'shuep.'

A Gdeas for gile, by ancient use. But the Mh. in the Sauskrit College. Library, Calcutta, roads instead-

&quot;Then he created other winged animals from his hodily energy according to his wish."

- T Samatanga; not in the dictionary : from the root samed-long?

The eleventh bymn of the minth Mangina of the Big-Yells snng in II Stoma. tt C'handsa. special way.

For niday read ultham.

The create the second from his left mouth the twentylist Ather's hymn, and the aptor-yemsu secrificial verse, the spurshtubh metre and the viráj metre.

The mighty adorable god created at the beginning of the large the lightning, the thunderbolts and the clouds, and the ruddy rainbows, and the periods of life. And created things great and small were produced from his limbs.

Having created the first four classes of heings, the gods, the Assras, the pitris and mankind, he next created the things that exist both immoveable and moveable, the Yakshas, the Pisac'as, the Gandhavas and the hevies of Apsarases, men and Kinnaras and Rákshasas, birds, cattle, wild animals and snakes, and whatever is changeless and changeful, stationary and moveable.

39. " Whatever actions they were severally endowed with ori-. ginally at their creation, those very actions they are endowed 40 with when they are created again and again Noxionsness and harmlessness," gentleness and cruelty, rightconsness and unrighter usness, truth and falsehood,-animated thereby they have the being; therefore they severally take delight in cteristics. The lord, the creator, himself ordained Al those ch diversity and specializations among created things in the angane and pursuits and hodies. And he assigned the names res of created things, and propounded the duties of and sh and a haiyes, even by the words of the Veda at the 3 he ming. He gives names to the Kishis, and to the several created classes | among the gods, and to the other things that were brought forth at the close of the night. As the signs the seasons appear at their appropriate season, ** and various forms appear amid alteration, so those very signs and forms appear as actual facts++ in the ages and other periods.

Home ; but another reading is seventeen.

A part of the seven some-sametha sacrifices.

Tayanai or, birds. 9 Viniyoga.

Tor servarygante road s'arvary ante f

Back then were the creations of Health is undiscernible; they occur from kalps to kalps at the close of his night.

CANTO XLIX.

The Course of Creation.

Mirkandeya describes the creation of the primeval human range and their simple condition and happy life—When they ultimately died out, modern men fell from the sky, and lived in kalpu transport the second of the condition sprang up among them—and covoloumers range which destroyed the trees, and drove them to form communities—There are assures of length are explained—and fortrosses, towns, villages and houses described—The Treta Age began—with the existing rivers and regetation—and the people lived on the regetation—They then took private passession of property according to might, and the vegetation perished—Then they supplicated Brahma, and he created all existing coreals and plants—The seventeen creats and the fourteen sacrificial plants are specified—Brahma ordained their means of livelihood, schick could be grined only through labour, and their twen, custes, the The spheres assigned to axious classes after death are mentioned.

Kraushinki spoke.

Then hast told me, Sir, of the group of beings in which the stream of life; passe: downwells; tell me fully, O brahman, how Brahma created the whole created the classes of men, and how their qualities, O wise Sir; and tell me what business has been assigned to the brahman; and those other classes severally.

Márkandeya spoke.

While Brahma was first creating and was modifating on trath, he created a thousand pairs of human beings from his mouth, O Mani; when boro, they come into being characterized chiefly by goodness, and self-glorious. He weaker

For the read in?
Der, current of untriment.

:1

† For serveryyante read serveryon pairs from his thighs; they were known as characterized chiefly by passion and ignorance, and as enviously disposed.

And he created another thousand pairs from his feet; they were all characterized chiefly by ignorance, and were unfortunate and little of understanding.

Then those living beings, produced in pairs, were rejoicing together; urged by their mutual distress they hastened to sexual intercourse. Thenceforward pairing originated in this kalpa. Women did not have their courses month by month; hence they did not then bring forth offspring, although they engaged in sexual intercourse. They bring forth just pairs of children once at the close of life. Thenceforward pairing originated in this kalpa. By meditation and thought those human beings give birth to offspring once. Sound and the other objects of sense were pure severally in their five marks.

This was this creation of the human race which the Praja-12 pati formerly produced Spring of his lineage they worship-13. ped this world, and they pay homage to rivers, lakes, and seas and the mountains also. During that age those human beings lived indeed feeling little cold or heat. They received delight according to their natural dispositions from the objects of sense, O ... · uo opposition, nor cumity, nor envy 15 existed among them. They paid homage to the mountains and the seas; they lived wholly without habitations; their actions were answayed by love; their minds were always 16 joyful. Neither Piśac'as, nor Nágas, nor Rákshasas, nor envious men, nor cattle, nor birds, nor crocodiles, nor fish, nor orceping insects, nor egg-born animals hindered them, (for shose animals are the offsprings of iniquity,) nor roots, nor 18 fruits, nor flowers, nor the seasons, nor the years. Time was always happy; there was heither heat nor cold in excess; ast ine passed by, they attained wonderful perfection. Moreover they sujoyed whichooten in the fur and again satisfaction came without exertion to 20 wished for it, and exertion also sprang up in the those who wished for it. The water was exquisite.

For marulas road strates.

tion was merry with many a delight for them ; and 21 was produced that conferred every wish. And with the uncared for, those human beings had lasting youth. With 22 resolve they produce offspring in pairs; alike is their bird and form, and together also they die. Devoid of desire and hatred they lived to each other. All were equal in form length of life, without inferiority or superiority. They it their measure of life, four thousand human years; nor bere they misfortunes through affliction. Everywhere moreover 25 the earth was entirely blessed with good fortune.

As the people died in the course of time, so their prosperties 26 gradually perished everywhere; and when it had altogether perished, men fell down from the sky. Those kalps trees 27 were commonly produced which are called houses; and they brought forth every kind of onjoyment to those people. At the beginning of the Treta age the people got their subsistence from those trees. Atterwards in the course of time passionate affectiont sprung up suddenly among them. By reason of the occurrence of passionate affection mensionation occurred month by month, and conception frequently took place. 30 Then those trees were called houses; by them. But branches.

certainly full from other trees, O brahman; and they yield clothing and ornaments out of their fruits. In the separate 431 cavities of the same finit of those trees was produced very strong honey, which excelled in small, colour and taste, and 32 which no bee had made; on that they subsisted at the beginning of the Treta age.

Afterwards in course of time those people grew coverious besides; their minds being filled with selfishness they fenced

The text siddhir namnásayo na sú seems incorrect; instead of it, and the MS. reads siddhir nánárasollasá, which I have adopted.

<sup>2</sup> Does this mean the trees were called houses (grike) from the adisprise (gerika) begotten there?

control and most tree perished by reason of that many conduct on their part. Strife sprang up in consequence; their faces felt celd and heat and hunger. Then for the sake of combination and resistance they made towns at first; and they resort to fortresses in inaccessible deserts and wastes, in mountains and caves; also they industriously constructed with their own fingers an artificial fort on trees, on mountains and in water, and they first made measures intended for measurement.

A minute atom, a para súkshma, the mote in a sunbeam, the dust of the earth, and the point of a hair, and a young louse, and a louse, and the body of a barley-corn; near say each of those things is eight times the size of the preceding thing. Eight barley-corns equal an angula or finger-breadth; six finger-breadths are a pada, and twice that is known as a span; and two spans make a cubit measured with the fingers closed in at the root of the thumb; so for enbits make a bow, a pole, and equal two padikás; two thousand bows make a gavyúti; sad four times that are declared by the wise to be a yojana; this is the atmost measure for purposes of calculation.

Now of the four kinds of fortresses three occur naturally; the fourth kind of fortress is artificial. Now those men constructed it laboriously; ††† and they also constructed, O

For vrikshás read vrikshám? † For trasha-renur read trasa-renur.

† For mishkám read likshá. § For yúkám read yúká. || Yavoslara
† For ekádala-gunam teshám another MS. reads kramád ashla-gunányáhur, matiba is mach better.

For yave-medhyem enother MS. reads yaványashfau.

A stretch of pasture-ground. Taking the cubit at 16 inches, this longth mould in 10,000 feet, or about 14 mile.

Taking the cubit at 15 inches, the yojana equals 40,000 feet, or about

The tank test of being it setsess to appears corrupt. A better reading is likewise, and ship negarates and the threath

the ghoshas, I and the separate habitations therein built lofty ramparts surrounded on all sides with feees, made the pure, or town, extend for a quarter of a young every direction, and slope down to water on the cast; the made it auspicious and peopled it with colonies from made families.** And with a half of it they laid out the kines, and with a quarter of it the karvata;;; and then the infession portion which is made with the remaining quarter is called the drouf-mukha.§§ A town destitute of ramparts and feeses!

For dwijns read dwijn? The vocative seems preferable as Markan days is relating what happened in a previous age, and the work described would not fall to a brahman's duty. If dwijns he retained, the word surpsit mans is understood.

† This is explained in verse 44.

I Those two words are explained in verse 48.

5 For taden read tadead.

These two words are not in the dictionary; they are explained in various 45 and 46. For knowledge transfer and hervafaku-travim?

T Sanghosha is not in the dictionary. For grand-sunghasha-winydenn promas anghosha winydeam? (trama is explained in rorse 67, and ghosha in verse 50.

** S'nddba-vamia-vahirgamam.

of peasants and farmers; a small town, half a pura"; but here it apparently means a particular portion of the pura; does it mean the "inhabited ar residential area"?

If This word is said to mean" a village, market-town, the capital of district," but here it denotes a particular portion of the pure; does it mean the heafr or the "area occupied with the market and shope"?

18 This word said to mean "the capital of a district, the chief of 400 vallages," but home it evidently refers to the lowest part of the puez; does it mean the "area inhabited by the labouring population or the lowest clauses."

HE For preferen parishd-bleam read praising-parishd-bleam of Or, is the labouring produced with a campare but without a common of the pueze inhanded to say that a town surrounded with a campare but without a common of the pueze inhanded to say that a town surrounded with a campare but with the meaning of the pueze.

the in a occusion of This would agree better with the manning of the St. Monier-Williams explains is an au unfortified [7] there.

which is situated on land that can be used for fields, is called a grama. The dwelling place, which abounds with addras and water, which is situated on land that can be used for fields, is called a grama. The dwelling-place, which men make, different from cities and other abodes, for the sake of their business, is to be known as a vasati by modern men. The grama which springs up on the land of another grama, and thrives, which has no fields of its own, which is for the most part vicious, and which is the resort of a king's favourites, is to called an akrimi.** And a collection of cattle and herdsmen, who have brought their utensils there on carts, where there is no barter, is called a ghosha;†† its situation on the land may be wherever they please.

Those people thus made towns and other aboles for thomselves to dwell in; they made houses for the several couples

*This word is said to mean, "a ' branch-town,' a suburb," but here is seeing to mean a ' town with branches,' a " capital town " or " motropolis"

+ Vasati : see verse 48.

I For fidra-jala-práyda read fúdra-jala-práyá?

§ For -krehibaláh read -krishibalá?

The village. The word thus denotes a local area, and includes both the dwellings and the fields. It seems to designate specially the large and prosperous villages.

The word is explained in the dictionary as "a dwelling-place, dwelling-house, abode, residence," but here it is explained to be a "mart," apparently either permanent or temporary. It corresponds to the modern (Persian) wird gan, or the vernacular word hdf (Sanakrit hatta), in Bengal. The word vessets appears as basts in the modern vernaculars, and means iff Bengal fifthe peoplated part of a villaga," and "the part of a town occupied by the summon bamboo-bails houses." The verse seems to indicate that the year cusats was either newly-coined, or had recently acquired (or the author wished it to acquire) a special meaning. The complete change from this missaing to that of the modern basts, which rather excludes any notion of

On arrise. These words are not in the dictionary. If we might read

This word is said to mean a station of herdemen." Is appears to dea remembrance at that those parale bull

58 As some branches of a free go in old in another direction, and some rise appeards and downwards, even so they fashioned the breath

54. houses. Those branches, which were the branch kalpa trees at first, O brihman, became rooms in t in consequence among those people.

Those people rained the trees by their strife, and afterwar 55 pondered on their means of livelihood. When the trees had utterly perished along with the honey, these people were distressed by their afflictions, and suffered from third and hunger. Then became manifest their perfection at 57 beginning of the Treta age. For their other business with apontaneously seconaplished, they had rain according their desire. The waters of their rain are the rivers! which 58 Now here. By the obstruction of the ming the rivers, which existed on the earth seanty of water before that, became deep flowing chaonels.

And there by their union with the carth plants came into F9 existence, or fourteen kinds, both those which grow on was enitivated soil, and those which grow ansown, both oulfile

60 vated and wild. And trees and shrubs bearing flowers and fruit in their seasons were produced. This manifestation 61 vegetation appeared first in the Treta age. On that regulation the people subsist in the Treta age, O Muni. And then 62 lapsing into nevel passion and savutousness those people next. took possession of rivers and fields, mountains, and trees, shrubs and plants in their own right oven according to might;

* For ac'intaget rend en'entagen ?

+ For varita-sia-sudhild read vari'd ana-sadhild?

1 Ninna-gula zouf enimna-ga? This meaning is not in the distinuary.

f For withfidearablicar read probly wordh in . It Nimnagah yo. If this is correct, we went take nimna-ya were, as the river," a meaning not given in the dictionary; if we read nimus gift force usual, we must read with for ye.

Tor abbasat read ablum an !

depend show plants of cube, U Marsover when that vegetation had sople fed into still further confusion:

Surseing from hunger, they resorted to Brahms, the most high, as their preserver. And he, the mighty lord, knowing thi well then that the earth had swallowed it up, milked treating mount Meru as her calf. This earth-cow was then milked by him, the cereals came into existence on the face of the earth, the seeds, the cultivated and wild plants besides, [which are annuals, § known as comprising seventeen columns according to tradition. The various kinds of both

rice and barley, wheat, ann grain, sesamum, priyangu, T udára,** koradúsha,†† and c'ínaka,‡‡ másha,§§ green gram,|||| and masúra,¶¶the finest pulse,*** and kulatthaka,††† ádhaka

For dvijes read dvija?

Greata. The context seems to require this word to be taken in an active

The calf is tied near the cow, while she is being milked, as otherwise, it is said, she will not let her milk flow.

Af Phala pákánta.

Penicum miliaceum, the modern shind, Roxb. p. 104. It is a cultivated served, grown on an elevated, light, rich soil, immediately after the cains. See note ** p. 165.

The Dictionary says this is a kind of grain with long stalks, but I cannot trace it out in Boxburgh.

Tappalum scrobiculatum, the modern kodo, Roxb. p. 93. He says "The good is an article of diet with the Hindoos, particularly with those who inhable the mountains and most barron parts of the country, for it is in such countries only whore it is cultivated, it being an unprofitable crop, and not where others more beneficial will thrive. I have eaten of the boiled grain, and think it as palatable as rice."

This is said to be Panicum miliaceum which is already mentioned; the messas fennel also, but that is inappropriate. I do not find any other ment of this name.

<sup>14</sup> See cote | p. 84.

Madea ; See note of p. 84.

<sup>17</sup> Fee note 111 p. 165. History ; see note | p. 86

The state of the s

And there are fourteethe sides itself

And there are fourted hinds of plants to the both cultivated and wild, frieds of plants which and barloy, wheat, any grain the various which was a standard of the cultivated by the cultivate of the cultivated by the cultivated b and barloy, wheat, and grain, and severing them priyangu, and eighth kni essemum, and eyent and grain and 72 wild rice, wild sesamum, a saw sevent. ... grass, kard and and grass, markataka, 11 and wald gradhs 155 and these indeed to traditionally known ... o fourteen cultivated and wild plant.

73 jor use in service. When these plants are abandoned, ## they do not spring forth again.

Thereupon the adorable solf-existent Brahma devised

71 means of livelihead for the advancement of those people, and the perfection of the hands which results from work. There forward plants were produced, which must ripen after plough; ing. But when their livelihood was thoroughly ordained, the

70 Ing. The first the tree new mas statement volumes green

The dictionar, does not give adhaba, mane or feren, as the name of any plant; but blook, fen. is said to meen a kind of pulse, Gajusus indicing Spreng. I do not find it in Ruch, but Oliver calls the Figure Pon Gajasus.

For Canakas well Capakas Soc note ** p. 81.

1 Sana For parat read lanah, as in several NES.

§ The reckoning sectors wrong; prayanga as the math and kulatihaka the seventh.

! Bee nete # p. 165.

Tattila is not in the dictionary. For gaitile read juridal, ** Cois berbala, Ruah. p. 649; it is a course gross, and cattle do not est it.

It is also said to mean Hedynarum la populondes which is montheneod by Ross, burgh (p. 578), but of which I find no description in life work.

th Coperus returning, Roxb. p. 66; a common grass, the roots of which dried and powdered are used as a perfume.

This has been mentioned in Canto XXXII, como 11, and is described in the dictionary as "a kind of with panic, a species of grain." I find that Carpopage pruriens is assigned by Roxburgh to the Sanskrit word murbed (p. 553). That is a common legume, but he says no use scous to be made of it, except that the hairs of the legumes are used as a vermifuge and are believed to be poisonous.

This is not in the dictionary, and I do not know what it is.

Progrishts. Does this mean that these plants grow only in a cultivated

the worlds with all the most righteous Muss.

righteousness and wealth onally declared to be the splaer Prájápatyat in tr hmans who perform the cereme mice amoned after ..... Aindrat is the sphere of inhatriyes who flee not in b attle 18 Maratas is the sphere of va. who observe their cwn proper laws. Gandharva is the span of the various cl ages 79 of sadras who perform menial service. The sphe. eighty-eight thousand rishis who live in perpetual chastity has been traditionally declared to be that of the inhabitants 80 of Jupiter. The sphere of the Seven Rishis has been tradi-. tionally declared to be that of hermits. Prajapatya** is the sphere of householders; the abode of Brahmá is for those men who have abandoned all worldly concerns; the world of immortality is for yogis-such is the ordinance of the various spheres assigned ofter death.

CANTO I.

The mandate to the Yaksha Duhsuha.

Brahma next created the nine Sages, Bhriyu, Pulustya, Pulaha, Kratu, Angiras, Maric'i, Daksha, Atri and Vasishtha—and also Budra, Sankalpa und Dharma—All these were all-wise and devoid of passions—Brahma in anger created a being half male, half female, who at his order divided himself into many male and femals beings.

* Loka.

The heaven of the pitris?

The 18th lunar mansion?

The constellation Sváti.

And this seems inappropriate.

Tare constellation Ursa Majory

M See votes 72

British then created the Mann Subjectified and he was the wipe.—They had sun some Priya-orate and Ullane paint and the daughters. Ruc's married one daughter Riddhi and begat Yafin and Dakshind.

Daksha married the other daughter Prasuti and begot 24 daughters whose names are mentioused, and who became Dhurma's wives, and all 11 other daughters whose names are mentioned, and who became the vives of the other sages and of Agmi and the Pilis The children of these daughters are mentioned.

A-dharma and his offspring are mentioned, Naraka, Bhayn, Mrityis, &c.—The actions of Mrityis's sons are explained.—Chief among them is Duhsaha—to him Brahma assigned a dwelling and raiment, a long catalogue of bad deeds as nourishment, and certain places and times for his success, but excluded a list of other persons and places from his influence.

Márkandoya spoke.

- 1 Then white he was meditating, markind were begotten in his mind, together with their occupations, and implements
- 2 which were produced from his body. Spirits in bodily form* were produced from the times of him, the wise god. All those whom I have already mentioned came into existence.
- 3 All created being: from the gods down to these whose condition is stationary are known to be subject to the three qualities of such was the constitution of created things, immoveable and moveable.
- When all that offspring of him, the wise one, did not increase, he created other mind-born sons like onto himself, vis.,
- 5 Bhrign, Pulastya, Pulaha, Kratu, and Anguras, Maric'i, Dak-sha, and Atri, and the mind-born Vasichtha 1-- these were the
- 6 nine 2013 of Brahms, they are positively mentioned in the Next Brahma further created Rudez, whose buth was from his soul when it was angry, and Sanhalps, and Dharma who was begetten betore all the preceding sous.

&amp; Kahetra-inn.

+ Goodness, passion, and ignorance.

<sup>2</sup> For Vallehfham rend Varishfham.

When they thus showed disregard at the creation of the worlds, the high-souled Brahms grew very wrathful; then was produced there a male like to the sun, possessed of an immense body, the body being half man's and half woman's. 11 "Divide thyself" said the god, and then disappeared. And he being thus accosted separated the female and male natures; and he divided the male nature into eleven parts. 12 Then the divine lord divided the male and female natures into many parts with men, gentle and cruel, calm, black and i 13 Next the lord Brahma became the guardian of his offapring by creating the first Manu Sváyambhuva,† begotten 14 from and like unto himself, O brahman, and the woman Sata-rúpá, who was cleansed from blemishes through austerities. The divine and mighty Manu Sváyambhuva took her 15 for his wife. And through him her husband Sata-rups brought forth two sons, Priya-vrata and Uttána-páda, famed 16 through their own actions, and two daughters also, Riddhi and Prasúti. Then their father gave Prasúti in marriage to 17 Daksha and Riddhi to Ruc'is of yore. The Praja-pati Rac'i took his wife, and from them both a son Yajna was born and a daughter Dakshina, O illustrious Sir; these two then 18 became husband and wife, and Yajna begat of Dakshina twelve sons; the glorious sons of Yajua and Dakshina were 19 the gods well known as the Yamas in the epoch of Manu Sváyambhuva.

white.

The son of Svayam-bhu (the Self-existent Brahma).

I For devias read devia?

Ha is one of the Praja-patis.

This reme must refer to Buc'i, as Daksha's progeny is mentioned in

And Dalatin moreover began broney and thus the (Faith), Lakshmi (Good Fortune), Dhriti (Constancy), Tank (Satisfaction), Pushti (Nourichment), Medhá (Mental Vicos)

(Satisfaction), Pushti (Nourishment), Medhá (Mental Vilous) and Kriyá (Action), Buddhi (Intelligence), Lajjá (Modes) Vapus (Bodily Beauty), Sánti (Tranquillity), Siddhi (Porfection), and Kirti (Fame) the thirteenth. The lerd Dharms took these daughters of Daksha for his wives.

22 Bosides them and younger were the eleven lovely-systic daughters-Khyáti (Celebrity), and Sati (Truth), Samblidti, (Fitness), Smriti (Memory), Priti (Atlection), and Kahana

23 (Patience), and Sammti (Humflity),* and Anashyá (Sine cerity), Uriá (Strength), Sváhá (the oblation to the gods), and Svadhá (the oblation to the pitris). The Rishis Bhriga,

24 Bhavat and Marie'i, and the Muni Angiras also, Pulastra and Pulaha, and Kratu! Vasishthe, and Atri, Vabni and the 25 Pitris in order—these Muns, the most illustrious among Munis, took these daughters, Kleati and the others, in marriage. Straddhá gave both to Kúma (Love), and Srill to Darna.

26 (Pride); Dhriti to Niyana (Restratot) her son; and Tushti, also to Santosha (Contentment); Pushti to bobha (Covetons, 1988); Medhá to Sruta (Revelation); Kriyá to Danda (Punishment), Naya (Pradence), and Vinaya (Decorum);

27 Buddhi gave birth to Bodha (Wisdom); and Lajji to Vinaya (Decorum); Vapus to Vyavasáya (Industry) her son; and 28 Sacti gave birth to Kshema (Ease), Siddhi to Sukha (Happiness); Kirti to Vasas (Renown) These were the off-spring of Dharma.

She¶ bare by Kima a grandson to Dharma, namely, Here sha (Joy) who brims over with joyousness.

· For Santalis in the test read Sannetts wee Panto LII, v. 24

† That is, Siva; and he married Sati. She put an end to herself in consequence of her father Dakita's curse, and was re here as the deoghter of Himavat, when Siva married for again. See Canto 1.11, vv. 12 14.

. 1 For Kritist read Krains.

A See Canto Lil, TV 14, de

1 I. o. Lakehmi.

This sceme obscure.

Angue ( Alebecco) was born of her, and a sound ( Reinly ( Destraction) was born of her, and a sound ( Reinly) and Bhaya ( Fear), and Maya ( Illusion) and Yadane ( Pain). And with these two females the two sons formed two married pairs; and of those two, Maya gave birth to Mrityu ( Death) who carries created beings away, and 31 Vedana gave birth by Raurava* to her son Duhkha (Misery). And Vyadhi ( Sickness), Jara (Old Age), Soka (Griof), Trishna (Thirst) and Krodha (Anger) were begotten by Mrityu; or all these, who have the characteristics of A-dharma, are traditionally declared to have sprung from Duhkha. No wife have they, nor son; they all live in perpetual chastity.

Nirriti also was the wife of Mrityn, and Mrityn had another wife called A-lakshmi (III Fortune); and by the latter Mrityn 34 had fourteen sons. These are his sons by A-lakshmi; they carry out Mrityn's commands; they visit men at the 55 times of dissolution; hear about them. They dwell in the ten organs of sense and in the mind; for they influence man or woman each towards his own object of sense; and assailing the organs of sense they influence men by means of passion, anger and other feelings, so that men suffer injury through unrighteousness and other evil ways. O brahman.

And one of them takes possession of self-consciousness, and another resides in the intellect; hence bewildered by folly, men strive to destroy women.

And snothert famed by his name Duhsaha! resides in men's houses; he is wasted with hunger, his face is downwards bent; he is naked, clothed in rags, and his voice is as hoarse as a crow's. He was created by Brahma to eat all beings. Him, exceedingly terrific by reason of his long teeth, openmonthed, very terrible, and ravenous in mind, him thus ad-

Rauraya is the name of particular hell, but here it seems to be equivalent to Naraka.

For anye reed anyo!

The "Unendurable," "Intolerable."

dressed Brahma, the store house of as father of the worlds, he who is entirely bolisted Brahma, the pure, the cause of the universe, the Brahma spoko.

"Thou must not devour this universe; quit the 41 keep thee calm; cast off the atom of passion and formale career of ignorance."

Dulisaha spoke.

42 "I am wasted with hunger, () ruler of the world I thirsty also and my strength is gone. How may I be satisfied: O master? How may I grow strong? And tell me, when will be my refuge where I may abide tranquil?"

Brahmá spoke.

- "Thy refuge shall be men's houses, and anrighteous men; 43 shall be thy strongth. Then shall be satisfied, my child, with their reglect to perform the constant sacrifices. And spons taneous boils stall be thy raiment; and for foodt I give to thee whatever is injured, and what is infested with vermis-45 and what has been guzed into by dogs, likewise what is contained in broken pars, what has been much still by the breath from a man's month, the fragments that remain from a mank. what is unripe, that on which perspiration has fallen, I what
- 46 has been licked, what has not been cooked properly, what has been caten of by people sitting on broken seats, and food that has fallen on the seat, and what turus away from the sky# at the two twilights, what is distinguished by the
- 47 sound of dancing and musical instruments, what a woman inc her courses has polluted, what such a woman has eaten of and has gazed at, and whatever ford or dring has been
- damaged at all these shall be for thy nourshment, and whatever else I give to thee; whatever persons, who have <sup>1. *</sup> Or, for tayan midhih read tapaso midhe, vicative?

Por áharam rend áháram?

<sup>1</sup> For a svinnam road d-spinnam !

For deanadaten another reading is deands gatam which is preferred

Yidin makha; not in the dictionary.

Tpo-ghite-vat; not in the dictionary.

the participated their abbutance, have excellent or given in and without saith or in contempt; what has been cost away without the previous use of water, and what has been rendored valueless, and what has been exhibited in order to be dispartled, and what has been given away through utter amazement; what is corrupt, and what has been given away by a person in anger or in pain, that O goblin, * thou shalt obtaint as thy raward; and whatever the son of a re-married widow does as an undertaking for the next world, and whatever the daughter of a re-married widow so does; that, O goblin, shall be for thy satisfaction. The wealth-procuring ceremonies in which a maiden engages along with her lover for the sake of the obligation of dower, and the ceremonies also which are performed according to wicked books, shall be for thy nourishment, O goblin; and whatever has been studied for the sake of enjoying wealth; and whatever has not been read truly-all that I give thee, and these periods also for thy perfection. Thou shalt ever have conquering power, O Duhsaha, among men, if they approved a prognaut woman carnally, or if they transgress the evening rites and the constant coremonies, and among men who have been corrupted by wicked books, decis or conversation.

55 "Thy business lies in creating social dissensions, in rendering cookery useless, and in interrupting cookery; and thy dwelling shall perpetually be in household wrangling. And men shall dread theeş in what pines away, and in ballookearts and other conveyances which are shut up, in rooms which are not sprinkled at twinght, and at death. On the occasions of eclipses of the stars and planets, and at the appearance à

· Yaksha

† Tad-bhagi in the text sooms incorrect. Another reading is tad-gami; but frad-bhagi and trad-gami seem preferable. Another reading is propagas, and this I have adopted.

Pre arthum niveritam another and better reading is arthumireritan which I have adopted. A bird reading is des vikritam.

For tvativo read tratto f fact value, who disregard projectory occurrences.

fact value, who slways delight in gambling and see confer bosofts according to the word, and who are hypocrites, shall be the press.

performed by an unlearned man; ansterities practical forest by men who include in worldly pleasurest and

60 mon of unsubdaed soul; the action which is done according to their respective occupations by brahmans, kehatein validaes and studens, who have fallen from their caster, and at

61 desire to gain the objects of the next world, and whaten the results of that action—all that shall be thine. O golds And more yet I give thee for thy nourishment; bearing

62 thereto. Hen shall give thee a plentoous bali offering at the close of the Vaisvadeva ceremony, first uttering thy and then saying "this is for thee."

"Abandor the house of him, who eats only properly according to rule, who is pure within and without with is free from covetousness, who governs his wife. Abandonthat bouse, O goblin, where the gods and the pitris atoshipped with their respective oblations, and where the familiar 65 relatives and guests are honoured. And abandon that home also, where concords dwells at home among the children, the aged, the women and men, and among the various ciliary.

66 kinsmon. Abandon that house, O goblin, where the women folk are delighted, are not eager to go outside, and are always.

67 modest. Abandon that house, O goblin, at my community where the hedding and viands are suited to the ages and rela-

68 tions of the innuts. Abandon that house, O goldin, where the inmates are always kind, and busied in good deeds, and 9 possess the common household utensils. And then must also ever abandon that house, O goblin, where the immutes do not • For sape-rane rend tape vane? Grampa-bhuj.

I For file strekas rend jita-strikas !

I War maitri-grahe rend maitri ;rihe ?

market with the religious precipions, like again and will are stending and where they do not stend. That will and an excellent abode for thee, where the house-door is not penetrated by trees, shrubs or other vegetation, nor by a man who pierces one's vitals. Abandon the house of the man who supports the gods, the pitris, mankind and guests with the remnants of his food. Abandon, O goblin, such men as these, the true in word, the forbearing in disposition, the harmless, and those free from remorse, and also the un-Abandon the woman, who is devoted to her husband's pervice, who keeps aloof from associating with bad women, and the feeds on the food which has been left by her family and hasband. Abandon the brahman dvija always, whose mind is 🐎 - engrossed with sacrifice, study, discipline and alms-giving, and who has made his livelihood by means of the performance of sacrifices, teaching, and receiving alms.* And abandon, O Duhhas saha, the kshatriya who is always energetic in alms-giving, study, and sacrifice, and who earns his livelihood from good taxes and by the occupation of arms. Abandon the stainless waisya, who is endowed with the three previous victues, + and who gains his livelihood from the keeping of cattle and trade 77 and cultivation. Abandon also the sudra, who is diligent in alms-giving, sacrifice and the service of dvijus, and who supports himself by menial service under brahmans and other dvilas, O goblin.

"In whatever house the master of the house earns his livelihood without contravening anti and smriti, and where the wife is obedient to him from her very soul, and where the son shows reverence to his spiritual preceptor and the gods and his father, and where the wife shows reverence to her house whence should there be fear of misfortune in that house? When a house is smeared over in the evenings, and thouse in it, thou caust not gaze thereat, O gobliu. The houses where the sun sees not the beds, and where fire and ween of the season y toph and whom the are sort for thee, where are kept a bull, sandat with a lute, a mirror, houey and ghee, and where capper are used both for poisons and for the clarified butter.

oblations.

98 "That house is thy temple, O goblin, where thoray grow, and where leguminous plants creep about, and when the wife is a ro-married widow, and ant-hills are found. This house is thy dwelling, wherein live five men, and three women, and as many cows, and where the fire from the fuel

85 is mere darkness. Then shalt quickly, O goblin, parch up the house, which contains one goat, two asses, three cattlets.

86 five buffaloes, six horses, and seven elephants. Wherever a spade, a dá,† a basket, and also a caldron and other utensils are

87 scattered about, they may give thee shelter. Sitting women on the wooden pestle and mortar, and also unout udumbara wood, and the utterance of sacred verses at the 88 privy, this shall be advantageous for thee, O goblin. Roam:

O Duhsaha, to thy heart's content, in that house where all kinds of corn whether cooked or uncooked, and where this scriptures also are disdained. Endless misfortunes take up their abode in that house, where fire lies upon the lid of the caldron or is offered with the point of a spoon. Thou, Q goblin, and other Rákshasas also shall have a dwelling in the house, where human bones lie and where a corpse remains a whole day and night. Resort at once to those men who feed on a kinsman's pinda and water, without giving any to the sapindas and sahodakas.

Ł

2 "Abandon the house where the lotus and the white lotus are found, where a maiden dwells who feeds on sweetmeats, Mahisha (mi); in this sense, not in the dictionary.

† Datra, a large heavy kuife with a curved in point, used for all purposes

I This is forbidden because the tree is hely.

Modekskini; sein, from as, to eat, not in the dictionary.

conventional ordinances, the laws regarding kinsmen, who performs the victorious home oblation and the nails. Join not thysis with the man who establishes the country customs, the conventional ordinances, the laws regarding kinsmen, who performs the victorious home oblation and the auspicious according to the precepts, and who fashions the public talk."

Márkandeya spoke.

Having spoken thus to Duhsaha, Brahma disappeared from sight there, and the other followed the command of the lotustorn god.

Tor vrishabhairávato rond vrishabhairávatau ?

+ For kalpyote read kalpyete or kalpyante

This seems to be the best meaning; but if so surpression would be intelligible.

Fe kurvanti must be understood.

CANTO Ed.

The Offspring of Duhenha.

Duhsaha had eight sons and eight daughters—their names are mentioned—The cril functions of the several sons and daughters are described, and the remodies against them—Their offspring are man-timed, and their evil actions described.

These beings are almost all personifications of physical injuries, mural vices and social offeners.

Markandeya spoke.

- Duhsaha had a wife named Nirmashti*, now she was bue gotten in Kali's wife when she saw a candala at the time of
- 2 * her menstruction. They had sixteen children, who pervide the world, eight sons and eight daughters, all very terrible.
- 3 Dantákrishti and Ukti, and Parivaria the next, Anga-dhrian
- 4 and Sakuni and Ganda-pranta-rati, Garbha-hau and the land. Sasya-han were their male children. And they had eight
- 5 daughters besides: hear their names from me. The first was Niyojika, and the second Virodhini, and Svayam-hara-kari.
- Bhrámaní, Ritu-háriká, and two other very terrible daughters.
  Smriti-hará and Víja-hará; and the eighth daughter was named Vidveshaní who causes terror to mankind.

I will describe what the several functions of the eight sons are, and what are the remedies against the axils which they work; hearken to me, () brahman.

Dantákrishtif taking his station in the teeth of newly born children produces intense wind,; with the desire of effecting

Prof. Sir M. Momer-Williams gives the name as Nir-mershii (Uncleaned)

Touch attractor, Lock jaw?

1 San harsha, or bristling of the hair of the body.

medicinal herbs of great aplendeur, by reciting good places, and by supporting it on a camel, a thorn, a speed, a bone, or a linen cloth.

Now the second son assigns good and bad fortune to men walle he says repeatedly, "let it be so!"; hence he is called to the it, I and that is his precise function. Hence wise men attack always say, "May fate be auspicious!" And when any thing bad is heard or spoken, let praise be offered to Siva, and to Brahmá, the spiritual preceptor of all that exists both moveable and immoveable, and to each person's own particular family-deity.

The son who finds delight in always interchanging the feetus between one womb and another, and in interchanging the words in the mouth of a speaker, is called Parivartakas, a wise man should preserve himself against him by means of white mustard and the prayers and spells that destroy Rákshasas.

And another son like the wind announces good and bad fortune as indicated by throbbings in men's bodies; and the remedy against him is to strike the side of the body with kusa grass.

Another son Sakuni¶ stationed on a crow or some other bird, announces weal or woe by means of food or birds.**

With regard thereto, however, the Prajá-pati has said, "In an evil matter delay and the abandonment of the undertaking best; in a good matter one should act very speedily."

For and'c'hudstra rend sac'o'hastra,

Widhirens; not in the dictionary.

The Word of Fate.

Anga-dhrish, the Asseller of the body.

Takuni, a Bird (in general). The word hus slate in the text is not sup-

The word has a kird (in general). The word has aloue in the text is not suplated by the MBS, and seems wrongs. They read S'akunit (which I have lated) or aloue on "an omen."

Blane tag this seams the best meaning; but it might also be read

Acceptant, son managed in the posterior of the half a muhirta, O beshman, consumer or an enlogium, and sincerity. By addresses in 20 praise to the geds, and by extracting roots, G.

ablutions with cows' urine and mustard seed worship paid to the constellations and planets, and the Upanishous repeatedly looking at weapons, and by contempt fire

21 repeatedly looking at weapons, and by contempt for a Ganda-pranta-rati succumbs.

Another most terrible son,† moreover, destroys the fraction of pregnant women. Women should always secure protection against him by constant personal parification, by writing off famous spells, by wearing auspicious garlands and other decorations; by dwelling in well-cleaned houses, and by abstaining from over-exertion, O brahman.

The other son Sasya-han; moreover is he who destroys the growth of the crops. Against him indeed one should secure protection by wearing worn-out shoes, and by walking on the left side, and by causing a candala to enter the field, and by offering the ball outside, and by enlogizing the some juice.

And Niyojikas is the daughter who incites some man to 26 seize and otherwise notes! other men's wives and other men's goods. Immunity from her comes by reciting parifying prayers, by refraining from anger, covetoneness and other passons, and by resistance with the thought. She is inciting me to these acts.' When one is ruiled against or beaten by 28 another, one should wisely think 'she is inciting him,' and should not fall into subjection to her. In this mundame exist tence, where there are other men's wives and other altering 29 objects, the wise man should consider. 'She is inciting my objects, the wise man should consider. 'She is inciting my mind and my soul here.'

And the next daughter who causes opposition hatwest as loving married couple, among relatives and friends, between parents and children, and among fellow-caste-people.

*:Ganda-printa-rati, the Reveller in the borders of the cheeks.

Garbha-han, the Footus-destroyer.

1 The Crop destroyer.

2 The Inditer.

2 Savarnika; in this sense not in the destroyer.

All the base of Turknows Gustom

ter destroys grain from granaries and houses. ows, and shee, and the produce from prolific stign. The is called Svayam-harikat; she is ever addicted to the free free the consumes the half-cooked food out of the science, and whatever is kept in the store-house; and she Mways consumes whatever food is being served upt, along with the person who eats it. She takes the remains of food from men and also their food. She is hard to be restrained. She takes the success which men have accomplished from their business affices and from their abodes, O brahman. She is constantly taking the fluid and the milk out of cows' udders and women's breasts, the ghee out of curdled milk, the out of sesamam seed, and the spirituous liquor out of the liquor stores, the colour out of saffron and other coloured sophists, and the thread out of cotton clothes. She is rightly mamed Syayam-háriká, for she is perpetually taking things 37. away, O brahman. For the sake of protection against her one should make a pair of peacocks and an artificial woman; and prophylactic marks should be drawn on the house, and allowing the house to be littered with fragments of food++ thould be avoided, and vessels in which milk and other things have been kept should certainly be cleaned with the ashes of the increase offered to the gods in the sacrificial fire. All that it walkshown to be a preservative.

The the other daughter, who produces perturbation in a

The Voluntary thief.

The part-stevendacty read part-rishyomotopy. This half-line has nine

A state and der-dhere tarted of the text our-herd. I have adopted

This world be the same as insumblate? This world be the same as insum

Par lakly's read tables.

medica is the handest which I have microsed man should secure protection against her by loaners masterd seed on his seat, on his begansis of the where he sits; and a man should redect.

matter the Bhuvas hymn repeatedly, with composed a

Another daughter robs women of their monthly coarse should cause one's women-folk to bathe at places of pilgrimage at temples, beside sacred public objects, on mountain to at the confluence of rivers, and in excavated places in order 44 to subdue her. And one who knows the spells and know the principles of action should cause them to bathe at the total changes of the moon and at dawn, O brahman, and physician who is skilled in medicine should cause them.

physician who is skilled in medicine should cause then bathe with choice herbs combined together.

45 And Smriti-háriká** is another daughter who deptide women of their memory. And she may be overcome in observing places distinguished separately.

46 And Vijápahárin톆 is another daughter very tarribbe who robs man and woman of their seed. And she may overcome by eating clean food and by buthing.

And the eighth daughter named Dvcshapi, !! who cannot berror among mankind, is she who renders a man, or even 48 a woman, newly hated. Now in order to vanquish her, one should offer an oblation of sesamum seed moistaned with honey, milk and ghee; and one should also perform a sacrifice which will procure friends in order to van quish her.

. The Bewilderer.

f For othe prayritten another reading is tatheprayritten which I have adopted as preferable. A third reading is athepartitis.

The Stealer of the Monsos.

Oaliya; the primary meaning, "a funeral, pile," seems imappropries

The Breaks of the Honory,

The Restor of the memory.

La como de la companya de la company

A (1919) (Pasterer twee Bantakrishti's daughter, and Kala-ta (Casarstier) also. Vijalpā indulges in contemptuous, tales and corrupt talk. In order to vanquish her, let the wise douse-holder ponder on her and preserve his self-control. Eslana is always creating disturbances in men's houses; she is the cause why families perish. Hearken how she may be subdued. One should throw blades of durbá grass smeared with honey, ghee, and milk in the bali ceremony, and offer a sacrifice to fire, and extol one's friends, for the performance of a propitiatory vite to avert evil from all living beings, and boys along with their mothers, and the sciences, and penances,* religious vows and the great moral duties.† In the cultivation of land and in the profits of trade let men always pacify me, And let the Kushmandas and the Yatu-dhanas! and whatever other beings are named according to their classes, let these, when duly adored, always, become pacified. By the favour of Maha-deva, and by the counsel of Mahesvaral let all these soon become satisfied with regard to men. When pleased let them cast aside every evil deed and evil work, and every result that springs from the great sins, and 58. whatever else causes obstacles. By their favour indeed let obstacles wholly perish. And in all marriages and in cere-50 monies performed for increase of presperity, in meritorious undertakings and in religious devotion, and in the worship of spiritual teachers and the gods, in the rites of prayer and 56 sacrifice, and in the fourteen pilgrimages, in the pleasures enjoyable in bodily health, and in happiness, liberality and wealth, and among the aged, children and the sick, let them always pacify me.

Ukti had sons Soma-pá, Ambu-pá, and Ambho-dhi, and davieri, Anila and Anala¶; and he had also a son Kála-

Par ispacie read tapaton ?

The universe of evil-spirits.

The lambda of evil-spirits.

Siva.

Siva.

Siva.

This is Some disker, Water drinker, Ocean, Sun, Wind and Sire. This men in whose mothers he so dec.

Now Parivarta had two sents. Virtual and 63 brahmen; and they both inhabit the tops of the ramparts and the sea. They both interchange

64 from one pregnant woman to another, if the walking among trees and the other places which they frequent Kraushtuki. In truth, a pregnant woman should not 65 proach a tree, nor a mountain, nor a rampart, nor the se nor a ditch.

Anga-dhrish begat a son, by name Pia'una. If he enters the morrow inside men's bones, he consumes the energy of even invincible men.

Sakuni begat five sons, Syena (Hawk), Káka (Crow), and Kapota (Pigeon) Gridhra (Vulture) and Uláka (Owl).

gods and the demons took thom. And Mrityu (Death) took 88 Syena; Kála (Destiny) took Káka; and Nirriti (Destruction)

took Uluka who causes great terror; Vyádhi (Siokness) nos Gridhra and was his lord; and Yama himself took Kapina.

69 And the evil beings which sprang from them are indeed said to produce sin. Hence he, on whose head a hawk and the 70 other birds should alight, should take effectual pacificators measures for his safety, O brahman. If they are born inside.

71 a house or if likewise water should settle in a house, a man.

should abandon that house and also a house on the top of which pigeons alight. When a hawk, a pigeon, and a valuture, a crow, and an owl have entered a house, O brahman.

72 one should prophesy the end of the residents in that dwelling.

A wise man should abandon such a house and should employ.

73 pacificatory measures. Even in sleep indeed it is unlacky to see a pigeon.

And the offspring of Ganda-pranta-rati are said to be six

* Black tongue.

For tala-niketanah road talu-niketanah, who resides in the palate?

<sup>2</sup> Deformed. § Ill-health.

Tor gridhroldbais' read gridhroldkau?

our usys of a menetration and the thirteenth mother is powerful on the eleventh day; another active others on occasions of sraddhas and almstandher at festivals; hence these days should be until by the wise in sexual intercourse.

The former enters within and cats the feetus; and after he hat eaten it, the latter beguiles; it. Through her beguiling, the offspring are born as snakes, fregs, tortoises, and reptiles also, or yet again as ordere. The son may enter into the sixmonths pregnant woman who in waywardness cats flesh§: or into the woman, who seeks the shade of a tree by night or at a place where three or four roads meet, who stands in a burning ground or any place pervaded by strong smells, who.

And Sasya-hantri had one son named K-hudraka (Puny).

81 He is constantly injuring the growth of the crops, when he has gained a weak place. Listen therete. And he, who sows highly pleased at the beginning of an inauspicious day, provides an entrance behind him for this sprite into the fields which touch other fields along their boundaries. Hence it is the proper practice that a man should worship the moon, and then carry out his undertaking and sow his seed in gladness and contentment, with a companion.

Niyojiká, who was Duhsaha's daughter as I have said, gave birth to four daughters who bear the names Prac'odiká (Instigator), Mattá (Intoxicated), Unmattá (Frantic) and Prac's mattá (Wanton). Now they are always entering into young menion in order to destroy them, and incite them here vehemently towards unrighteousness with the appearance of righteousness, and to love which bears no appearance of love, and to that which is not wealth with the appearance of Nighna meens "dependant"; but here it rather seems to mean "elayer."

Beguller.

1 Mohayate.

Tal purviul mamsam read gurnium mamsam.

Antopassagiana. Upa sangin, a word not in the dictiousry.

THE COTSPRING OF DUMBANA

bears no appearance of final emancipation from without purity they lead young comen to gaze at those angry sprites cause strange men to wander for the sake of philandering. Those female sprites cause strange and to sake of philandering. Those female sprites cause a house and into clothing when they are reddened by small and wherever the ball is not offered to Dhátri and Vidhata at the proper time. They make a sudden; attack upon men and women's among those people who eat or drink with drope of water charging to them.

Virodhmi had three sons, Codaka (Instigator) and Grapo haka (Seizer) and the other Tamul-prace hidaka (Gloomenveloper). Hear their characters from me. Where the postle and mortar, and where a woman's shees and her usper:

and lower garments are beforded by contact with burning oil, said are disdained; and where people use a seat, after first drawing it to them with a winnowing busket or a hatchet or.

92 other implement or with their foot; and where pastime is held in a house without respecting the place which has been smeared and cleaned; where fire is taken up and carried elsewhereds.

3 the bowl of a spoon—there Virodbini's sons are impelled and display their activity. One dwells in men's and women's

94 tongues and utters falschood as truth; he is called C'odaka; he works calumny in the house. And another who acts with

65 care dwells in the cars and is exceedingly evil-minded; ho, takes hold of people's words; so he is called Grábaka. The third is he who, with evil mind, attacks men's minds and

96 enveloping them with darkness arouses anger; so he is called Tamah-prac'o'hádaka

Now Svayam-hari gave birth to three sons by C'aurya, 97 (Theft), Sarva-hari, Addha-hari, and also Virya-hari.

&quot; For tabhir ashfabhih read tabhi rushfabhih.

† The text violates sandhi and seems obscure. I have adopted a different reading, sandhyd-rakte hy-athambare instead of sandbyerksheehu udumbare.

<sup>1</sup> For der road de'v? § For nava-nárásku read nara-nárásku.

fi For C'oduka-gráhakas romi c'odako gráhakas *

I He who steads the whole.

<sup>**</sup> He who steak half.

†† He who steals one's rigour.

to the desire of those who do not rive their mouths out after reads, and in the houses of those who observe had customs, and among those who enter the kitchen with unwashed feet, and is granaries and cattle-pens and houses where perfidy prevails—in such places all these sprites fittingly sport and have their pleasure.

Now Bhrámaní had one son; he is known as Káka-jangha 100 (Crow-leg). No one possessed by him can get pleasure in the town. He enters into the man, who while eating sings to a friend, and who sings and laughs at the same time, and 101 who indulges in sexual intercourse during the twilight, O bráhman.

The daughter Ritu-háriní gave birth to three daughters; 102 the first daughter was Kuc'a-hará,* the next Vynnjana-hári103 ká,† and the third daughter was called Játa-háriní.† The first rebs of both breasts the maiden, all whose marriage rites are not performed duly, or are performed after the prescribed 104 time. And the second robs of her signs of puberty the married maiden, who has been married without duly offering the śráddha, and without paying due reverence to her mother. 105 When the lying-in chamber is destitute of fire and water, and is devoid of incense, when it has no lamp or weapon or pestle, daughter enters in, and bringing about immediate delivery snatches away the new-born child, and castes the child away 107 in that very place, O bráhman; she is called Játa-hármí; very terrible is she, she feeds on flesh. Hence one should strenuously guard against her in the lying-in chamber.

108 And she, who destroys the memory of men destitute of selfcontrol through inhabiting empty abodes, had a son, by name 109 Pra-o'anda (Impetuous). From his son's sons were born the Likas in hundreds and thousands and eight tribes of C'an110 dálas, very terrible with staves and nooses. Then the Likas and those tribes of C'andálas were possessed by hunger, and ran at Ho who steals the breasts. She who steals the signs of puberty.

She who steals new-born children. Shhiti.

THE OPPERATED OF DURSANA.

- restrained the several tribes of Candalas, and catablished them with such and such ordinances; hear what those are
  - 112 Hearafter from to-day whoever shall give a dwelling to the Likas, I will assuredly cause an unparalleled punishment to
  - 113 fall on him. The female Like who shall give birth to offspring in the dwelling of a Wandéla, her child shall die fratand she also shall perish at once.
  - 114 Now Vija-háriní, who robs man and woman of their seed, gives buth to two daughters, Vata-rúpát and A-rúpá.1 1
  - 115 will tell thee of her method of attack. The man or the wife, to whom Váta-rupá carts a son at the end of the impregnation, suffers from the sominal secretion becoming dried up through
  - 116 disorder of the wind within the body. Similarly both the man who cats without first building, and the man who cats flesh, are deprived of their seed at once by Λ-τύρά. A man or a woman, if he or she reglects personal cleanliness, lapses into sterility. ¶
  - 117 Now the daughter cailed Vi-dw-huni has a countenance rugged with frowns See had two sons. Apa-kara** and Pra-
  - 118 kášaks. †† There two sens come to a man, who delights in calumny, who is inconstant, and who uses impure water,
  - 119 and who hates mankind, and stay with him permanently. Hated by mother, by brother, by beloved friends, by kinsmen,
  - 120 by strangers, a near perishes from righteonsness or wealth.

    Now one see, working an divulgestt mea's peculiar qualities.
  - 121 in the world; and the second placks aways one's good qualities and the frandship that exists among people.
    - · C'andála-yonya 'varathe noom wanny; road c'andála-yony-avarathe instoad?
    - + She who has the form of wind. I Form-less.
  - § Váta-kukra-tvacu, such is said to be the meaning of this word.
- " | Viyoyinah in the text weems wrong. I have adopted another reading, yo vat tathawa pisitasanah ter yo zau tatha o'api viyonwah.
- This sentence is made the first line of verse 118 in the text, and is clearly out of place there. I have placed it after verse 116 which is the netural context.
- ** Apa-karsha, which must be the real name of the son (see verse 121) is preferable to Apa-kars, for neither son has anything to do with experies; but all the MSS, read apakara, and I have not ventured to alter it.
  - 44 That is, Divalger.
- 11 Pen-kaiayati

At the pedigree of Duhaha, in the pedigree of Duhaha, in the pedigree of wicked water of they who have overspread the whole world.

CANTO LH.

The Orontion and Appellations of the Rudras.

Markandya narrates the creation of Rudra in his eight personalities and mentions their names, stations, wives and sons—He mentions briefly the wives and offspring of the rishis, Bhrigu (from whom he himself was descended), Maric'i, Anyiras, Atri, Pulastya, Pulaha, Vasishtha, and Agni, and also of the Pitris.

Márkandeya spoke.

Such was the creation, which Brahmá of inscrutable origin made, characterized by durkness. I will tell thee of the creation of the Rudras. Hearken to me while I narrate it.
 Now they were eight sons indeed of Brahmá, and they had 2 Now they were eight sous indeed of Brahmá, and they had wives and children.

At the beginning of the kalpa, while the Lord was meditating about a son who should be his equal, there appeared in his lap a youth blue and red in colour; and running about

4 he cried with a sweet voice, O brahman. "Why criest thou?" answered Brahma to him as he cried. "Give me a

5 name," then replied he to the lord of the world. "Thou art named 'Rudra,' O divine one; cry not, assume some forti-

8 tude," thus was he addressed. Then he cried seven times more, and the Lord gave him seven other names, and stations for 7 these eight personalities, and wives and sons, O bráhman. The Lord, the forefather, called him Bhava, Sarva, and Iśána.

and Pasu-pati, Bhima, Ugra, and Mahá-dova. He gave these names, and assigned stations for these—the sun, water, the 9 earth, fire, the wind, and the ether, an initiated brahmen,

Por yekshanah read yakshasya?

Torier " weeper."

THE CHRATION AND APPRICATIONS OF THE

and the moon. These were the wives in order, Surrent ná, and Umá, and Vi keší, and the next Svadhá, Svahá, the

- 10 Disast and Dikshu, and Rohini in due order of the mu and the other stations, O brahman, together with Radra and the
- 11 other names. And there were been to him gradually Care, and Sukra, Lohitanga, Mano-java, Skauda, and Sarga, Santana and Budha successively.
- 12 Such was Rudra himself. He found Sati for his wifet; and through Daksha's curse Sati quitted her body. She
- 13 was the daughter of Himavat by Mená, O bráhman; her brother was Mairóka, the chiefest friend of Ambho-dhi (the
- 14 Ocean.) And the lord Bhava married her again as his only wife.
- Klyáti the wife of Bhrigns gave birth to the two gods 15 Dhátri and Vidhátri, and to S'ri who was the wife of the suprerm god Náráyan. Kyati and Niyeti were the two
- 16 daughters of high souled Meru: they became the wives of Distributed New Association from each of them, both Prima and Mytkanda.
- 17 The latter was new Rhustrions father. I am his son by Manasvini: Veda-sames is my son, he was born of Dhuquravati.
- 18 Hear also from no. of the offspring of Prana. Dyntiman was the son begetten by Prana, and A paras was his son also; from them both issued many sons and grandsons.
- 19 Sandhúti was the wife of Meric'ill; she brought forth Paucha-masa; he logh-souled man had two sons Vi-rajas and
- 20 Parveta; but I will defer mentioning their sons till I detail the generlogies, O brilanner.

And Sogitt was too wife of Augiros, T and daughters were

- 21 born of her, S'inibah, and Kubu, Ráká and Bhánnmatí. Moreover, An-asúyá gave birth by Atri** to sons without
- 22 blemish, Soma, and Durys as and the yogi Dattatrova

Dattoli was born the son of Pulast jatt by his wife Priti:

* Tanavah. † The eight regions of the sky.

1 See Canto L, vorsos 22-25. . § See Canto L, versa, 22-25.

See Canto L, verses 22-25.

¶ See Canto L, verses 22-25.

** For anusáyá read masáyá . seo canto l., versos 23-25.

++ See Canto L, verses 22-25

was known as Agustya in a previous life during the Swaysiebhuva Meny-antara.

Now Kehama, the wife of the Praja-pati Pulaha* brought forth three sons, who were Kardama, and Arva-vira and Sahishnu,

Now Sannati was the wife of Kratut; she gave birth to the Balikhilyas, the sixty thousands, which they are, of rishis who live in perpetual chastity.1 26

Now seven sons were born of Urjá by Vasishtha, § Rajas, . . Gátra and Urdhva-báhu, and Sa-bala, and Au-agha, Su-tapas, Sukta; all these are well-known as seven Rishis.

Agni, who is arrogant, was the eldest son of Brahmá; by 27 him Sváhál begat three sons of exalted vigour, O bráhman, Pávaka, and Pavaména, and Suc'i who pervades water, 29 but in descent from them were forty and five others. These and the father and his three sons are often spoken of as the invincible and illustrious forty and nine.

Brahma created the Pitris** whom I have mentioned to 80 thee, who are the Agni-shváttas, ## the Barki-shads, ## the so who did not maintain the sacred fire on earth and those who 31 did-maintain the fire. $ By them Svadha | gave birth to two daughters, Mená and Dháriní, they both were teachers of the Veda, and they both were female jogis.

See canto L, versos 22-25.

† See canto L, verses 22-25.

1 For úrddha-ralasám read úrddhva-retasám.

§ See canto L, verses 23-25.

. || For kháhá read sváhá : see cauto L, verses 23-25.

Jalasinam.

** This account differs from what Mann says (III, 193-199),

++ The Manes, especially of those who on earth neglected the sacrificial fire. 11 A particular class of the Pitris.

. §§ An-agnayas and adgnayas; these appear to be the same as Mauu's Agui-dagdhas and An-agni-dagdhas, (III. 109).

See canto L. 23-25.

CANTO LIII.

The Story of the Svayumbhura Manv-untara.

Markandeya states the duration of the Manv-onturas, and mentions the names of the Manus past, present and future—He mentions the descendants of Manu Sváyambhuva and his son Priya-orata, and explains how the whole world with its soven continents was peopled by them and divided among them—Jambu-drips was assigned to Priya-orata's son Agnidhra, and was portioned out among Agnidhra's sons—His chiest son Nábhi bayot Rishabha, and Rishabha hegot Bharata, to whom India was assigned.

Kraushinki spoke.

- 1 Adorable Siri t wish to hear fully of this Sváyambhuva Many-antara also which thou hast mentioned. Tell me of it,
- 2 and also of the duration of this Many-antara, and its gods and rishis, and the kings who ruled during it, and also who was the lord of the gods Juring it, adorable Sir!

Márkandeya spoke.

- 3 The duration of the Many-antirus has been declared to be the four yagus moltiplied by seventy-one and a fraction.* Hear the duration of a Many-antara from me in human
- 4 reckoning Thirty times ten millions are summared, and twenty thousands, and sixty-seven labbet core by computa-
- 5 tion-this is the length of the Many-anthra, in human years, omitting the fraction; it is known to be eight hundreds of
- 6 thousands and fifty two threast ds more besides of years by the divine reckening.
  - At just was the Many Scayambhuva, then the Mann
- 7 Svároc'isha, Auttami .; and Tamasa, Raivata, and C'ákshusha; these six Manus have passed, and Vaivan at a is the Manu now.
- 8 These are to come, the five Saverpas and Rauc'ya, and Bhautya § Of these a will tell theo fully afterwards in con-
  - . See Cauto XLVI, versed 34-78.
  - + Niyuto. Verses 4, 5 and 6 agree with Canto XLVI, verses 85-97.
  - I For auttamas road auttamis.
- § The text appears to be wrong. For Savarack page a rand year a bhouled read Savarack pane a rand year a knowly is. The five Savarac or Savarach have

CAROLINE.

- said rishis, and the lords of the Yakshas and the Pitris who lived during each, of their commencement and end, O brahman.
- Hear who were his offspring, and who were the wives of those their high-souled sons.
- 11 Now Manu Sváyambhuva had ten sons equal to himself, by whom all this tributary earth with its seven continents, with its mountains, and with its oceans was peopled accord-
- 12 ing to its countries. It was first people! in the Sváyam-bhuva period in the Krita and Tretá ages by the sons of Priya-vrata and the grandsons of Sváyambhuva.
- 18 A daughter was begotten of Prajs-vati by the here Priyavrata. Now that illustrions daughter gave birth through the
- 14 Prajá-pati Kardama to two daughters and ten* sons; those two daughters were Samráj† and Kukshi; their ten brothers
- 15 were warriors equal to the Prajá-pati their father. Agnídhra, and Medhá-tithi, and Vapush-mat, the next, Jyotish-mat, Dynti-mat. Bhavya, Savana, they were seven of them indeed
- 16 Priya-vrata anointed those seven as kings over the seven continents. According to that his statute, hear their continents also from me.
- 17 Their father made Agnidhra thus king over Jamba-dvipa;
- and he made Medhá-tithi lord over Plaksha-dvípa; and he made Vapush-mat lord of Sálmali, Jyotish-mat lord over Kuśa-dvípa, Dyuti-mat lord over Krange'a-dvípa, Bhavya
- 19 lord over Saka-dvipa, and his son Savana ruler over Pushkara-dvipa.
- Mahá-víta and Dhátaki were the two sons of Savana, the ruler over Pushkara-dvípa; he divided the Pushkara land into two parts, and assigned to them one part each.
- a 5 Savarni, n°. 9 Dakhsha-savarni, n°. 10 Brahma-savarni, n°. 11 Dhara gavarni and n°. 12 Rudra-savarni.
- Only seven are mentioned in verse 15.
  - A line name as a feminine is not in the Dictionary.
- Tagushyat in the text seems incorrect. Vapush mat is given correctly
  - Tite puckares read purkaren

Bhavya had seven sons, hear them by name from motooth Jula-da, and Kumara, Su-kumara, Manivaka, and Kasakara, Medhavin, and Mahi-drama the seventh. He portioned out for them countries in Saka-uvipa, which were named after them.

Moreover Dynti-mat had soven sons: hear them also from me; Kusala, and Manu-ge, Ushua, and Prakara, Artha-karaka, and Muni, and Dundabhi who was famed as the seventh.

And they had countries in Kraune'a dv.14, which were named after thom.

In Kuśa-dvípa itself also there were seven countries called 25 by the names of the sons of Jyotish-nut; hear their names from me-Ud-bhids and Vainava, So-roths, and Lambans, 26 Dhritimat, and Frákara, and Kápila the seventh . And Vapush-mat tie lend of Silmati had seven sons, both

27 Sveta, and Harito, Finite, and Robita, Vaidyuta, and Mana-

28 a. and Kenn-mat the severth. And they had seven countries in Salmali, which have the same names.

29 Medhá-tithi, the loost of Piaksha-dvipa and seven sons, and Piaksha-dvipe was divided into seven parts by the countries which were named after them, first the Saka-bhava country, 30 then Sisira, Sakhodeya, and Amanda, and Siva, and Kahemaka, and Dhravo.

In the five continents which begin with Plaksha-drips and 31 ond with Saka-drips, righteonsness rise must be known as action from the divisions of the castes and the sectod stages of a brahman's life. The righteonomes which is actiod,* and springs from one's nexural dispersion, and is exempt from the rules of harmlessores is well-known to be universal in these five continents.

His tather Priya-crata gave Jambu-dvipa to Agnidhra at the first, O bráhman. He had nine sons indeed, who were equal to the Prajá-pati Priya-crata. The eldest was named

34 Nabhi; his younger brother was Kim-purusha; the third son was Havir-varsha; the fourth was Havirta; and the lifth

35 son was Vasyu; the sixth was called Hiranya; the savetth

Designated by their name

ant of their countries.

assoction exists naturally in Kim-purusha, and the orawith the exception of the named from the stantian Himst; and the perfection is almost complete hapmen which comes without exertion. There is no adversity por old age, death or fear; neither righteoneness nor principles existed there, nor had the people differences of as high, low or middling; nor have the four greatiste there, nor periodic times, nor the seasons of the Agadhra's son Nabhi had a son Rishabha, O bráhman Rishabha togot Rharata, a hero, the best among his hundred sons. Rishabha having anointed his son in his dead betook himself to the strictest life of a wandering religious mendimunt, and devoted himself to austorities, an illustrious hereat, dwelling in Palaha's hermitage. His father gave Bharata the southern country named after the mountain Hima; the country is called Bharata after the name of that third-scaled king. Bhurnta also had a rightcons son called Sa meti; and Bharata transferred the kingdom to him and deperted to the forest.

Now during the Sváyambhuva period Priya-vrata's sons, and their sons and grandsons enjoyeds the carth with its serge continents. This was the Svayambhuva creation; J have narrated it to thee, O brahman. What else shall I in the first Many-antara !

ukhyáni read kimpurusháduás ays. Ber also versos 40 and 41 where this is said to be This meaning is not in the distintary. this meaning, 'India," is not in the dictionary.